Heavy Assault by Carrier Based Planes in Bay of Bengal Challenges Japanese Claim

Fires Observed

No Losses Are Suffered by Attackers, London Announces

(By The Associated Press)

British naval forces, boldly thrusting at the "back door" of Japan's South Seas zone of conquest, were officially credited today with sending planes into a heavy assault on Japanese military targets at the northern tip of Sumatra, the Dutch East Indies, in the first attack there since last March.

A British admiralty communique said British naval aircraft, launched from warships operating in the Bay of Bengal, made the attack December 20 at Sabang, at the north end of the 900-mile-long island.

"Large explosions followed by fire were observed," the admiralty said.

London quarters said planes from the 23,000-ton British aircraft carrier Illustrious, which was reported in the Bay of Bengal October 23, possibly made the attack.

Sabang is approximately 800 miles east of Ceylon, the nearest British naval base.

The raid, challenging Japan's claim of several months ago that Japanese forces controlled the Bay of Bengal, was carried out without loss, it was announced.

Meanwhile, Allied bombers and fighter planes roared back to the attack on the Japanese base at Akyab, in Burma, as Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's ground troops from India pressed through coastal swamplands toward the base.

A United Nations communique said R. A. F. planes pounded Akyab during the daytime yesterday and last night and strafed an enemy motor transport column in the Myittha valley north of Akyab.

On the New Guinea front, Allied troops chalked up small new gains yesterday in hammering at Japanese forces trapped in the Buna sector.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the Japanese were fighting desperately in "intricate and thoroughly prepared positions" along a narrow strip of beach.

Still another Japanese attempt to bring sea-borne supplies to the beleaguered forces at Buna was frustrated when American Flying Fortresses sank an enemy ship disguised with three branches and foliage to make it resemble an island. Sunk off New Britain, the vessel was apparently en route to New Guinea.

Travel Is Heavy

Southern Accommodations Are Overloaded Because of Fewer Coaches

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The holiday travel surge was on today, and even standing room in trains was at a premium. The south where army camps are most numerous, was the principal objective of holiday travelers.

The Pennsylvania Railroad reports sleeping car reservations to the south sold out until January 10. Other trains are sold out solidly until January 3 and each railroad has long waiting lists to fill last-minute cancellations.

All lines reported many would-be travelers were abiding by requests to refrain from traveling, except where necessary, but the fewer coaches and Pullmans available, the gasoline shortage, which has made train passengers of former motorists, and war plants' observance of holidays combined with furloughs granted by the armed forces to set a record traffic jam.

Brig.-Gen. Starm Declares Morale Is Tops, Can't Be Beaten, They're Itching to Go

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Dec. 21 (Delayed) (AP)—Staff officers at headquarters of the Ninth American Air Force in Cairo have a glint in their eyes these days. It's a dead giveaway for the satisfaction they feel over the fine contribution Uncle Sam's airmen are continuing to make to the British offensive against Rommel.

I dropped in on Brigadier-General Victor H. Starm, chief of staff to Major General Lewis H. Brereton, commander of U. S. air forces in the Middle East and India to inquire whether the flag still flew.

"You bet," he retorted. "Our units are doing a grand job along with our Royal Air Force colleagues. Our morale is top hole. It can't be beat."

Now that's strong mustard but it's first class testimony from a man who is familiar with the fighting game from battle experience. Of course, you don't need any introduction to this distinguished ace of World War I who hails from Bowling Green, Ky.

Since the allied air forces have kept a constant and devastating contact with the fleeing enemy thus far, I asked General Starm whether any individual crews have made any sorties as they did in the big show at El Alamein, where the Axis rout started.

"We are making many," he replied, "but our men stand up firm. Their morale is at its peak and they are itching to go."

The general paused and grinned. "Thanksgiving Day out in the desert I saw an example of the frame of mind they're in. Some members of a South African air unit came over to visit us and they arrived in an armored car. Our boys immediately wanted to know what it was like to be under fire in such a car. So, a few at a time, they shut themselves up in the machine while everybody else cut loose at it with pistol shots.

"Now that's a small incident but it indicates contented minds. Our morale is just so good that there's nothing you could say about it that would be exaggeration."

"What part would you say that air power has played in the Eighth Army offensive?" I asked.

"Air power has been one of the chief factors in our success," he replied, "and it has been our good fortune to have a share in this along with the R.A.F.

Major Bombing Force

"It has happened that in the category of heavy bombers we have formed a major bombardment force because of the nature of our equipment. We have concentrated on port facilities and sea communications. For example, after the Eighth Army reached Bengasi we made repeated attacks against the Axis port of Tripoli which had been one of their chief supply bases.

"Among our major targets have been gasoline depots and tankers and we certainly raised the devil with them. The result has been that the activities of the Axis airforce have been heavily restricted because of lack of gas.

Texan Offers U. S. Huge Gas Supply To Help Heat East

Longview, Tex., Dec. 23 (AP)—Rogers Lacy offered the government 25 billion cubic feet of natural gas daily today to help relieve the eastern fuel shortage.

The East Texas oil man, who bears little resemblance to Santa Claus, made the offer to Petroleum Coordinator Harold Ickes—no strings attached.

Lacy has a gas well—a big one. A quarter-mile away the government has a pipe line—a big one—running right into Norris City, Ill. Lacy will see that the gas gets the pipe line, if the idea appeals to Washington.

The Longview citizen outlined his proposition in a cryptic telegram, not wasting an "A" or "The."

"Noted from press reports big line from Longview to Norris City, Ill., is completed but cannot be used before last of January account pumping equipment delayed," it began.

"I can fill with natural gas at rate of 25 billion feet daily from my Cass county, Texas, well to relieve fuel shortage in east until line ready for oil movement.

"Well is one-fourth mile from line and can be connected quickly.

"Offer this gas on any basis to help solve fuel shortage. Gas will deliver on its own pressure. Be glad have you consider this and let me hear from you immediately.

"Signed: R. Lacy."

"They can have it free if they want it," he added, orally.

Lacy, who owns extensive oil and gas holdings in Texas, seems to have had more trouble getting rid of his product than acquiring it. He already has built two distribution systems—in Longview and Kilgore—to use gas from his wells.

Just how far 25 billion feet of gas a day would go toward solving the fuel shortage isn't clear—but it takes a mighty frigid January to run the family gas meter as high as 25,000 cubic feet and that's for a month, not a day.

Pay-as-Go Tax Plan Is Advocated

Senator Clark Places Challenge at Treasury Door to Reach War Workers' Pay

Plan Is Popular

Ruml Method Proves to Be Gaining, He Says

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—A new drive to enlist congressional support behind a "pay-as-you-go" tax plan was projected today by Senator Clark (D.-Mo.), chairman of a finance subcommittee which investigated the Beardsley Ruml proposal this year.

At the same time, Clark challenged treasury experts to propose emergency taxes that would reach what he termed the abnormal earnings of war workers in the government's quest for eight billion dollars of additional revenue.

Clark told reporters he was drafting a statement dealing with a program to shift tax payments to a current year basis along the line suggested recently by Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Bowing to treasury objections, the finance committee, despite a recommendation from Clark's subcommittee, rejected the Ruml plan.

Clark said there was continuing evidence of growing sentiment for the Ruml tax collection principle and that with mounting war costs its adoption "seems inevitable."

If adopted, the Ruml plan would wipe out individual income taxes on the previous year's earnings and consider payments made during the current year as applying on the current year's taxes.

A "pay-as-you-go" program, with the withdrawal of taxes at the source, he asserted, would prevent defaults by thousands of citizens.

Under such a program, the tax would be deducted weekly or monthly from an individual's pay check. Separate provisions would be made for business men and others whose income was not in the form of regular checks.

Clark said there was little sentiment in the Senate for consideration of another spending tax proposal such as was rejected this year. He added a belief that a general sales tax would fall short of treasury goals unless it ran so high as to be prohibitive.

A spending tax similar to the treasury's rejected plan this year would impose a certain levy, possibly 10 per cent, on all money spent by an individual in excess of certain specified exemptions. Under the treasury plan, this tax would have been in the form of enforced savings which would have reverted to taxpayers after the war. The treasury also proposed a graduated levy from 10 to 75 per cent on "luxury" spending above certain exemptions as a direct tax which would not be returned.

"We should raise any additional individual taxes through some proposal designed to reach swollen incomes of munitions workers and others making abnormal wages as a result of the war," Clark said. "An excess profits tax on individuals or forced bond purchases applicable to them might be studied."

Seaman Is Commended

Sociologist Fears Great, Dangerous Manpower Shortage in 20 Years' Time

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (AP)—America, through a short-sighted conscription policy, is laying the groundwork for another great war 20 years or so hence, a prominent sociologist said today, and is depriving of life uncounted members of an unborn generation.

Dr. Constantine Panunzio, associate professor of sociology at the University of California, Los Angeles, declared that calling of young married men into the armed services will result in an alarming decrease in America's birth-rate.

"And even though we deal Japan a knockout blow now," he added, "in the next generation we may be obliged to confront a nation with a manpower even greater than at present.

By 1970, he predicted, the prolific Japanese will have increased their population by 30,000,000, while the United States may anticipate a gain of only 18,000,000.

"To understand the full effect of calling youthful married men to the colors without regard for future manpower we must realize that the younger married people give birth to a large proportion of the children," Dr. Panunzio continued.

"In World War I, France recruited without regard to martial status. And when 1940 came, with its new and greater war, France found itself actually with fewer men between 20 and 25 years than in the earlier conflict. Births between 1915 and 1919 were 1,040,000 fewer than normal.

"Apparently the United States is going to face a manpower situation similar to France's"

Another factor contributing to a lower birth-rate here, he asserted, is the increasing employment of women in war industries.

"Our situation," Dr. Panunizio said, "is serious because the population is fast becoming stationary in size. Our present rate of increase is barely enough for replacement.

"The future strength of the nation makes it imperative to defer as many married men as possible between the ages of 22 and 26."

Jeannette Rankin Calls for Complete Conference Story

Why, She Asks, Did F.D.R. Permit Forces at Pearl Harbor to Be Taken by Surprise

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—White-haired Jeannette Rankin (R-Mont.), only member of congress to vote against war with Japan, called for the "full story" on the historic Atlantic conference and, in a statement prepared for the congressional record, today asked this question:

"Astounding as the Pearl Harbor attack was to the American public as a whole, if it was secretly anticipated and even played for, why did the president permit our forces at Pearl Harbor to be taken by surprise?"

She said that President Roosevelt imposed "self-acknowledged, war-provoking" economic sanctions against Japan immediately after the meeting at sea with Winston Churchill.

At another point she cited the report by the president's special commission which investigated the Pearl Harbor attack that warnings to be alert had been sent to army and navy commanders in the Pacific before the attack took place.

Then she observed:

"Indeed, do not the frequency, urgency, the very wording of these warnings indicate in themselves that the Pearl Harbor attack came as no surprise whatever to the president?"

The representative obtained consent of the House before the 77th congress adjourned to insert her statement in the congressional

New Legislation to Alter Labor Laws Is Proposed

New Program Has Been Drafted for Congress, Would Take Power Away From Administration

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP).—An all-embracing legislative program for sharp revision of federal labor laws, including suspension of the 40-hour provision as a standard work week, was reported today to have been drafted tentatively for presentation to congress early next year.

In its present form the plan would strip the administration of power to deal independently with labor-management problems.

Instead, that authority would be turned over to a new war labor board, created by congress but restricted by law from laying down any orders and assuming any powers not specifically delegated by congress.

As outlined by one member of the group, who declines use of his name, the legislation would:

Suspend the premium pay requirement in the wages and hours laws, although permitting overtime pay for work in excess of 40 hours with the specifications that it be paid in war bonds.

Outlaw strikes in war industries.

Prevent closed shops and maintenance of membership clauses in labor contracts in industries handling government work.

Amend the corrupt practices act so as to bar labor unions from making contributions to political campaigns.

Set up the new War Labor Board, its membership to be composed of representatives of the C.I.O., the A.F.L., the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the public.

Revive the Hobbs bill, which would subject labor unions to prosecution under the federal anti-trust and anti-racketeering laws.

Proponents of the legislation already are discussing the best strategy for overcoming parliamentary difficulties.

In a move to sidestep the House labor committee, which in the past has pigeonholed "restrictive" labor legislation, the maneuvering may start in the judiciary committee with introduction of the Hobbs bill.

The congressman who disclosed the plans emphasized, however, that its advocates must proceed cautiously to avoid disruption of war production. He said, also, that the present general wage scale must be maintained in order to avoid disruption of the nation's economic balance.

Orators Work Overtime

Stockholm, Dec. 23 (AP)—With Germany's food rations generally lower than last year and the war news bad, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels is reported to have mobilized hundreds of Nazi orators to deliver a nation-wide series of "Pep Talks" to the German public. Advices from Germany indicate that a program of mass meetings already is under way, with Goebbels and Dr. Robert Ley, labor leader, setting the pace.

Dr. Clarke Resigns His Health Post

Milk Inspector Will Give Full Time to Practise; Crandall Named

After serving 27 years as a member of the staff of the Board of Health of the city, Dr. Harold Clarke is retiring the first of the year to devote his entire time to his veterinary practice. Dr. James C. Crandall of Saugerties has been appointed milk inspector to succeed Dr. Clarke, at a salary of $2,500 a year, and assumes his duties on January 1.

Dr. Clarke in a communication addressed to Mayor William F. Edelmuth and read at the monthly meeting of the health board on Tuesday afternoon gave as his reason for refusing reappointment as milk inspector that he did not feel that he was able to devote his entire time to the duties of the office.

It was explained by the board members that it was felt that the position of milk inspector should be a full time job in the future.

It was stated that Dr. James C. Crandall of Saugerties was willing to accept the appointment and on motion of Commissioner W. C. Hussey he was appointed at the salary stated. In addition he is granted car allowance and gasoline.

Dr. Clarke's letter to the mayor reads as follows: "Thanking you very kindly for your offer, but in accordance with our conversation I do not feel that I am able to devote my entire time to work of the Board of Health. With best hopes that the advent of more work will increase purity and quality of milk for the consumers of the city of Kingston, I am, etc."

Milk Inspector Crandall, who will assume his new duties the first of the year, was said to be well qualified for the position.

It was stated that Dr. Crandall for the past nine years had been serving as milk inspector for the town of Saugerties. He is a native of Mechanicsville and had been a resident of Saugerties for 11 years. He is married and has two

Russians Retake More Than 900 Miles of Rail Lines Needed by Germans

British Advance

Eighth Army Increases Peril to Hitler in Yuletide Sweep

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies, driving across the middle Don Steppes toward Rostov, were pictured in Soviet dispatches today as having engulfed several dozen more towns and villages, captured 22,300 prisoners, and advanced so fast that they seized German winter storehouses.

"We are distributing Dutch chocolate and Rhine wines to our fighters," said a message from Russian vanguards.

Military reports said the Russians were advancing on the German-occupied eastern Ukraine on a long, straight front some 200 miles west of Stalingrad, forming a deep line studded with machine-gun positions, mortars and heavy artillery.

Behind this wall and threatened with entrapment, nearly a million German soldiers and their satellites are faced with another winter of bitter cold, meager supplies and hardship.

Some Red army troops had already surged back into the Ukraine, once known as "Russia's bread basket," after capturing the town of Nikolske.

Altogether, on the middle Don front and the central (Moscow) front, Soviet offensives were reported to have wrested back more than 900 miles of vital rail lines needed by the Germans to supply and reinforce their hard-pressed invasion armies.

German field headquarters asserted tersely that Russian attacks had been repulsed in the Don-Volga corridor and that "severe fighting is continuing."

Soviet dispatches said eight of the several dozen towns newly captured in the sweep toward Rostov were of high military value and declared that Timoshenko's legions were beating down resistance by masses of German reserves.

"Organized attempts of separate enemy groups to hold back the offensive of the Red army have been unsuccessful and have increased the already great losses of the Germans," the Russian command said.

In a single sector of the flaming battlefront, an entire battalion of Nazi infantry (800 to 1,000 troops), together with the battalion commander, surrendered to the onrushing Soviets, dispatches said.

Despite swirling snowstorms and deep drifts, the Red army's week-old offensive was making astonishing progress in the drive to capture Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, and seal off approximately 1,000,000 German troops.

Two Russians columns, striking from different directions, were reported within 120 miles of Rostov. One column had captured the large village of Kamensky in the vicinity of Millervo, 120 miles due north of Rostov, while the other seized the town of Morozovka, about the same distance northeast of Rostov.

22 Are Killed

Boulder Crashes Upon Bus Crowded With Workers From War Plant

Aliquippa, Pa., Dec. 22 (AP)—Twenty-two persons perished last night when two boulders, one weighing more than 100 tons, crashed down upon a big yellow Ohio river motor coach bus crowded with homegoing war workers. Only three passengers escaped, two of them with critical injuries.

The pre-Christmas tragedy occurred a mile east of here at 5:10 p. m., as the bus threaded its way around a treacherous "S" curve on a narrow, slippery road. Three other busses were just ahead of it and two were trailing.

Plan Is Popular

Ruml Method Proves to Be Gaining, He Says

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—A new drive to enlist congressional support behind a "pay-as-you-go" tax plan was projected today by Senator Clark (D.-Mo.), chairman of a finance subcommittee which investigated the Beardsley Ruml proposal this year.

At the same time, Clark challenged treasury experts to propose emergency taxes that would reach what he termed the abnormal earnings of war workers in the government's quest for eight billion dollars of additional revenue.

Clark told reporters he was drafting a statement dealing with a program to shift tax payments to a current year basis along the line suggested recently by Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Bowing to treasury objections, the finance committee, despite a recommendation from Clark's subcommittee, rejected the Ruml plan.

Clark said there was continuing evidence of growing sentiment for the Ruml tax collection principle and that with mounting war costs its adoption "seems inevitable."

If adopted, the Ruml plan would wipe out individual income taxes on the previous year's earnings and consider payments made during the current year as applying on the current year's taxes.

A "pay-as-you-go" program, with the withdrawal of taxes at the source, he asserted, would prevent defaults by thousands of citizens. Under such a program, the tax would be deducted weekly or monthly from an individual's pay check. Separate provisions would be made for business men and others whose income was not in the form of regular checks.

Clark said there was little sentiment in the Senate for consideration of another spending tax proposal such as was rejected this year. He added a belief that a general sales tax would fall short of treasury goals unless it ran so high as to be prohibitive.

A spending tax similar to the treasury's rejected plan this year would impose a certain levy, possibly 10 per cent, on all money spent by an individual in excess of certain specified exemptions. Under the treasury plan, this tax would have been in the form of enforced savings which would have reverted to taxpayers after the war. The treasury also proposed a graduated levy from 10 to 75 per cent on "luxury" spending above certain exemptions as a direct tax which would not be returned.

"We should raise any additional individual taxes through some proposal designed to reach swollen incomes of munitions workers and others making abnormal wages as a result of the war," Clark said. "An excess profits tax on individuals or forced bond purchases applicable to them might be studied."

Seaman Is Commended

Russians Retake More Than 900 Miles of Rail Lines Needed by Germans

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies, driving across the middle Don Steppes toward Rostov, were pictured in Soviet dispatches today as having engulfed several dozen more towns and villages, captured 22,300 prisoners, and advanced so fast that they seized German winter storehouses.

"We are distributing Dutch chocolate and Rhine wines to our fighters," said a message from Russian vanguards.

Military reports said the Russians were advancing on the German-occupied eastern Ukraine on a long, straight front some 200 miles west of Stalingrad, forming a deep line studded with machine-gun positions, mortars and heavy artillery.

Behind this wall and threatened with entrapment, nearly a million German soldiers and their satellites are faced with another winter of bitter cold, meager supplies and hardship.

Some Red army troops had already surged back into the Ukraine, once known as "Russia's bread basket," after capturing the town of Nikolske.

Altogether, on the middle Don front and the central (Moscow) front, Soviet offensives were reported to have wrested back more than 900 miles of vital rail lines needed by the Germans to supply and reinforce their hard-pressed invasion armies.

German field headquarters asserted tersely that Russian attacks had been repulsed in the Don-Volga corridor and that "severe fighting is continuing."

Soviet dispatches said eight of the several dozen towns newly captured in the sweep toward Rostov were of high military value and declared that Timoshenko's legions were beating down resistance by masses of German reserves.

"Organized attempts of separate enemy groups to hold back the offensive of the Red army have been unsuccessful and have increased the already great losses of the Germans," the Russian command said.

In a single sector of the flaming battlefront, an entire battalion of Nazi infantry (800 to 1,000 troops), together with the battalion commander, surrendered to the onrushing Soviets, dispatches said.

Despite swirling snowstorms and deep drifts, the Red army's week-old offensive was making astonishing progress in the drive to capture Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, and seal off approximately 1,000,000 German troops.

Two Russians columns, striking from different directions, were reported within 120 miles of Rostov. One column had captured the large village of Kamensky in the vicinity of Millervo, 120 miles due north of Rostov, while the other seized the town of Morozovka, about the same distance northeast of Rostov.

Boulder Crashes Upon Bus Crowded With Workers From War Plant

Aliquippa, Pa., Dec. 22 (AP)—Twenty-two persons perished last night when two boulders, one weighing more than 100 tons, crashed down upon a big yellow Ohio river motor coach bus crowded with homegoing war workers. Only three passengers escaped, two of them with critical injuries.

The pre-Christmas tragedy occurred a mile east of here at 5:10 p. m., as the bus threaded its way around a treacherous "S" curve on a narrow, slippery road. Three other busses were just ahead of it and two were trailing.

Why, She Asks, Did F.D.R. Permit Forces at Pearl Harbor to Be Taken by Surprise

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—White-haired Jeannette Rankin (R-Mont.), only member of congress to vote against war with Japan, called for the "full story" on the historic Atlantic conference and, in a statement prepared for the congressional record, today asked this question:

"Astounding as the Pearl Harbor attack was to the American public as a whole, if it was secretly anticipated and even played for, why did the president permit our forces at Pearl Harbor to be taken by surprise?"

She said that President Roosevelt imposed "self-acknowledged, war-provoking" economic sanctions against Japan immediately after the meeting at sea with Winston Churchill.

At another point she cited the report by the president's special commission which investigated the Pearl Harbor attack that warnings to be alert had been sent to army and navy commanders in the Pacific before the attack took place.

Then she observed:

"Indeed, do not the frequency, urgency, the very wording of these warnings indicate in themselves that the Pearl Harbor attack came as no surprise whatever to the president?"

New Legislation to Alter Labor Laws Is Proposed

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP).—An all-embracing legislative program for sharp revision of federal labor laws, including suspension of the 40-hour provision as a standard work week, was reported today to have been drafted tentatively for presentation to congress early next year.

In its present form the plan would strip the administration of power to deal independently with labor-management problems.

Instead, that authority would be turned over to a new war labor board, created by congress but restricted by law from laying down any orders and assuming any powers not specifically delegated by congress.

As outlined by one member of the group, who declines use of his name, the legislation would:

Suspend the premium pay requirement in the wages and hours laws, although permitting overtime pay for work in excess of 40 hours with the specifications that it be paid in war bonds.

Outlaw strikes in war industries.

Prevent closed shops and maintenance of membership clauses in labor contracts in industries handling government work.

Amend the corrupt practices act so as to bar labor unions from making contributions to political campaigns.

Set up the new War Labor Board, its membership to be composed of representatives of the C.I.O., the A.F.L., the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the public.

Revive the Hobbs bill, which would subject labor unions to prosecution under the federal anti-trust and anti-racketeering laws.

Proponents of the legislation already are discussing the best strategy for overcoming parliamentary difficulties.

In a move to sidestep the House labor committee, which in the past has pigeonholed "restrictive" labor legislation, the maneuvering may start in the judiciary committee with introduction of the Hobbs bill.

The congressman who disclosed the plans emphasized, however, that its advocates must proceed cautiously to avoid disruption of war production. He said, also, that the present general wage scale must be maintained in order to avoid disruption of the nation's economic balance.

Orators Work Overtime

Stockholm, Dec. 23 (AP)—With Germany's food rations generally lower than last year and the war news bad, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels is reported to have mobilized hundreds of Nazi orators to deliver a nation-wide series of "Pep Talks" to the German public. Advices from Germany indicate that a program of mass meetings already is under way, with Goebbels and Dr. Robert Ley, labor leader, setting the pace.

Dr. Clarke Resigns His Health Post

Milk Inspector Will Give Full Time to Practise; Crandall Named

After serving 27 years as a member of the staff of the Board of Health of the city, Dr. Harold Clarke is retiring the first of the year to devote his entire time to his veterinary practice. Dr. James C. Crandall of Saugerties has been appointed milk inspector to succeed Dr. Clarke, at a salary of $2,500 a year, and assumes his duties on January 1.

Dr. Clarke in a communication addressed to Mayor William F. Edelmuth and read at the monthly meeting of the health board on Tuesday afternoon gave as his reason for refusing reappointment as milk inspector that he did not feel that he was able to devote his entire time to the duties of the office.

It was explained by the board members that it was felt that the position of milk inspector should be a full time job in the future.

It was stated that Dr. James C. Crandall of Saugerties was willing to accept the appointment and on motion of Commissioner W. C. Hussey he was appointed at the salary stated. In addition he is granted car allowance and gasoline.

Dr. Clarke's letter to the mayor reads as follows: "Thanking you very kindly for your offer, but in accordance with our conversation I do not feel that I am able to devote my entire time to work of the Board of Health. With best hopes that the advent of more work will increase purity and quality of milk for the consumers of the city of Kingston, I am, etc."

Milk Inspector Crandall, who will assume his new duties the first of the year, was said to be well qualified for the position.

It was stated that Dr. Crandall for the past nine years had been serving as milk inspector for the town of Saugerties. He is a native of Mechanicsville and had been a resident of Saugerties for 11 years. He is married and has two

Los Angeles, Dec. 23 (AP)—America, through a short-sighted conscription policy, is laying the groundwork for another great war 20 years or so hence, a prominent sociologist said today, and is depriving of life uncounted members of an unborn generation.

Dr. Constantine Panunzio, associate professor of sociology at the University of California, Los Angeles, declared that calling of young married men into the armed services will result in an alarming decrease in America's birth-rate.

"And even though we deal Japan a knockout blow now," he added, "in the next generation we may be obliged to confront a nation with a manpower even greater than at present.

By 1970, he predicted, the prolific Japanese will have increased their population by 30,000,000, while the United States may anticipate a gain of only 15,000,000.

"To understand the full effect of calling youthful married men to the colors without regard for future manpower we must realize that the younger married people give birth to a large proportion of the children," Dr. Panunzio continued.

"In World War I, France recruited without regard to marital status. And when 1940 came, with its new and greater war, France found itself actually with fewer men between 20 and 25 years than in the earlier conflict. Births between 1915 and 1919 were 1,040,000 fewer than normal.

"Apparently the United States is going to face a manpower situation similar to France's."

Another factor contributing to a lower birth-rate here, he asserted, is the increasing employment of women in war industries.

"Our situation," Dr. Panunzio said, "is serious because the population is fast becoming stationary in size. Our present rate of increase is hardly enough for replacement.

"The future strength of the nation makes it imperative to defer as many married men as possible between the ages of 22 and 25."

Senator McNary Predicts Unity to Fight Waste and Bureaucracy in Washington

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Senate minority leader McNary (R.-Ore.) predicted today that Republican and Democratic advocates of economy in government would join forces in the next session of congress to combat "waste and bureaucracy."

With Republicans elected to 209 of the 435 House seats, and 38 out of 96 seats in the Senate, the party's lawmakers expect to have a powerful voice in legislative affairs and already are counting on Democratic support in some issues.

"The Republican party in the next session of congress will join with those Democrats who desire to eliminate wastefulness in government expenditures, practice economy in the administration of public affairs, and avoid unnecessary controls and bureaucracy," McNary declared in an interview.

"It will support fervently and faithfully the prosecution of the war, to the end that we may have a complete victory with a minimum expenditure of men and money."

The 1940 vice-presidential nominee, who seldom talks for publication when off the senate floor, spoke freely as he outlined his general goals for the coming session.

Discussions of peace are "not without pertinence" even now, he declared.

"Debatable and important questions can be clarified by debate," he said. "Of course no application can be made of any pattern that is agreed upon, until after the war is won.

"The Republican party realizes the responsibility of our country in the matter of negotiation and settlement of just terms of peace and the future maintenance of peace and security.

We will be found advocating those principles that are essential to sustaining the home and hearthstone, the American market, the American standard of living.

"However, the party will advocate leadership in world affairs for its country, associated with countries and in a spirit of generosity, without scattering the nation's resources wastefully throughout the world."

"The effectiveness of our war effort is not to be measured alone by the number of enlisted men," he declared. "There are other factors of equal importance, such as sufficient manpower on the farms and in the factories of our country. Balanced manpower is essential.

"An army in dimensions beyond the ability of civilian support would be disastrous."

Farm War Bond Month in January In New York State

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22—January will be "Farm War Bond Month" throughout the state, it was announced here today by Carl C. Camenga, deputy administrator for agriculture of the New York War Savings staff.

The selection of the first month of the new year to acquaint New York's 153,000 farm families with the advantage of increasing their investments in War Bonds was decided upon after a series of meetings of the New York Agricultural Committee on War Savings.

The meetings were held at the State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, and were presided over by Dr. William I. Myers, head of the College's Department of Agricultural Economics, and consultant to the Treasury Department's New York War Savings staff and member of its executive committee.

The campaign will be sponsored in the 56 agricultural counties of the state by the various county agricultural defense committees, and a series of meetings will be held from January 4 to 9.

Plans will be made to suit each individual county, and, in addition to the agricultural defense committee, those in attendance will include the chairman of the vocational agricultural group, the key banker of the county, and the county chairman of the New York War Savings committee.

In commenting on the campaign, Dr. Myers urged farmers to follow a three-fold war time program by raising all the necessary food possible, getting their debts in shape by reducing excessive obligations to a safe basis, and to invest in War Bonds to the limit of their ability to build up financial reserves.

Pointing out that the moving picture industry recently conducted a successful Bond Month drive, Mr. Camenga said "it seems fitting that agriculture should follow suit."

"America today is fighting a war on four fronts," he continued. "These are the battle front, the munitions front, the food front and the dollar front. The farmer alone can win the food front and he must help win the dollar front."

Dr. Myers is chairman of the New York State Agricultural Committee on War Savings; Dr. Van B. Hart, extension professor of farm management at the State College of Agriculture, is secretary, and other members include:

Also, N. A. Jamba, of Norwich, chairman of the Agricultural committee of the New York State Bankers Association; A. L. Gillett, of Springfield, Mass., general agent Farm Credit Administration; A. K. Getman, of Albany, chief of the State Bureau of Agricultural Education; E. R. Eastman, of Ithaca, editor of the American Agriculturist, and Dwight T. Corwin, of Riverhead, president of the Long Island Cauliflower Association.

Two Accidents Are Reported in City

Buses, Taxis Find Going Too Slippery for Comfort

As a result of the glare of ice that covered the city last night two automobile accidents, in which two persons were injured, but not seriously, were reported to the police department. One crash was at 5:35 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the other at 5:45 o'clock this morning.

The official thermometer at the city hall at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning recorded a low of one degree below zero, while at 11 o'clock that night the thermometer read 31 degrees above zero. At 9 o'clock this morning a reading of 32 degrees above zero was recorded.

Rain began falling in mid-afternoon yesterday, and continued throughout the night. The rain froze as fast as it fell, and the streets and sidewalks became a glare of ice. Traffic was forced to proceed at snail's pace through the streets, and the hills were so slippery that cars without chains were unable to proceed. The sanding crews were ordered out as soon as ice conditions began to prevail.

As rain continued to fall throughout the night it was found necessary to resand the streets several times in order to make it possible for traffic to proceed.

Last night some of the taxi concerns ceased operations as it was reported that the drivers found it impossible to control their cars which slid all over the street.

Buses Stop Running

The city bus lines also found going difficult and at 10:30 o'clock were forced to suspend operations on the Belt line and half an hour later operations on the Hasbrouck avenue line were halted.

The Broadway line, while it ran until midnight as usual, from 10:30 o'clock on omitted operating on the Broadway hill and the buses were run only as far as Delaware avenue, as it was not considered safe to send them down the slippery descent.

Two Are Injured

The two persons injured were Mrs. Florence Linn, 26, of Van Keuren road and her daughter, Carol Ann, 3½ years old. Mrs. Linn suffered cuts about the head and knees while the little girl was badly shaken up and bruised, when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision with one of the trucks of the Kingston Coal Company on Albany avenue at the intersection of Wrentham street.

Louis Linn, Jr., in reporting the crash to the police department stated he was driving south over Albany avenue at 5:35 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when the coal truck swung left from Albany avenue into Wrentham street and crashed into his automobile. Both machines were damaged. The coal truck was operated by James P. Gallo of R. F. D. 1, Kingston.

This morning at 5:45 o'clock an auto operated by Arthur E. Christian of 69 Elmendorf street crashed into a parked truck owned by Knaust Brothers of Coxsackie in front of 228 Elmendorf street. No personal injuries were reported but both machines were damaged.

Rural Pastor Is Called Upstate

The Rev. W. K. Haysom Will Go to Amsterdam

The Rev. Wilhelm K. Haysom who has served as pastor of the Bloomington Reformed Church for the past four years, has accepted a call to the Amsterdam Reformed Church and will take over his new charge on January 3.

Since coming to Ulster county the Rev. Mr. Haysom has been active in young peoples work and has been an ardent worker in the Christian Endeavor Union. He has been active in civic matters and was one of the organizers of and has served as chief of the newly formed Bloomington Fire Department. In civilian defense work he has been active and has served as an air raid warden in the village of Bloomington. For the past two years he has served as president of the Kingston Model Railroad Club.

Kingston Bus Is Struck By Truck Near Monroe

Miss Harriet C. St. John, who left New York at 5:45 Tuesday night, by bus and arrived at her home, 56 Linderman avenue, at 10:45 this morning knows by personal experience that travel over the icy roads late yesterday afternoon and last night was in the nature of an adventure.

The bus, which was due in Kingston at 9 o'clock last night, had got as far as a point between Monroe and Washingtonville about one o'clock, when it was struck by a skidding milk truck and its motor put out of commission. Passengers were taken by taxi to Walden and late this morning a bus brought them into Kingston.

Nuzzo Says Cash Was for Expenses

Union's Organizational Business Necessitated Fund Withdrawal

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo, former business agent, declared in Supreme Court today $6,000 he withdrew in cash from the general fund of Local 17, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (A.F.L.), in January, 1941, was spent for "organizational expenses."

Most of it went to pay pickets who protected members of Local 17 working on a $300,000,000 New York city water supply project during a jurisdictional battle with Local 147, a New York city affiliate of the same union, he added. Nuzzo is charged with misappropriating funds of Local 17.

Nuzzo admitted the money was withdrawn a few days before he left to attend a union convention, but claimed he made the convention trip on $500 or $600 "of my own savings." A $500 item listed on union records as "convention expense," he asserted, was a check he ordered written to pay Andrew Zawalick, also known as Jack Wallace, of Newark, N. J., an assistant business agent of Local 17 recuperating in Florida from injuries suffered at a union dinner in New York city late in 1940.

Zawalick was drawing a salary of $100 a week from Local 17, Nuzzo said, but the additional $500 was ordered for him by James Bove, international union vice-president.

Nuzzo denied testimony he gave an extraordinary Orange county grand jury, claiming he had never taken $200 from the union's death benefit fund for his own use. Shown grand jury minutes containing an admission that he had taken the sum, he said, "I don't remember what I told the grand jury."

The former union executive had maintained he spent $707.49 in union funds for office equipment, although shown in court an automobile finance company receipt for the amount.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Good recoveries were sprinkled over the stock market ticker today but many leaders failed to make much of a come-back impression on the winding tape.

The usual pre-holiday considerations, including the lightening of commitments by those who plan to extend the Christmas recess to Monday, handicapped some favorites while tax offerings again impeded progress elsewhere. Peace stocks seemed to do a bit better than others as the war news remained optimistic. Short covering on the idea a rally might be in the offing aided certain issues, as did individual business developments.

Large blocks of low and medium-priced issues came out at the start but volume slackened later. The trend was irregularly higher near the fourth hour.

Bonds were steady and commodities a shade mixed.

In the stock division new peaks for 1942 were posted for Chrysler, Firestone and Standard Oil (N.J.) among others. Ahead at intervals were Bethlehem, U. S. Woman Is Killed

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 22 (AP)—One woman was killed and six other employes were injured today in an explosion at the Winchester Repeating Arms Company. The dead woman was identified by company officials as Mrs. Beatrice Simpson of New Haven.

Eastern Seaboard Is Split Into 6 Allotment Zones

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The petroleum thirty eastern seaboard was split into six zones of allotment of petroleum products under a program set up for the remainder of December, the Regional Office of Petroleum Administrator for war announced today.

Gasoline and heavy and light fuel oil supplies remained marginal throughout the eastern area, the office reported. It added the opinion that the tight situation would be met under the various rationing plans and the cooperation of motorists and fuel users.

Under the new rationing program petroleum requirements were divided into categories of gasoline, kerosene, light fuel oil and heavy fuel oil. Allotment of each were announced for the six zones covering 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia.

Daily total allotment as assigned for the entire eastern area were 365,000 barrels of gasoline, 184,000 barrels of kerosene, 340,000 barrels of light fuel oil and 282,000 barrels of heavy fuel oil.

The breakdown of daily amounts in barrels which the petroleum administration plans to move into Central Atlantic states follows:

Zone 2—Comprised of Eastern New York, including Cayuga, Tompkins and Chenung counties; Eastern Pennsylvania, including Bradford, Sullivan, Columbia, Monteur, Northumberland, Dauphin and York counties; New Jersey and Delaware—gasoline, 134,022; kerosene, 61,842; light fuel oil, 200,668; heavy fuel oil, 159,611.

Zone 6—Comprised of parts of New York and Pennsylvania not included in zone 2, and West Virginia—gasoline, 57,011; kerosene, 9,881; light fuel oil, 9,690; heavy fuel oil, 10,124.

Mystery of Child's Body Is Cleared

Infant Died Natural Death While Riding in Car

Lynn, Mass., Dec. 23 (AP)—The mystery surrounding a Rhode Island gasoline station owner's report that a motorist showed him the body of an infant to obtain emergency gasoline Saturday night was solved today to the satisfaction of police who said the child died of natural causes in Guilford, Conn.

Police quoted Mrs. Anna Jackson, mother of 10 children, as saying that her youngest child, Lawrence, aged five months, died in an automobile in Guilford, Conn., while she was enroute to Lynn from New York where, she said, she had been deserted by her husband.

After a medical examiner pronounced death due to pneumonia, the body was placed in a casket by an undertaker for transportation to the Lynn home of Mrs. Jackson's father, Gus Daum, an old New England League ball player.

Enroute to Lynn, Mrs. Jackson related, the car, driven by a male friend of the family, stopped in Coventry to obtain gasoline, and the man was obliged to show a permit for transportation of the body to obtain an emergency supply of fuel.

The filling station owner's report that he had been shown the body in the rear trunk of the automobile touched off a search that led through several states before Mrs. Jackson cleared the mystery.

A Lynn undertaker told police that he found the death certificate and permit for transportation of the body to Massachusetts were in order, and, after obtaining a permit in this city, buried the child Monday afternoon.

record. She gave it to newsmen for publication today.

Miss Rankin, who also voted against declaring war on Germany in 1917, said "the American people are willing to struggle for the four freedoms, but we realize that we must retain them at home if we are going to give them to others."

In her own words a "Belligerent Pacifist," she reviewed at length her version of events leading to what she called President Roosevelt's change of policy after his Atlantic conference with Winston Churchill.

Japanese Is Killed

Sylvan Beach, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—A 42-year-old Japanese was fatally shot and his wife and mother were wounded critically today in the kitchen of their home in this central New York community. State Police Sergeant E. E. Stickels said a 65-year-old man was held for questioning. State police identified the victim as Kenneth Iyenaga, described as the son of the late Toyokichi Iyenaga, a retired Japanese publicist and former lecturer on political science at the University of Chicago and Columbia University. The latter was drowned December 29, 1936 in Oneida Lake.

children, Donald, 8, and Jeannette, 5 years old.

Dr. Crandall is a veterinarian and a graduate of Cornell University of the class of 1931.

Dr. Clarke, the retiring milk inspector, assumed the combined duties of sanitary and milk inspector for the Board of Health of January 1, 1915, during the administration of Parmer Canfield as mayor. He had served continuously since with the exception of the period when he was granted a leave of absence to serve with the armed forces during the first World War in 1918.

At the close of the war he returned to Kingston and resumed his duties with the health department. In late years Dr. Clarke has devoted his time to inspecting the dairies supplying the city with milk, and also the milk plants in the city.

It is largely due to the efficient work of Dr. Clarke as milk inspector that the city has been furnished with pure milk.

To Appoint Nurses

Mayor Edelmuth, who presided at the monthly session, called the board's attention that it was impossible at this time to appoint the two new public health nurses as an eligible list had not been received from the municipal civil service board.

The civil service board last week held an examination for the position. The examination was prepared by the state civil service board who is now busy marking the papers. As soon as the ratings are received by the local board from the state an eligible list will be submitted to the health board.

Mayor Edelmuth said that if he received the eligible list before the first of the year he would call a special meeting of the board to make the two appointments.

Under a new health program that is being set up in the city the first of the year the state health department is assigning three health nurses to Kingston on condition that the city employ two health nurses.

The city will be divided into five zones with a public health nurse in charge of each zone.

It is also planned to employ a part-time stenographer and a salary of $50 a month is being included in the health board budget for that purpose.

Births Exceed Deaths

The reports of the officers of the board show that during November the births exceeded the number of deaths in Kingston. There were 96 births as compared with 51 deaths reported to the board last month. In November, 1941, there were 62 births and 47 deaths recorded.

Sabian A. Myer, wife of Edward B. Myer, died Monday morning at her home in Blue Mountain. She was a faithful member of the Blue Mountain Reformed Church and of the Ladies' Aid Society and Missionary Society of that church. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Floyd W. Myer, and a daughter, Mrs. Henry A. Lamouree, both of Blue Mountain. Three grandchildren also survive. The funeral will be held from the late home on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee of the Blue Mountain Church will officiate. Burial will be in Katsbaan cemetery.

Funeral services for Nelson R. Smith, who died Saturday afternoon, were held at his home, 85 Clinton avenue, on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Smith was an elder, officiated. The services were largely attended by sorrowing relatives, friends and business associates. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes attesting to the love and esteem in which Mr. Smith was held. Interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Nathan Freer, John Van Norstrand, Harry Dederick, Robert McKittrick and Clinton Finger acted as bearers.

Castor Oil Shortage

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—This won't exempt the children, but industry has a critical shortage of castor oil. The War Production Board advised an industry group that, at the normal rate of consumption, there will be less than one month's supply of castor oil on hand in this country on January 1. Imports from South America are limited by shipping shortages.

Lost Legs Friday, Young Girl Calls It Swell Christmas

Orange, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—"This is going to be a swell Christmas," said the little girl in the hospital bed. "Look at all the presents I've got."

Yesterday she sat in her bed at Orange Memorial Hospital and watched subdued preparations for Christmas. Around her were piled Christmas presents to be opened Friday. Among them was a big, yellow-haired doll, the gift of nurses who admired her stubbon fight to live.

Outside, other children were playing in the snow and sliding on the ice but Mary appeared not to notice them.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Drury of East Orange, have been kept busy answering the doorbell to admit friends and strangers who, admiring the youngster's courage, have brought a steady stream of presents.

Among the many messages of sympathy sent her is one from a young woman who suffered similar fate, Mrs. Jessie Simpson Steward of Hackensack, who lost her legs five years ago when she fell under a train she was boarding.

"I want to help her," Mrs. Steward wrote, "because I know what she is going through. It will take courage and strength of heart for her life can never be quite normal again. If I can help her through those first few faltering steps when she is well enough for artificial legs, I want to be there."

Her father says Mary has been wonderful.

"She sits there and smiles to cheer her mother and me," he said.

But sister Peggy, six, wanted to know where Mary's legs had gone.

Seven Fliers Die In Pueblo Crash

Pueblo, Colo., Dec 23 (AP)—A four-motored Army bomber, its tail sheared off by another plane while flying in formation, plummeted to earth southeast of here yesterday, killing all seven officers and men aboard.

Public relations officers at the Pueblo air base, where the bomber was based, said the collision occurred while two Consolidated B-24's were on a routine formation flight 15 miles south of Manzanola.

The lead plane rose unexpectedly and its tail assembly was sliced away by the upper bomber's propellors. The stricken bomber crashed and burned. Five fliers aboard the second plane bailed out over a practice bombing range.

The second plane, still manned by a pilot and navigator, returned to its base.

Public relations officers said one of those who bailed out still was missing. The four others landed safely and were found.

First Lt. Gerald E. Smetts, Oakland, Calif.

Second Lt. Bliss M. Shannon, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Second Lt. Adam C. Thompson, Jr., East Hampton, N. Y.

Second Lt. Charles T. Bowen, Flushing, N. Y.

Meantime the governor issued an emergency executive order directing the state commissioner of public welfare to provide necessary services for persons affected by the fuel shortage.

Progress Is Cited By T.B. Committee

Oldest Contributor Praises Work of Association

"It is very nice to live to be 90, and still be able to give to such a worthy cause as the Tuberculosis Campaign. I certainly wish I could give more." So reported W. S. Johnson of Kingston who has been a consistent contributor to Christmas seals since the seal sale was inaugurated.

Mr. Johnson, still hale and hearty, reminisced about the Civil War. It is believed he is the oldest contributor to Christmas seals in Ulster county.

Older citizens have seen great progress during the many years since the organization of the Tuberculosis Committee in 1908 at the Kingston armory. From the first tuberculosis camp and hospital in New York state, on Clifton avenue, has come the Golden Hill Sanatorium of Ulster county, one of the finest institutions in these parts.

The death rate from Tuberculoosis in Ulster county has dropped from about 200 in 1908 to 30 per 100,000 in 1941. This saving of lives has been made possible through the efforts of those citizens of Ulster county who have always given their cooperation and full support to the tuberculosis program.

This year, because of the war, the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association is planning to expand the program in order to meet the emergency, for war always adds to the ravages of tuberculosis, or tuberculosis often adds to the ravages of war.

Poletti Urges New Governor Retain State War Council

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Governor-elect Thomas E. Dewey and the Republican legislative majority are strongly urged today to retain the State War Council, which heads New York's civilian protection army of 875,000 workers.

Governor Charles Poletti, who recommended the continuance, credited the council with a "significant contribution" to the state's war effort.

In a letter to Joe R. Hanley and Oswald D. Heck, Republican leaders of the Senate and Assembly respectively, the governor added the council "has been of tremendous assistance to the governor in the conduct of war activities."

The letter pointed out further that "the War Council has functioned on a non-partisan and non-political basis."

Poletti, who is expected to resign as state war plans coordinator, also urged that position be continued to "avoid duplication, overlapping and inefficiency," he said.

The letter accompanied the council's second annual report for transmission to the Legislature which convenes January 6.

The report showed an average enrollment of 875,000 civilian protection workers and said 182 practice blackouts and 107 daylight air raid drills have been conducted throughout the state since May 1.

More than 450,000 persons have registered in vocational schools for training war workers, the report continued, and 21,000 volunteers and paid firemen have received basic fire training in 61 county schools.

Held for Grand Jury

Robert Usher, 22, of Samsonville, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and DeWitt on a charge of burglary in the third degree. Justice Percy Bush of the town of Ulster held him for appearance before the grand jury and he was committed to the county jail.

Formula Is Given for Ways To Treat Men Home on Leave

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Here's the formula for ideal furloughs for service men, concocted by a 28-year-old former member of the R.A.F.'s American Eagle Squadron, now a U. S. army air forces ace, and his mother.

The code for parents was formulated by Maj. Carroll W. McColpin, holder of the distinguished flying cross, and Mrs. Joseph Warren McColpin. Major McColpin, credited with destroying eight enemy planes, two boats, two trains and two lorries, probably destroying a ninth plane and damaging a tenth, is home for a family reunion on Christmas Day and a two-week leave.

Heading the list of six "don'ts" and one "do," prepared by the McCoplins is an admonition against buying new furniture and gee-gaws on the alibi that you want a "nice home for him to come back to. He'll appreciate it more if you can show him the war bonds you've been buying to back him and his buddies up."

The other "don'ts," advanced to insure the kindest treatment for the family hero, are:

"Don't talk him to death." Voices, women's in particular, going on and on, may rasp the nerves of war-weary service men, used only to the companionship of a little more silent males, and the noise of battle or training maneuvers.

Don't try to plan his time for him and show him off to relatives. He's been under stern discipline; his soul craves the freedom to do as he pleases.

Don't pump him about what he's seen and done. The less the home folks know of "military secrets," the less carefully they'll have to guard their tongues. Besides, the fellow on leave wants to forget all that for awhile.

Don't lecture him. He's on his own now and could teach you a thing or two about how to take care of yourself. And don't tell him about the other boys on the block who've gotten promotions faster than he has.

In a positive way, Mrs. McColpin believes, the best procedure is to "let him have a good time in his own way."

Light Rains, Snow Raise Temperature

Bring Relief After Week of Sub-Zero Weather

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Welcome light rains and snow boosted New York temperatures to between 26 and 36 degrees above zero today and turned into slush the ice-coating on highways that delayed traffic during the night.

The general sporadic precipitation brought the first full relief from the cold wave that shot thermometers to record sub-zero lows earlier in the week.

The frigid snap was followed last night by freezing rain which glazed highways and tied up motor vehicle travel. At Hamburg, Erie county, a bus and several automobiles slid into ditches. No one was hurt. Travelers between Nyack and New York city were delayed two hours by icy roads. Buses were reported unable to negotiate some grades for the same reason.

In Westchester and Putnam counties police said the freezing rain caused worse traffic conditions than the 1940 "silver freeze" which left that area varnished by ice.

The thermometer in that area hovered about 31 degrees as the storm set in. Traffic disappeared from the highways almost instantly with many cars abandoned on the roadsides.

Westchester county parkway police and state police both reported it was unnecessary to close parkways as motorists "were stopping themselves."

Sanding crews were busy but, observers said, as soon as the sand was spread it was covered with ice, the crews working in vain.

State police said the icy condition prevailed northwards to Dutchess county.

Exchanging holiday greetings by telephone is a cherished custom, but this year . . . because war needs the wires . . . we ask you:

Please don't use "Long Distance" for Christmas Greetings

WAR TAKES NO HOLIDAYS. Long Distance telephone lines that once carried your Christmas messages to far-away friends and relatives are now overloaded with calls having to do with the grim business of war.

More lines to carry more calls cannot be built because of wartime shortages of copper and other materials.

That is why we ask you not to make Long Distance calls during the holidays—especially on Christmas Eve or Day. War calls must come first. No one would want to interfere with the swift delivery of such urgent messages, nor stand in the way of someone in the armed forces who might have a chance to say Merry Christmas to the folks back home.

Your cooperation will help enormously. For the help you have already given in clearing the lines for war calls, many thanks . . . and . . .

Merry Christmas

Senator McNary Predicts Unity to Fight Waste and Bureaucracy in Washington

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Senate minority leader McNary (R.-Ore.) predicted today that Republican and Democratic advocates of economy in government would join forces in the next session of congress to combat "waste and bureaucracy."

With Republicans elected to 209 of the 435 House seats, and 38 out of 96 seats in the Senate, the party's lawmakers expect to have a powerful voice in legislative affairs and already are counting on Democratic support in some issues.

"The Republican party in the next session of congress will join with those Democrats who desire to eliminate wastefulness in government expenditures, practice economy in the administration of public affairs, and avoid unnecessary controls and bureaucracy," McNary declared in an interview.

"It will support fervently and faithfully the prosecution of the war, to the end that we may have a complete victory with a minimum expenditure of men and money."

The 1940 vice-presidential nominee, who seldom talks for publication when off the senate floor, spoke freely as he outlined his general goals for the coming session.

Discussions of peace are "not without pertinence" even now, he declared.

"Debatable and important questions can be clarified by debate," he said. "Of course no application can be made of any pattern that is agreed upon, until after the war is won.

"The Republican party realizes the responsibility of our country in the matter of negotiation and settlement of just terms of peace and the future maintenance of peace and security.

We will be found advocating those principles that are essential to sustaining the home and hearthstone, the American market, the American standard of living.

"However, the party will advocate leadership in world affairs for this country, associated with countries and in a spirit of generosity, without scattering the nation's resources wastefully throughout the world."

"The effectiveness of our war effort is not to be measured alone by the number of enlisted men," he declared. "There are other factors of equal importance, such as sufficient manpower on the farms and in the factories of our country. Balanced manpower is essential.

"An army in dimensions beyond the ability of civilian support would be disastrous."

In 1900, persons 45 years of age or older comprised one-sixteenth of the U. S. population; today they number one-fourth.

Farm War Bond Month in January In New York State

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22—January will be "Farm War Bond Month" throughout the state, it was announced here today by Carl C. Camenga, deputy administrator for agriculture of the New York War Savings staff.

The selection of the first month of the new year to acquaint New York's 153,000 farm families with the advantage of increasing their investments in War Bonds was decided upon after a series of meetings of the New York Agricultural Committee on War Savings.

The meetings were held at the State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, and were presided over by Dr. William I. Myers, head of the College's Department of Agricultural Economics, and consultant to the Treasury Department's New York War Savings staff and member of its executive committee.

The campaign will be sponsored in the 56 agricultural counties of the state by the various county agricultural defense committees, and a series of meetings will be held from January 4 to 9.

Plans will be made to suit each individual county, and, in addition to the agricultural defense committee, those in attendance will include the chairman of the vocational agricultural group, the key banker of the county, and the county chairman of the New York War Savings committee.

In commenting on the campaign, Dr. Myers urged farmers to follow a three-fold war time program by raising all the necessary food possible, getting their debts in shape by reducing excessive obligations to a safe basis, and to invest in War Bonds to the limit of their ability to build up financial reserves.

Pointing out that the moving picture industry recently conducted a successful Bond Month drive, Mr. Camenga said "it seems fitting that agriculture should follow suit."

"America today is fighting a war on four fronts," he continued. "These are the battle front, the munitions front, the food front and the dollar front. The farmer alone can win the food front and he must help win the dollar front."

Dr. Myers is chairman of the New York State Agricultural Committee on War Savings; Dr. Van B. Hart, extension professor of farm management at the State College of Agriculture, is secretary, and other members include:

Also, N. A. Jamba, of Norwich, chairman of the Agricultural committee of the New York State Bankers Association; A. L. Gillett, of Springfield, Mass., general agent Farm Credit Administration; A. K. Getman, of Albany, chief of the State Bureau of Agricultural Education; E. R. Eastman, of Ithaca, editor of the American Agriculturist, and Dwight T. Corwin, of Riverhead, president of the Long Island Cauliflower Association.

Two Accidents Are Reported in City

Buses, Taxis Find Going Too Slippery for Comfort

As a result of the glare of ice that covered the city last night two automobile accidents, in which two persons were injured, but not seriously, were reported to the police department. One crash was at 5:35 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the other at 5:45 o'clock this morning.

The official thermometer at the city hall at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning recorded a low of one degree below zero, while at 11 o'clock that night the thermometer read 31 degrees above zero. At 9 o'clock this morning a reading of 32 degrees above zero was recorded.

Rain began falling in mid-afternoon yesterday, and continued throughout the night. The rain froze as fast as it fell, and the streets and sidewalks became a glare of ice. Traffic was forced to proceed at snail's pace through the streets, and the hills were so slippery that cars without chains were unable to proceed. The sanding crews were ordered out as soon as ice conditions began to prevail.

As rain continued to fall throughout the night it was found necessary to resand the streets several times in order to make it possible for traffic to proceed.

Last night some of the taxi concerns ceased operations as it was reported that the drivers found it impossible to control their cars which slid all over the street.

Buses Stop Running

The city bus lines also found going difficult and at 10:30 o'clock were forced to suspend operations on the Belt line and half an hour later operations on the Hasbrouck avenue line were halted.

The Broadway line, while it ran until midnight as usual, from 10:30 o'clock on omitted operating on the Broadway hill and the buses were run only as far as Delaware avenue, as it was not considered safe to send them down the slippery descent.

Two Are Injured

The two persons injured were Mrs. Florence Linn, 26, of Van Keuren road and her daughter, Carol Ann, 3½ years old. Mrs. Linn suffered cuts about the head and knees while the little girl was badly shaken up and bruised, when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision with one of the trucks of the Kingston Coal Company on Albany avenue at the intersection of Wrentham street.

Louis Linn, Jr., in reporting the crash to the police department stated he was driving south over Albany avenue at 5:35 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when the coal truck swung left from Albany avenue into Wrentham street and crashed into his automobile. Both machines were damaged. The coal truck was operated by James P. Gallo of R. F. D. 1, Kingston.

This morning at 5:45 o'clock an auto operated by Arthur E. Christian of 69 Elmendorf street crashed into a parked truck owned by Knaust Brothers of Coxsackie in front of 228 Elmendorf street. No personal injuries were reported but both machines were damaged.

Rural Pastor Is Called Upstate

The Rev. W. K. Haysom Will Go to Amsterdam

The Rev. Wilhelm K. Haysom who has served as pastor of the Bloomington Reformed Church for the past four years, has accepted a call to the Amsterdam Reformed Church and will take over his new charge on January 3.

Since coming to Ulster county the Rev. Mr. Haysom has been active in young peoples work and has been an ardent worker in the Christian Endeavor Union. He has been active in civic matters and was one of the organizers of and has served as chief of the newly formed Bloomington Fire Department. In civilian defense work he has been active and has served as an air raid warden in the village of Bloomington. For the past two years he has served as president of the Kingston Model Railroad Club.

Kingston Bus Is Struck By Truck Near Monroe

Miss Harriet C. St. John, who left New York at 5:45 Tuesday night, by bus and arrived at her home, 56 Linderman avenue, at 10:45 this morning knows by personal experience that travel over the icy roads late yesterday afternoon and last night was in the nature of an adventure.

The bus, which was due in Kingston at 9 o'clock last night, had got as far as a point between Monroe and Washingtonville about one o'clock, when it was struck by a skidding milk truck and its motor put out of commission. Passengers were taken by taxi to Walden and late this morning a bus brought them into Kingston.

Nuzzo Says Cash Was for Expenses

Union's Organizational Business Necessitated Fund Withdrawal

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo, former business agent, declared in Supreme Court today $6,000 he withdrew in cash from the general fund of Local 17, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (A.F.L.), in January, 1941, was spent for "organizational expenses."

Most of it went to pay pickets who protected members of Local 17 working on a $300,000,000 New York city water supply project during a jurisdictional battle with Local 147, a New York city affiliate of the same union, he added. Nuzzo is charged with misappropriating funds of Local 17.

Nuzzo admitted the money was withdrawn a few days before he left to attend a union convention, but claimed he made the convention trip on $500 or $600 "of my own savings." A $500 item listed on union records as "convention expense," he asserted, was a check he ordered written to pay Andrew Zawalick, also known as Jack Wallace, of Newark, N. J., an assistant business agent of Local 17 recuperating in Florida from injuries suffered at a union dinner in New York city late in 1940.

Zawalick was drawing a salary of $100 a week from Local 17, Nuzzo said, but the additional $500 was ordered for him by James Bove, international union vice-president.

Nuzzo denied testimony he gave an extraordinary Orange county grand jury, claiming he had never taken $200 from the union's death benefit fund for his own use. Shown grand jury minutes containing an admission that he had taken the sum, he said, "I don't remember what I told the grand jury."

The former union executive had maintained he spent $707.49 in union funds for office equipment, although shown in court an automobile finance company receipt for the amount.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Good recoveries were sprinkled over the stock market ticker today but many leaders failed to make much of a come-back impression on the winding tape.

The usual pre-holiday considerations, including the lightening of commitments by those who plan to extend the Christmas recess to Monday, handicapped some favorites while tax offerings again impeded progress elsewhere. Peace stocks seemed to do a bit better than others as the war news remained optimistic. Short covering, on the idea a rally might be in the offing aided certain issues, as did individual business developments.

Large blocks of low and medium-priced issues came out at the start but volume slackened later. The trend was irregularly higher near the fourth hour.

Bonds were steady and commodities a shade mixed.

In the stock division new peaks for 1942 were posted for Chrysler, Firestone and Standard Oil (N.J.) among others. Ahead at intervals were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Anaconda Wire & Cable, American Can and U. S. Gypsum. Lagging tendencies were shown by Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, American Telephone, Kennecott, Boeing, Goodrich and Woolworth.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 22 (AP)—One woman was killed and six other employes were injured today in an explosion at the Winchester Repeating Arms Company. The dead woman was identified by company officials as Mrs. Beatrice Simpson of New Haven.

Eastern Seaboard Is Split Into 6 Allotment Zones

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The petroleum thirsty eastern seaboard was split into six zones of allotment of petroleum products under a program set up for the remainder of December, the Regional Office of Petroleum Administrator for war announced today.

Gasoline and heavy and light fuel oil supplies remained marginal throughout the eastern area, the office reported. It added the opinion that the tight situation would be met under the various rationing plans and the cooperation of motorists and fuel users.

Under the new rationing program petroleum requirements were divided into categories of gasoline, kerosene, light fuel oil and heavy fuel oil. Allotment of each were announced for the six zones covering 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia.

Daily total allotment as assigned for the entire eastern area were 365,000 barrels of gasoline, 184,000 barrels of kerosene, 340,000 barrels of light fuel oil and 282,000 barrels of heavy fuel oil.

The breakdown of daily amounts in barrels which the petroleum administration plans to move into Central Atlantic states follows:

Zone 2—Comprised of Eastern New York, including Cayuga, Tompkins and Chenung counties; Eastern Pennsylvania, including Bradford, Sullivan, Columbia, Monteur, Northumberland, Dauphin and York counties; New Jersey and Delaware—gasoline, 134,022; kerosene, 61,842; light fuel oil, 200,668; heavy fuel oil, 159,611.

Zone 6—Comprised of parts of New York and Pennsylvania not included in zone 2, and West Virginia—gasoline, 57,011; kerosene, 9,881; light fuel oil, 9,690; heavy fuel oil, 10,124.

Mystery of Child's Body Is Cleared

Lynn, Mass., Dec. 23 (AP)—The mystery surrounding a Rhode Island gasoline station owner's report that a motorist showed him the body of an infant to obtain emergency gasoline Saturday night was solved today to the satisfaction of police who said the child died of natural causes in Guilford, Conn.

Police quoted Mrs. Anna Jackson, mother of 10 children, as saying that her youngest child, Lawrence, aged five months, died in an automobile in Guilford, Conn., while she was enroute to Lynn from New York where, she said, she had been deserted by her husband.

After a medical examiner pronounced death due to pneumonia, the body was placed in a casket by an undertaker for transportation to the Lynn home of Mrs. Jackson's father, Gus Daum, an old New England League ball player.

Enroute to Lynn, Mrs. Jackson related, the car, driven by a male friend of the family, stopped in Coventry to obtain gasoline, and the man was obliged to show a permit for transportation of the body to obtain an emergency supply of fuel.

The filling station owner's report that he had been shown the body in the rear trunk of the automobile touched off a search that led through several states before Mrs. Jackson cleared the mystery.

A Lynn undertaker told police that he found the death certificate and permit for transportation of the body to Massachusetts were in order, and, after obtaining a permit in this city, buried the child Monday afternoon.

record. She gave it to newsmen for publication today.

Miss Rankin, who also voted against declaring war on Germany in 1917, said "the American people are willing to struggle for the four freedoms, but we realize that we must retain them at home if we are going to give them to others."

In her own words a "Belligerent Pacifist," she reviewed at length her version of events leading to what she called President Roosevelt's change of policy after his Atlantic conference with Winston Churchill.

Japanese Is Killed

Sylvan Beach, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—A 42-year-old Japanese was fatally shot and his wife and mother were wounded critically today in the kitchen of their home in this central New York community. State Police Sergeant E. E. Stickels said a 65-year-old man was held for questioning. State police identified the victim as Kenneth Iyenaga, described as the son of the late Toyokichi Iyenaga, a retired Japanese publicist and former lecturer on political science at the University of Chicago and Columbia University. The latter was drowned December 29, 1936 in Oneida Lake.

children, Donald, 8, and Jeannette, 5 years old.

Dr. Crandall is a veterinarian and a graduate of Cornell University of the class of 1931.

Dr. Clarke, the retiring milk inspector, assumed the combined duties of sanitary and milk inspector for the Board of Health of January 1, 1915, during the administration of Parmer Canfield as mayor. He had served continuously since with the exception of the period when he was granted a leave of absence to serve with the armed forces during the first World War in 1918.

At the close of the war he returned to Kingston and resumed his duties with the health department. In late years Dr. Clarke has devoted his time to inspecting the dairies supplying the city with milk, and also the milk plants in the city.

It is largely due to the efficient work of Dr. Clarke as milk inspector that the city has been furnished with pure milk.

To Appoint Nurses

Mayor Edelmuth, who presided at the monthly session, called the board's attention that it was impossible at this time to appoint the two new public health nurses as an eligible list had not been received from the municipal civil service board.

The civil service board last week held an examination for the position. The examination was prepared by the state civil service board who is now busy marking the papers. As soon as the ratings are received by the local board from the state an eligible list will be submitted to the health board.

Mayor Edelmuth said that if he received the eligible list before the first of the year he would call a special meeting of the board to make the two appointments.

Under a new health program that is being set up in the city the first of the year the state health department is assigning three health nurses to Kingston on condition that the city employ two health nurses.

The city will be divided into five zones with a public health nurse in charge of each zone.

It is also planned to employ a part-time stenographer and a salary of $50 a month is being included in the health board budget for that purpose.

Births Exceed Deaths

The reports of the officers of the board show that during November the births exceeded the number of deaths in Kingston. There were 96 births as compared with 51 deaths reported to the board last month. In November, 1941, there were 62 births and 47 deaths recorded.

Sabian A. Myer, wife of Edward B. Myer, died Monday morning at her home in Blue Mountain. She was a faithful member of the Blue Mountain Reformed Church and of the Ladies' Aid Society and Missionary Society of that church. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Floyd W. Myer, and a daughter, Mrs. Henry A. Lamouree, both of Blue Mountain. Three grandchildren also survive. The funeral will be held from the late home on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee of the Blue Mountain Church will officiate. Burial will be in Katsbaan cemetery.

Funeral services for Nelson R. Smith, who died Saturday afternoon, were held at his home, 85 Clinton avenue, on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Smith was an elder, officiated. The services were largely attended by sorrowing relatives, friends and business associates. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes attesting to the love and esteem in which Mr. Smith was held. Interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Nathan Freer, John Van Norstrand, Harry Dederick, Robert McKittrick and Clinton Finger acted as bearers.

Castor Oil Shortage

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—This won't exempt the children, but industry has a critical shortage of castor oil. The War Production Board advised an industry group that, at the normal rate of consumption, there will be less than one month's supply of castor oil on hand in this country on January 1. Imports from South America are limited by shipping shortages.

Lost Legs Friday, Young Girl Calls It Swell Christmas

Orange, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—"This is going to be a swell Christmas," said the little girl in the hospital bed. "Look at all the presents I've got."

Yesterday she sat in her bed at Orange Memorial Hospital and watched subdued preparations for Christmas. Around her were piled Christmas presents to be opened Friday. Among them was a big, yellow-haired doll, the gift of nurses who admired her stubbon fight to live.

Outside, other children were playing in the snow and sliding on the ice but Mary appeared not to notice them.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Drury of East Orange, have been kept busy answering the doorbell to admit friends and strangers who, admiring the youngster's courage, have brought a steady stream of presents.

Among the many messages of sympathy sent her is one from a young woman who suffered similar fate, Mrs. Jessie Simpson Steward of Hackensack, who lost her legs five years ago when she fell under a train she was boarding.

"I want to help her," Mrs. Steward wrote, "because I know what she is going through. It will take courage and strength of heart for her life can never be quite normal again. If I can help her through those first few faltering steps when she is well enough for artificial legs, I want to be there."

Her father says Mary has been wonderful.

"She sits there and smiles to cheer her mother and me," he said.

But sister Peggy, six, wanted to know where Mary's legs had gone.

GREW ON JAPAN

If anybody should know the Japanese, it is Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Tokyo for many years, whose newly published "Report from Tokyo" tells of his experiences. He is firm on one point: "There is not sufficient room in the area of the Pacific Ocean for a peaceful America, for any and all of the United Nations, and for a swashbuckling Japan."

To cure this swashbuckling, there is but one remedy.

"The Japanese military machine and military caste and military system must be utterly crushed; their credit and predominance must be utterly broken. Only when the Japanese military machine is rendered physically impotent, physically incapable of carrying on its far-flung campaign of crushing and conquering and enslaving those who fall beneath the wheels of the ruthless and utterly pitiless car of Juggernaut, only then will the Japanese people as a whole come to the realization that crime does not pay, that they have been forced to follow false gods, and that the ways of peace are in all respects preferable to the ways of war."

In doing this, the United States will not merely be making itself secure. It will be doing a service to the whole civilized world.

JOB FOR VESUVIUS

With the R.A.F. getting so rambunctious around Naples, and making it regular procedure to bomb that city and its suburbs, some Americans wonder why the British don't make a real job of it by bombing old Vesuvius and letting him finish the business. That classic volcano ought to be capable of such collaboration, if properly handled. It broke loose once long ago, on its own initiative, and poured out over the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum, flooding them with red-hot lava until they were obliterated. Anyone who wants tremendous details can find them in Bulwer-Lytton's famous story.

That old lava stream, which Vesuvius poured forth on his own initiative, flowed so far toward Naples that the people were panic-stricken, fearing they would be overwhelmed. They escaped that time with a fiery rain of cinders which did considerable damage. The boiling mountain hasn't accomplished much in recent times, in spite of half-hearted efforts to go on a rampage in 1906 and 1929. But it is evident that the old fire-spouter is uneasy, and might be aroused to an effort worthy of the occasion. A few four-ton bombs dropped by warplanes into its seething depth might produce notable results. It would be a pity in some ways. The location of Naples, seven miles from Vesuvius, is very beautiful, and the city is full of history.

LAW AND THE NAZIS

International law is apparently another war casualty.

Until this war, the rules of national action received at least lip service from the German government. In 1914-18 that government committed many acts condemned by the moral sentiment of the world. Chief among them were the violation of Belgian neutrality and the adoption of unlimited submarine warfare. In both cases Germany took great pains to justify herself, alleging previous British violation of international law, or twisting her actions so that they might seem to conform to the standards set by civilized nations.

All this is a thing of the past. Hitler has manifested his contempt for international law in no way more strikingly than by his complete silence about it. His many speeches give no indication that such a code ever existed. Might is the one standard recognized, legal right is nowhere.

International law was a feeble plant at best. It is doubtful whether it can survive its rough treatment from the Nazis.

WAR-TIME LOYALTY

There is both interest and instruction in the first big sedition case tried during this war. It is the case of William Dudley Pelley and two co-defendants, whose conviction has been affirmed in Chicago by the U. S. Court of Appeals. The term "sedition" may be understood by laymen as applying to offenses which are of the same general nature as treason, but not quite so serious. The court's language serves as clarification of this crime, and also as a warning.

"No loyal citizen, in time of war," says the court, "forecasts or assumes doom and defeat and the futility of his country's fight."

Any such assumption of defeat can be taken as "an intent to retard patriotic ardor in a course approved by Congress and the citizenry of the nation," and "in time of war, when success depends on unified national effort, abiding loyalty and unremitting patriotism, one who broadcasts falsely, as verities, misstatements of the country's continued failure in battle, asserts that it is destitute of defenses, is bankrupt, that it has prejudiced and incompetent leadership, and extols the virtues of the enemy, cannot successfully challenge the verdict of a jury which found him guilty."

Any wavering citizen who carefully reads this statement a couple of times should get the point and conduct himself accordingly.

Whether anything is a good idea or not, the Japs stick to it.

There is no truth to the rumor that walking may be rationed.

HEADACHE AND OTHER SYMPTOMS

At a medical convention a year ago, several eye specialists stated that headache was not commonly caused by poor eyesight. This information was passed on to readers because many of us had thought that poor eyesight not corrected by glasses was a frequent cause of headache.

That pain on both sides of the head (not on one side only) may, however, be due to some eye condition is stated by Dr. A. D. Ruedemann, Cleveland, in the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society. Such a patient is entitled to a study of muscle balance. That is, the muscles that turn the eyes in various directions may not be balanced properly, one or other being stronger or weaker than the others. It can readily be seen that if strain is put on one or other of the muscles, headache may result.

Then the vision itself for reading and for distance should be tested. Tension and poor vision may cause pain in front and sides of the forehead, together with slight dizziness and sometimes nausea.

"Errors of vision and lack of muscle balance is almost certain to cause distress, including pain, irritability, fatigue, weight loss and nausea."

Another point mentioned by Dr. Ruedemann is that near-sighted or shortsighted people do not have headache unless the eyes are of unequal strength or unless they are abusing their eyes. Their difficulties lie in exposure to bright light and in looking long distances out-of-doors. Farsighted people are apt to have frontal headache which is present almost daily in the afternoon or evening.

Eye disturbance may be due to some general condition such as lack of thyroid juice or lack of vitamin A.

Before entering school, every child should have the vision tested under atropine to recognize and treat early cases of weak eyes.

"The girl with the nervous breakdown, the inattentive child, the convalescent patient with headaches who reads in bed, these and many others may have faulty, poor, or deficient eye muscle strength. They may require exercises, surgery, glasses, or all three."

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

For the first time in the history of Kingston Sunday movies were shown in the local theatres on Sunday, December 2, 1928. At the November election the voters of the city had approved the showing of Sunday movies in the city after a hot political battle between those opposed and those in favor of the Sunday showings.

Leafing back the pages of the city's history to December 1, 1908, the new Central Fire Station on East O'Reilly street was opened It is interesting to recall that the Ulster County Auto Club was also active that year and at the anaual meeting on December 14, Philip Elting was re-elected president.

William A. Van Valkenburgh, one of the active members of the Central Business Men's Association on December 3, 1918, was appointed alderman of the Ninth ward by Mayor Palmer Canfield to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alderman Charles E. Powell. Former Alderman Powell now resides at Mt. Tremper but is a frequent Kingston visitor.

I recall that on December 14, 1928, the Kingston High School Athletic Association presented "Clarence" a comedy by Booth Tarkington as its annual offering. Included in the cast were Laura Pratt, Sherwood Lasher, Folorita Rist, Walter Donnaruma, Frances Finn, Vivian Klothe, John Mohr, Janet Story, Jerome Aley, Robert Strickland and Louisa Toms.

The play that year was coached by Miss Ann Byrnes.

The year 1928 also marked th advent in Kingston of the Seventh Day Adventists, a religious organization, which, in November of that year, bought a lot on Downs street, just off Broadway, on which to erect a tabernacle for religious services.

Previous to that time there had been no special meetings of that religious body in the city, although several Kingston residents were members of the Adventists.

With sub-zero weather prevailing in Kingston a few days before Christmas I recall the winters in the days before the first World War in 1918, that horse racing was a popular sport on the Rondout creek ice.

It was the custom each winter to stretch a big wooden boom across the creek several hundred feet from the channel kept open for the ferry Skillypot. This boom prevented the ice in the upper creek from being broken up and floating down in the channel kept open not only for the Skillypot but the ferry Transport.

Older readers will recall both old ferries. The Skillypot was junked shortly after the opening of the present Rondout Creek Bridge, while the Transport is being remodeled into a stake boat for the Cornell Line.

Hunter's Hobby Is Coyotes

Butte, Mont. (AP)—Vernon Lammin, 22, whose hobby is stalking coyotes on western rangelands, has killed more than 200 of them in four years. That's a high score for a veteran hunter; still better a fellow who started when he was 18 years old. Recently Lammin shot 14 coyotes in 14 days. He uses a .270 caliber rifle with telescopic sight, a pair of binoculars and a hunting knife. Unlike many other hunters who spot their prey by airplane or from an automobile, Lammin stalks his coyotes on foot. It's much more difficult to get within shooting range on foot. Besides the fun he has had from his hobby, Lammin says he has sold each of the pelts for an average of $10.

STONE RIDGE

The Stone Ridge School presented a Christmas program on Thursday evening at the Reformed Church basement. Those taking part were: Patricia Ham, Fred Linnartz, Inez Bockelman, Mary Van Dermark, Bobby Laware, Frank Arra, Betty and Martha Bell North, Lillian Larsen, Aldeane Lounsbery and Betty Stokes. The Kat Von Jammer band supplied the music. At the close of the program Uncle Sam came and sold bonds and stamps to the amount of $225 in bonds and $35.40 in stamps.

The annual Christmas program of the Methodist Sunday School will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock at the church. There will be special music by the junior choir. Selections will be played by Marilyn Dudley and Charles Gerwin, of Atwood. The following children will take part: Janet Mack, John Mack, Beverly Davenport, Martha Davenport, Melvin Lockwood, Marie Delamater, Francis Bishop, Janice Howard, Ruth Laurence, Joyce Laurence, Wanda Pacoby, Jean Osterhoudt, Burton Delamater, Norton Laurence, Jimmy Sickler and Raymond Bishop. Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"The Wisdom of China and India," by Lin Yutang.

Barring something unexpected, the last anthology to be published before Christmas will be Lin Yutang's "The Wisdom of China and India." It is fortunate that it also is one of the best the year has produced—and it has produced an absurdly large number, too. This would be called "the year of the pickers of other people's brains," or something similar, if we lived in the Orient.

Dr. Lin has worked a long time to sort out the truly great writing of India and China, to select the best translations, and to translate again those with which he was dissatisfied. This proceeding is given in remrarkable unity by a number of things, the most important of which is Dr. Lin's personality and brain. He is a balanced man, and his own books have proved many times. His taste is catholic, and at the same time fastidious, by which I mean that he is just as capable of choosing the best from some of the ribald verse of China as he is to select from the loftier product of Confucius or Indian religious writing.

Naively, Dr. Lin declares that he has placed the section on India first in his book because of Chinese courtesy. There is another reason, however, which is that for him India is the one land in which religion and philosophy are an interlocked concept, and India has taught China many things. More peculiarly, India has also been the source of a great many western folk tales, even some of Aesop's fables.

Yet consciously or otherwise, the anthologist has made the Chinese section far and away the more interesting of the two. Possibly it is not all his doing—Chinese ethical concepts are not identical with ours, but they are much nearer our mind than those of India. Chinese humor also approaches ours more closely, and some of the satirical poetry in the Chinese section has a modern flavor—almost an Esquire flavor.

There is one disadvantage that even Dr. Lin has not been able to overcome, however. It is the difficulty of putting into English a language constructed as Chinese is—not always, but often, the result is a set of cliches.

Mistakes on Home Front Need Something of Strategy Employed by High Command in Field

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 22—Mistakes in the field of strategy and operations are quickly surveyed by the high command so as to prevent their recurrence, but mistakes made here on the home front in the handling of the production and distribution of war weapons are difficult to ascertain because of the necessary censorship that must prevail in wartime.

Congressional committees have sought to find out wherein mistakes have been made so as to stimulate remedial action, but even these committees cannot possibly get the background needed for an imperial and objective survey. Yet today the United Nations are suffering severe handicaps because of the maldistribution of weapons and the lack of a balanced program.

In America, the statisticians figured out astronomical goals and insisted that these could be attained. Practical production men shook their heads but they were called pessimists or old facts. As a consequence the entire production program has been out of balance for several months and is only now getting into a stride that looks feasible.

It is a military secret just what per cent of the original goals set for 1943 will be reached, just as the figures for 1942 production are withheld, but it is apparent now that the sights were set too high and that a general revision has been in progress.

But what of the damage done by such an unbalanced program? What of the wastage of materials in making weapons that cannot be used for months while weapons that can be used right away are delayed? What battles have been lost and what offensives have been delayed because of such delays? The public will never know because there appears at present no way to check on the mistakes made by the men serving in the war agencies who persuaded the president to order the programs that have been in effect for a large part of 1942.

Some of the bright young men with a statistical bent thought they knew more about industrial production capacity than the men who had spent their lives in it. Fallacious reasons were offered, suggesting that the industrialists didn't want to expand too fast for fear of bringing about an after-the-war glut. Yet the practical men have been proved right, for many of the plants which were ordered have had to be cancelled and much of the material needed in the building of those plants has had to be diverted to the more immediate needs of the war program.

Increases in capacity have been made, some of expansion of existing plants and some by adding plants, but on the whole the job has not been permitted to interfere with the distribution of materials for current operations.

There are some fields, however, in which productions has had to be curtailed, and the public explanation usually is that materials are lacking. The truth is the goals were too high, and some weapons cannot possibly be finished because of shortages that might well have been foreseen if a practical goal had been properly visualized.

The tendency to assume that American industry needs a prod and that there's no harm in setting a high goal is a dangerous one. Industrial executives work on specific orders, and if someone in Washington tells them to produce 1,000 of any particular weapons, they'll do it and not question the fact that some other weapon made by somebody else will have to suffer delay or perhaps failure altogether to reach the goal set.

It may be surprising, but much of the fuss about the civilian and military striving for control over the production program is not a reflection of the real issue at all. The army and navy make the contracts, and unless the joint chiefs of staffs set a definite goal that is practicable, each division of the armed services will seek to get as much of any weapon made as possible. There is more coordination now under the war production board and the whole program is in better shape than it has been. But there is still a lack of realism as to what can or cannot be accomplished, and too much valuable time has been lost in determining a feasible program of needs.

Too much has, for instance, gone to air power and not enough to escort ships—and unless the cargoes of fuel and food and spare parts reach the overseas bases, the airplanes cannot get up in the sky from the runways. Too much of our production lies at the bottom of the ocean. This sort of unbalanced situation is still in need of attention lest the mistakes being made result in an unnecessarily prolonged war, with heavier sacrifices of lives than in necessary.

Washington, Dec. 23—The battle on the home front doesn't go so well. The rationing difficulties are merely symptomatic of a deeper dilemma—the lack of a sound relationship between the people and their government.

In business, this is usually called bad public relations. In government, it is sometimes described as the result of unfavorable criticism, or misunderstanding of the official acts to which complaint is directed.

The truth is hardships are here, and many more are coming before the war ends, and yet the biggest and most vital factor in getting civilian cooperation is missing. One reason, of course, is that too much information has been withheld as to the basic need for rationing of particular commodities. The censorship is given as the customary explanation.

If, for instance, the statistics on supply were available, the enemy would know what America lacked. But this advantage might be outweighed by the stimulus that would be given to programs of voluntary cooperation. Certainly the subscription by the American people of $10,000,000,000 in the December war bond drive is an example of what the public can do when it fully understands the need. The expense of the war production program has been well explained, and hence the sale of bonds has been correspondingly well accomplished.

But when it comes to curtailment of commodities the explanation is not so simple. Unfortunately the administration relies too much on the idea that because it says rationing is necessary, everybody will believe it and cooperate at once. The administering of the programs for rationing has been made more difficult because of a rather widespread distrust directed at Washington administrators, so many of whom only yesterday were associated with New Deal ideas of social reform and punitive measures of class friction. It is very difficult indeed to persuade observers of American economic life, when they hear of inefficiency and incompetence and efforts in Washington to cloak socialistic purposes under war programs, that appeals for rationing are based on strictly war necessity. There has been too much juggling of statistics in the New Deal and too much emphasis given to the New Dealers themselves in the handling of rationing programs. The customary excuse is that practical business men have been consulted, but if one digs a bit into it one finds that the theorist and certain radical college professors usually have had a large part in formulating the program.

The effort to carry on the New Deal despite the war is responsible for the distrust that is making it difficult to establish better public relations for the rationing programs. The same men who have been associated with the President in his campaign against the management class since 1933 have been given posts of responsibility and some of these men simply do not have the confidence of a substantial segment of the public opinion-forming group.

The last election brought a vote of disapproval which was aimed at the New Deal clique of young theorists who have loaded the country down with red tape schemes and formulas that have produced widespread skepticism as to whether the objective is or is not as outlined.

Such impressions are, of course, not a reflection of the basic purpose at all—which is to synchronize the home front with the needs of the war front. If nobody else can be found to administer the programs of rationing which require public support except the present group of officials, then it would seem that a program of candor might be of constructive help.

Even if some of the figures have been taboo, their publication would do America more good than they would give comfort to the enemy. Rumors, for instance, about our heavy submarine losses are current and the Axis radio broadcasters insist that twice as much tonnage is being sunk than last year—their estimate for 1942 being close to 7,500,000 tons. If anywhere near this amount is being lost, then it is important that the gravity of the situation be outlined, so that Americans may face the issue together as a unified people and not as pro or anti-Socialist reformers.

The need for restriction must be plainly outlined by commissions and boards comprised of men in whom the country has absolute faith—that's one way to bring about better public relations for the rationing programs on the home front.

PORT EWEN

The Christmas entertainment by the Sunday School of the Methodist Church will be given in the church hall tonight. Among those taking part are: Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Miss Betty Schweigel, Vincent Fairbrother, Sonny Rodder, Bobby Coutant, Lillian Woolsey, Miss Joan Rose, Miss Florence Clark, Mary Lee, and Mrs. Burlin Winchell's class will give a play. At the close of the entertainment the toy makers will help Santa Claus distribute gifts to the children of the school, from the well loaded Christmas tree.

This evening at 7:30, there will be a full rehearsal of the pageant "Unto Us is Born a Savior," which is to be presented by the young people of the Reformed Church on Sunday evening December 27. As this is to be the final rehearsal, everyone taking part is requested to be present.

The Senior and Intermediate Christian Endeavor societies will go "caroling" on Christmas Eve. Those wishing to go should be at the Reformed Church at 8 o'clock Thursday evening.

Salvation Army Appeals

The Salvation Army is making its annual appeal to provide Christmas Cheer (and winter relief) to the needy of this community. Once more our citizens have an opportunity to bring a bit of happiness into otherwise dreary lives. Public relief has done much to alleviate material want, but even so there are places where public relief cannot reach. The officers of The Salvation Army here know intimately these fellow-Americans in deepest need. They are also cooperating with other relief agencies of the community in order to avoid duplicate effort. Your gift will be gladly received and wisely dispensed. Send it to The Salvation Army, 186 Green street.

Niles Piano Pupils Heard In Recital

On Saturday afternoon, Miss Mildred Niles entertained at her home, 222 Elmendorf street, for her class of piano pupils at an informal recital and Christmas party. The selections were well received by the parents and friends present. At the close of the recital, a social hour was enjoyed.

The program included: "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere" by Mrs. Beatrice Davis; "My Dream of Little Boy Blue" by Arthur Davis. Miss Jean Winfield sang "Lollypop Parade" and "Dark Eyes." She was accompanied by Miss Ann Berenice Keating and Miss Niles respectively. Miss Winfield also played "Concerto" by Tschaikowsky and "General Grant's March." She accompanied Miss Keating who sang "Penguin's Parade." Miss Keating's piano numbers were "Merry Christmas March," "Last Rose of Summer" and Fifth Nocturne."

Comforter Church Christmas Eve Service

The Sunday school of the Reformed Church of the Comforter will hold its annual Christmas program this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church hall. The three departments of the Sunday school, primary, junior and intermediate groups, will take part.

The intermediate group will give several choric readings and will present a play, "He Came to Minister." The cast of characters will include the Misses Jacqueline Schoonmaker, Joan Gunther, Nancy Brown, Alice Brown, Jeanne Anderson, Betty Constable, and also LeRoy Wells, Oscar Carlson, Charles Schoonmaker and Joseph Sills.

The offering will be for the church's war emergency fund.

Are Graduated at R. P. I.

JOHN McCULLOUGH

CHARLES SCHREIBER

John A. McCullough, son of Hugh McCullough of 33 Orchard street; and Charles L. Schreier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schreiber of Hurley, were among those receiving degrees today at the 118th graduation exercises at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy. A class of 250 seniors was graduated six months earlier than usual because of the demand for engineers, scientists, and technically trained personnel for the war effort. Both are graduates of the Kingston High School.

Mr. McCullough received the degree of bachelor of architecture in which he majored. He was secretary of the R. P. I. players, and a member of the Glee Club, Architectural Society, Theta Xi Fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, Student A. I. A., and the senior ball committee. He is now a member of the naval reserve.

Mr. Schreiber was awarded the degree of bachelor of chemical engineering and he has accepted a defense position as metallurgist at the Adirondack Steel in Albany. He was a member of the student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers; Phi Kappa Tau fraternity for which he was rushing chairman this year; the "Pup" humor magazine, and Boot and Spur.

Good Taste Today

POLITENESS ONLY RETURN OFTEN NECESSARY

Just politeness—and that of a very "ordinary sort" is the answer to a young girl who asks. "What return can I make to a lady who was a complete stranger to me several weeks ago—and is really a stranger now. She is a friend of my oldest sister and it was while I was on a visit to this sister that I was invited to come with her to a large party her friend gave. I had a grand time and everything was fine until afterward when I began to realize that I might be expected to make some return. What return can I make?"

To this, as I have said, the only return ever expected by a hostess of a young guest who came to no matter what sort of a party, is that the young girl shall have good manners at the party and remember the hostess well enough to go up and shake hands with her the next time they meet.

Unmarried Daughter to Give Party for Parents

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother and father will observe their fortieth wedding aniversary soon and I'd like to send invitations to their friends and to some of my own, to come in during the evening. I am not married and live at home with my parents. Please tell me how I could write these invitations on my visiting cards, or how I could use both their cards and my own. I don't want to have special invitations printed.

1902-1942
Wed. evening, Jan. 6
8 to 11 o'clock

It is true this will hardly suggest that the party is given by you. If that is necessary then you will have to write notes of invitation or have cards printed especially reading, "Miss...... requests the pleasure of etc." To your own friends enclose your own card with that of your parents.

The Bridegroom Is a Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is marrying a man who has just obtained his divorce. However, he did not live with his wife for three or four years before that, and in fact, never saw her during this separation. How long must we wait to give this wedding and how much of a wedding may we give our daughter due to the divorce?

Answer: Whether she may be married in church or even by your clergyman depends upon your clergyman's consent. It is likely that she may have to be married at home or in an assembly room by a justice. Ir your church permits and no special notoriety was connected with the divorce your daughter's wedding may take place at any time and be exactly the same as any other wedding of moderate size. She may of course wear white and a veil, and have a maid of honor or two bridesmaids, or both. But many attendants of his as well as her would be in doubtful taste.

Seven Fliers Die In Pueblo Crash

Pueblo, Colo., Dec. 23 (AP)—A four-motored Army bomber, its tail sheared off by another plane while flying in formation, plummeted to earth southeast of here yesterday, killing all seven officers and men aboard.

Public relations officers at the Pueblo air base, where the bomber was based, said the collision occurred while two Consolidated B-24's were on a routine formation flight 15 miles south of Manzanola.

The lead plane rose unexpectedly and its tail assembly was sliced away by the upper bomber's propellors. The stricken bomber crashed and burned. Five fliers aboard the second plane bailed out over a practice bombing range.

The second plane, still manned by a pilot and navigator, returned to its base.

Public relations officers said one of those who bailed out still was missing. The four others landed safely and were found.

First Lt. Gerald E. Smetts, Oakland, Calif.

Second Lt. Bliss M. Shannon, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Second Lt. Charles T. Bowen, Flushing, N. Y.

Staff Sgt. Charles S. Meisenheimer, Jefferson, Tex.

Sgt. Victor H. Mcgregor, Casper, Wyo.

Sgt. James H. Cooney, Jr., Baton Rouge, La.

Details Are Arranged

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Details for the inauguration January 1 of Governor-elect Thomas E. Dewey are expected to be completed today. Paul E. Lockwood, who will be the Republican governor's executive secretary, and Thomas J. Curran, New York city, Dewey's recently announced selection for secretary of state, yesterday visited the present Secretary of State Michael F. Walsh, to discuss the inauguration. Lockwood said the ceremony will preserve the "essential traditions and ritual" attached to the rite.

Petersen Is Bankrupt

New York, Dec. 23 (Special)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today in United States District Court here by Theodore Petersen of Wallkill, a carpenter. His debts were listed in the attached schedules as $4,867, which includes $4,500 in secured claims. There are no assets. Among the creditors is Emma W. Bayles of Oyster Bay, N. Y., owed $2,500.

Progress Is Cited By T.B. Committee

Oldest Contributor Praises Work of Association

"It is very nice to live to be 90, and still be able to give to such a worthy cause as the Tuberculosis Campaign. I certainly wish I could give more." So reported W. S. Johnson of Kingston who has been a consistent contributor to Christmas seals since the seal sale was inaugurated.

Mr. Johnson, still hale and hearty, reminisced about the Civil War. It is believed he is the oldest contributor to Christmas seals in Ulster county.

Older citizens have seen great progress during the many years since the organization of the Tuberculosis Committee in 1908 at the Kingston armory. From the first tuberculosis camp and hospital in New York state, on Clifton avenue, has come the Golden Hill Sanatorium of Ulster county, one of the finest institutions in these parts.

The death rate from Tuberculoosis in Ulster county has dropped from about 200 in 1908 to 30 per 100,000 in 1941. This saving of lives has been made possible through the efforts of those citizens of Ulster county who have always given their cooperation and full support to the tuberculosis program.

This year, because of the war, the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association is planning to expand the program in order to meet the emergency, for war always adds to the ravages of tuberculosis, or tuberculosis often adds to the ravages of war.

Poletti Urges New Governor Retain State War Council

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Governor-elect Thomas E. Dewey and the Republican legislative majority are strongly urged today to retain the State War Council, which heads New York's civilian protection army of 575,000 workers.

Governor Charles Poletti, who recommended the continuance, credited the council with a "significant contribution" to the state's war effort.

In a letter to Joe R. Hanley and Oswald D. Heck, Republican leaders of the Senate and Assembly respectively, the governor added the council "has been of tremendous assistance to the governor in the conduct of war activities."

The letter pointed out further that "the War Council has functioned on a non-partisan and non-political basis."

Poletti, who is expected to resign as state war plans coordinator, also urged that position be continued to "avoid duplication, overlapping and inefficiency," he said.

The letter accompanied the council's second annual report for transmission to the Legislature which convenes January 6.

The report showed an average enrollment of 575,000 civilian protection workers and said 152 practice blackouts and 107 daylight air raid drills have been conducted throughout the state since May 1.

More than 450,000 persons have registered in vocational schools for training war workers, the report continued, and 21,000 volunteers and paid firemen have received basic fire training in 61 county schools.

Services will be held in Temple Emanuel on Friday evening, December 25, at 7:45. Rabbi Bloom will preach a Christmas sermon entitled, "A People Crucified and a People Reborn." The adult study group will meet at Rabbi Bloom's home on Wednesday evening at 8:30.

Held for Grand Jury

Robert Usher, 22, of Samsonville, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and DeWitt on a charge of burglary in the third degree. Justice Perry Rush of the town of Ulster held him for appearance before the grand jury and he was committed to the county jail.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Here's the formula for ideal furloughs for service men, concocted by a 28-year-old former member of the R.A.F.'s American Eagle Squadron, now a U. S. army air forces ace, and his mother.

The code for parents was formulated by Maj. Carroll W. McColpin, holder of the distinguished flying cross, and Mrs. Joseph Warren McColpin. Major McColpin, credited with destroying eight enemy planes, two boats, two trains and two lorries, probably destroying a ninth plane and damaging a tenth, is home for a family reunion on Christmas Day and a two-week leave.

Heading the list of six "don'ts" and one "do," prepared by the McCoplins is an admonition against buying new furniture and gee-gaws on the alibi that you want a "nice home for him to come back to. He'll appreciate it more if you can show him the war bonds you've been buying to back him and his buddies up."

The other "don'ts," advanced to insure the kindest treatment for the family hero, are:

"Don't talk him to death." Voices, women's in particular, going on and on, may rasp the nerves of war-weary service men, used only to the companionship of a little more silent males, and the noise of battle or training maneuvers.

Don't try to plan his time for him and show him off to relatives. He's been under stern discipline: his soul craves the freedom to do as he pleases.

Don't pump him about what he's seen and done. The less the home folks know of "military secrets," the less carefully they'll have to guard their tongues. Besides, the fellow on leave wants to forget all that for awhile.

Don't lecture him. He's on his own now and could teach you a thing or two about how to take care of yourself. And don't tell him about the other boys on the block who've gotten promotions faster than he has.

In a positive way, Mrs. McColpin believes, the best procedure is to "let him have a good time in his own way."

Light Rains, Snow Raise Temperature

Bring Relief After Week of Sub-Zero Weather

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—Welcome light rains and snow boosted New York temperatures to between 26 and 36 degrees above zero today and turned into slush the ice-coating on highways that delayed traffic during the night.

The general sporadic precipitation brought the first full relief from the cold wave that shot thermometers to record sub-zero lows earlier in the week.

The frigid snap was followed last night by freezing rain which glazed highways and tied up motor vehicle travel. At Hamburg, Erie county, a bus and several automobiles slid into ditches. No one was hurt. Travelers between Nyack and New York city were delayed two hours by icy roads. Buses were reported unable to negotiate some grades for the same reason.

In Westchester and Putnam counties police said the freezing rain caused worse traffic conditions than the 1940 "silver freeze" which left that area varnished by ice.

The thermometer in that area hovered about 31 degrees as the storm set in. Traffic disappeared from the highways almost instantly with many cars abandoned on the roadsides.

Westchester county parkway police and state police both reported it was unnecessary to close parkways as motorists "were stopping themselves."

Sanding crews were busy but, observers said, as soon as the sand was spread it was covered with ice, the crews working in vain.

State police said the icy condition prevailed northwards to Dutchess county.

BLUE MOUNTAIN

Blue Mountain, Dec. 23—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freligh called Sunday on Jesse Wolven, William Hommell and Mrs. R. Manley.

Mrs. Rebecca Manley recently spent a few days with relatives in Schenectady.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Duryee called on Miss Anna Short Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoonmaker and family spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eckerlein in Saugerties.

Mr. and Mrs. George Snyder of Centerville called Monday evening on Frank Schoonmaker and family.

Joyce Fay, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Hommell, was baptized at the church services on Sunday by the Rev. E. C. Duryee.

The U. S. Government Office of Strategic Service is collecting travelers notes on foreign localities, as well as photographs.

La Goulette, the port of Tunis, was built with stones taken from the ruins of ancient Carthage three miles away.

Exchanging holiday greetings by telephone is a cherished custom, but this year . . . because war needs the wires . . . we ask you:

Please don't use "Long Distance" for Christmas Greetings

WAR TAKES NO HOLIDAYS. Long Distance telephone lines that once carried your Christmas messages to far-away friends and relatives are now overloaded with calls having to do with the grim business of war.

More lines to carry more calls cannot be built because of wartime shortages of copper and other materials.

That is why we ask you not to make Long Distance calls during the holidays—especially on Christmas Eve or Day. War calls must come first. No one would want to interfere with the swift delivery of such urgent messages, nor stand in the way of someone in the armed forces who might have a chance to say Merry Christmas to the folks back home.

Your cooperation will help enormously. For the help you have already given in clearing the lines for war calls, many thanks . . . and . . .

Merry Christmas

Tough On Vegetarian

Great Falls, Mont. (AP)—Private Benny Bee says the Army is pretty tough on a vegetarian, and he has been one for 23 years.

Benny passes up all the untasty things like chicken, roast beef and turkey. "I hate meat and I don't eat anything that walks, swims, crawls or flies," says Benny. "And no pastry, please."

In the Army that takes in a lot of eating territory and so Benny has to be content with bread, potatoes and salads, of which he wishes there were more.

"My advice to vegetarians who go into the Army is this: Bring your own truck garden with you," says Ben.

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Christmas was forbidden in America for 22 years because the Puritan fathers believed it was a Pagan custom. In 1659 the General Court of Massachusetts enacted a law providing "a fine of five shillings for every offense if a body be found observing, by abstinence from work, by celebrating or attending a religious service. . . such a day as Christmas Day." The law was repealed in 1681.

A teacher, examining a class in natural history, asked:

Teacher—Speaking of sheep, can any of you tell me the names of the male, the female and the offspring?

"How To Win Friends—"

The first thing is to go and buy a few cents worth of suet;
Then, in the center of a cup, you place (head down) a nail;
And 'round the nail put meats of nuts which may be fresh—or stale.
Next, pour some melted suet in 'til nuts cannot be seen.
When cold, if you will warm the cup a ball will come out clean.
Nail this on window-sill, or fence, and you'll win friends, with wings;
Who'll dine with you and, in bird talk, tell you some lovely things!

—Lyla Myers.

Hubby—Everything I tell you goes.

Wifey—Is that so?

Hubby—Yes, it goes all over the neighborhood.

Many soldiers, out of their not large pay, are buying war savings bonds. Maybe that will shame many of us into buying our share.

Sweet Young Thing—Not if you left me enough.

A minor executive of a large bakery who was accustomed to signing the firm's name at the bottom of all correspondence passing over his desk, was a proud, but slightly bewildered parent and had occasion to sign the baptismal register of the church and through force of habit he wrote: "Jones, Brown & Co."

The farmer's pink-cheeked daughter was coming up the lane. She was clad in a grimy pair of overalls, from the pockets of which bulged huge bunches of waste and sundry wrenches and pliers. In her hand was a dirty satchel rattling with an assortment of iron tools:

Stranger (meeting her)—Where are you going, my pretty maid?

Girl—I'm going a'milking, sir.

Stranger—But why the tools?

Girl—Trouble with that darned old milking machine, again.

It is better to be the smallest cog among the wheels than a monkey-wrench in the machine.

Exceptions To The Rule

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house not a creature was stirring, with the exception of—

Father, who wants to know what happened to the Christmas tree stand when he put it away last year—

Mother, who is trying to answer the telephone and Father at the same time—

Norman, aged 3, who is calling from the crib wishing to be informed if that noise he hears is Santa Claus—

An expressman, aged 150 by the way he feels, who is delivering a rocking horse at the side door—

Aunt Agnes, who has just dropped the library table drawer seeking a pencil to sign the receipt—

Grandma, who can't remember what she did with the Bedtime Stories she bought for Norman's Stockings and who wanders about like Lady Macbeth—

Annabelle, aged 16, who skips endlessly and wants to know if they can't unpack the new radio-phonograph tonight instead of tomorrow so she can ask some of the boys in to dance while father trims the tree—

A deliveryman who sounds like a troop of calvary in the front vestibule and who is with difficulty convinced that he has the wrong house—

Norah, the maid, who has just dropped a plate in the kitchen—

Jack, aged 13, who blows out a fuse while monkeying with the lights for the Christmas tree and throws the whole house in darkness—

East Greenbush School Saves Gas and Rubber

Albany, N. Y.—Leading other schools of the state in a new plan to save gasoline and rubber, the East Greenbush Central School District has instituted a policy of having its buses pick up children at designated stops placed not less than 1,000 feet apart instead of making stops at every house.

Benjamin R. Miller, the State Board of Education's representative on the War Transportation Committee of the New York State War Council today praised this war-time action which was brought about through the cooperation of the Board of Education and the student body.

"This is a most commendable war-time measure," said Mr. Miller, "and we urge all school supervisors to consider the possibilities of inaugurating 'skip stops' in their districts.

"The students themselves like it better. It shortens the length of time spent on buses to and from the school. It saves a significant amount of gasoline and rubber. And it aids in the war transportation conservation program," he added.

The "skip stop" method has proved satisfactory in other school regions, according to Mr. Miller. Reports from Pasadena, California indicate that when a shift of classes in the Junior High School and the Junior College was made one hour later, it resulted in the elimination of 370 school bus stops.

"Multiply the amount of gasoline and rubber saved in the East Greenbush Central School District by the numbers of similar schools throughout the state where 'skip stop' method could also be used and you get an appalling quantity of significant gas and oil saved" concluded Mr. Miller. "This is definitely a war measure and should be adopted wherever it is possible."

Reg. U. S. Patent Office By JIMMY HATLO

IT'S A GOOD POLICY. I AGREE I NEED IT. I LIKE YOU AND YOUR COMPANY, BUT THIS IS WAR! REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR! WAR BONDS! WAR STAMPS! THAT'S WHAT WE GOT TO BUY! KEEP 'EM FLYING! SEE ME AFTER THE WAR, BUDDY!
GIT A LOAD OF THAT, WILLYA? HE'S GOT ONE DEFENSE STAMP HE TOOK OFF HIS KID I THINK HE'S GOT IT HANGING IN HIS WINDOW.
HE SIGNED UP TO BUY A BOND THROUGH THE OFFICE. TWO BITS A WEEK OUT OF HIS PAY—BUT HE CASHED IT IN…
HE USES THE WAR TO ALIBI EVERYTHING—THE INSURANCE BOOKIE CAN'T TOP THAT ONE.
HE SURE IS PATRIOTIC—FROM THE TEETH OUT. HE'S FULL OF WIND AND SLOGANS. HE TALKS A GOOD WAR!

GREW ON JAPAN

If anybody should know the Japanese, it is Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Tokyo for many years, whose newly published "Report from Tokyo" tells of his experiences. He is firm on one point: "There is not sufficient room in the area of the Pacific Ocean for a peaceful America, for any and all of the United Nations, and for a swashbuckling Japan."

To cure this swashbuckling, there is but one remedy.

"The Japanese military machine and military caste and military system must be utterly crushed; their credit and predominance must be utterly broken. Only when the Japanese military machine is rendered physically impotent, physically incapable of carrying on its far-flung campaign of crushing and conquering and enslaving those who fall beneath the wheels of the ruthless and utterly pitiless car of Juggernaut, only then will the Japanese people as a whole come to the realization that crime does not pay, that they have been forced to follow false gods, and that the ways of peace are in all respects preferable to the ways of war."

In doing this, the United States will not merely be making itself secure. It will be doing a service to the whole civilized world.

JOB FOR VESUVIUS

With the R.A.F. getting so rambunctious around Naples, and making it regular procedure to bomb that city and its suburbs, some Americans wonder why the British don't make a real job of it by bombing old Vesuvius and letting him finish the business. That classic volcano ought to be capable of such collaboration, if properly handled. It broke loose once long ago, on its own initiative, and poured out over the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum, flooding them with red-hot lava until they were obliterated. Anyone who wants tremendous details can find them in Bulwer-Lytton's famous story.

That old lava stream, which Vesuvius poured forth on his own initiative, flowed so far toward Naples that the people were panic-stricken, fearing they would be overwhelmed. They escaped that time with a fiery rain of cinders which did considerable damage. The boiling mountain hasn't accomplished much in recent times, in spite of half-hearted efforts to go on a rampage in 1906 and 1929. But it is evident that the old fire-spouter is uneasy, and might be aroused to an effort worthy of the occasion. A few four-ton bombs dropped by warplanes into its seething depth might produce notable results. It would be a pity in some ways. The location of Naples, seven miles from Vesuvius, is very beautiful, and the city is full of history.

LAW AND THE NAZIS

International law is apparently another war casualty.

Until this war, the rules of national action received at least lip service from the German government. In 1914-18 that government committed many acts condemned by the moral sentiment of the world. Chief among them were the violation of Belgian neutrality and the adoption of unlimited submarine warfare. In both cases Germany took great pains to justify herself, alleging previous British violation of international law, or twisting her actions so that they might seem to conform to the standards set by civilized nations.

All this is a thing of the past. Hitler has manifested his contempt for international law in no way more strikingly than by his complete silence about it. His many speeches give no indication that such a code ever existed. Might is the one standard recognized, legal right is nowhere.

International law was a feeble plant at best. It is doubtful whether it can survive its rough treatment from the Nazis.

WAR-TIME LOYALTY

There is both interest and instruction in the first big sedition case tried during this war. It is the case of William Dudley Pelley and two co-defendants, whose conviction has been affirmed in Chicago by the U. S. Court of Appeals. The term "sedition" may be understood by laymen as applying to offenses which are of the same general nature as treason, but not quite so serious. The court's language serves as clarification of this crime, and also as a warning.

"No loyal citizen, in time of war," says the court, "forecasts or assumes doom and defeat and the futility of his country's fight."

Any such assumption of defeat can be taken as "an intent to retard patriotic ardor in a course approved by Congress and the citizenry of the nation," and "in time of war, when success depends on unified national effort, abiding loyalty and unremitting patriotism, one who broadcasts falsely, as verities, misstatements of the country's continued failure in battle, asserts that it is destitute of defenses, is bankrupt, that it has prejudiced and incompetent leadership, and extols the virtues of the enemy, cannot successfully challenge the verdict of a jury which found him guilty."

Any wavering citizen who carefully reads this statement a couple of times should get the point and conduct himself accordingly.

Whether anything is a good idea or not, the Japs stick to it.

There is no truth to the rumor that walking may be rationed.

HEADACHE AND OTHER SYMPTOMS

At a medical convention a year ago, several eye specialists stated that headache was not commonly caused by poor eyesight. This information was passed on to readers because many of us had thought that poor eyesight not corrected by glasses was a frequent cause of headache.

That pain on both sides of the head (not on one side only) may, however, be due to some eye condition is stated by Dr. A. D. Ruedemann, Cleveland, in the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society. Such a patient is entitled to a study of muscle balance. That is, the muscles that turn the eyes in various directions may not be balanced properly, one or other being stronger or weaker than the others. It can readily be seen that if strain is put on one or other of the muscles, headache may result.

Then the vision itself for reading and for distance should be tested. Tension and poor vision may cause pain in front and sides of the forehead, together with slight dizziness and sometimes nausea.

"Errors of vision and lack of muscle balance is almost certain to cause distress, including pain, irritability, fatigue, weight loss and nausea."

Another point mentioned by Dr. Ruedemann is that near-sighted or shortsighted people do not have headache unless the eyes are of unequal strength or unless they are abusing their eyes. Their difficulties lie in exposure to bright light and in looking long distances out-of-doors. Farsighted people are apt to have frontal headache which is present almost daily in the afternoon or evening.

Eye disturbance may be due to some general condition such as lack of thyroid juice or lack of vitamin A.

Before entering school, every child should have the vision tested under atropine to recognize and treat early cases of weak eyes.

"The girl with the nervous breakdown, the inattentive child, the convalescent patient with headaches who reads in bed, these and many others may have faulty, poor, or deficient eye muscle strength. They may require exercises, surgery, glasses, or all three."

Allergy

Allergy — sensitiveness to various substances such as foods, pollen, furs, feathers, house dust—is one of the many causes of headache. Send today for this helpful Barton booklet entitled 'Allergy,' (No. 106). To obtain it just send ten cents and a three cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

For the first time in the history of Kingston Sunday movies were shown in the local theatres on Sunday, December 2, 1928. At the November election the voters of the city had approved the showing of Sunday movies in the city after a hot political battle between those opposed and those in favor of the Sunday showings.

Leafing back the pages of the city's history to December 1, 1908, the new Central Fire Station on East O'Reilly street was opened It is interesting to recall that the Ulster County Auto Club was also active that year and at the annual meeting on December 14, Philip Elting was re-elected president.

William A. Van Valkenburgh, one of the active members of the Central Business Men's Association on December 3, 1918, was appointed alderman of the Ninth ward by Mayor Palmer Canfield to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alderman Charles E. Powell. Former Alderman Powell now resides at Mt. Tremper but is a frequent Kingston visitor.

I recall that on December 14, 1928, the Kingston High School Athletic Association presented "Clarence" a comedy by Booth Tarkington as its annual offering. Included in the cast were Laura Pratt, Sherwood Lasher, Folorita Rist, Walter Donnaruma, Frances Finn, Vivian Klothe, John Mohr, Janet Story, Jerome Aley, Robert Strickland and Louisa Toms.

The play that year was coached by Miss Ann Byrnes.

The year 1928 also marked th advent in Kingston of the Seventh Day Adventists, a religious organization, which, in November of that year, bought a lot on Downs street, just off Broadway, on which to erect a tabernacle for religious services.

Previous to that time there had been no special meetings of that religious body in the city, although several Kingston residents were members of the Adventists.

With sub-zero weather prevailing in Kingston a few days before Christmas I recall the winters in the days before the first World War in 1918, that horse racing was a popular sport on the Rondout creek ice.

It was the custom each winter to stretch a big wooden boom across the creek several hundred feet from the channel kept open for the ferry Skillypot. This boom prevented the ice in the upper creek from being broken up and floating down in the channel kept open not only for the Skillypot but the ferry Transport.

Older readers will recall both old ferries. The Skillypot was junked shortly after the opening of the present Rondout Creek Bridge, while the Transport is being remodeled into a stake boat for the Cornell Line.

Hunter's Hobby Is Coyotes

Butte, Mont. (AP)—Vernon Lammin, 22, whose hobby is stalking coyotes on western rangelands, has killed more than 200 of them in four years. That's a high score for a veteran hunter; still better for a fellow who started when he was 18 years old. Recently Lammin shot 14 coyotes in 14 days. He uses a .270 caliber rifle with telescopic sight, a pair of binoculars and a hunting knife. Unlike many other hunters who spot their prey by airplane or from an automobile, Lammin stalks his coyotes on foot. It's much more difficult to get within shooting range on foot. Besides the fun he has had from his hobby, Lammin says he has sold each of the pelts for an average of $10.

STONE RIDGE

The Stone Ridge School presented a Christmas program on Thursday evening at the Reformed Church basement. Those taking part were: Patricia Ham, Fred Liffnartz, Inez Bockelman, Mary Van Dermark, Bobby Laware, Frank Arra, Betty and Martha Bell North, Lillian Larsen, Aldeane Lounsbery and Betty Stokes. The Kat Von Jammer band supplied the music. At the close of the program Uncle Sam came and sold bonds and stamps to the amount of $225 in bonds and $35.40 in stamps.

The annual Christmas program of the Methodist Sunday School will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock at the church. There will be special music by the junior choir. Selections will be played by Marilyn Dudley and Charles Gerwin, of Atwood. The following children will take part: Janet Mack, John Mack, Beverly Davenport, Martha Davenport, Melvin Lockwood, Marie Delamater, Francis Bishop, Janice Howard, Ruth Laurence, Joyce Laurence, Wanda Pacoby, Jean Osterhoudt, Burton Delamater, Norton Laurence, Jimmy Sickler and Raymond Bishop. Santa is expected to be present at the close of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wicks entertained at dinner Tuesday for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weeks, Sr., of Ashokan; Mrs. Henry Oakley, Sgt. Irving Weeks of Boise, Idaho, and Miss Mary Bogart.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"The Wisdom of China and India," by Lin Yutang.

Barring something unexpected, the last anthology to be published before Christmas will be Lin Yutang's "The Wisdom of China and India." It is fortunate that it also is one of the best the year has produced—and it has produced an absurdly large number, too. This would be called "the year of the pickers of other people's brains," or something similar, if we lived in the Orient.

Dr. Lin has worked a long time to sort out the truly great writing of India and China, to select the best translations, and to translate again those with which he was dissatisfied. This proceeding is given in remarkable unity by a number of things, the most important of which is Dr. Lin's personality and brain. He is a balanced man, and his own books have proved many times. His taste is catholic, and at the same time fastidious, by which I mean that he is just as capable of choosing the best from some of the ribald verse of China as he is to select from the loftier product of Confucius or Indian religious writing.

Naively, Dr. Lin declares that he has placed the section on India first in his book because of Chinese courtesy. There is another reason, however, which is that for him India is the one land in which religion and philosophy are an interlocked concept, and India has taught China many things. More peculiarly, India has also been the source of a great many western folk tales, even some of Aesop's fables.

Yet consciously or otherwise, the anthologist has made the Chinese section far and away the more interesting of the two. Possibly it is not all his doing—Chinese ethical concepts are not identical with ours, but they are much nearer our mind than those of India. Chinese humor also approaches ours more closely, and some of the satirical poetry in the Chinese section has a modern flavor—almost an Esquire flavor.

There is one disadvantage that even Dr. Lin has not been able to overcome, however. It is the difficulty of putting into English a language constructed as Chinese is—not always, but often, the result is a set of cliches.

Deer Hunt Stirs U. S. O. Guests

Denver, Colo.—Deer-hunting in the Rockies was one of the pleasures provided servicemen through the Denver U. S. O. The invitation was given in the first days of October and was a new experience for many who accepted it.

A DIME YOU'LL NEVER MISS MAY SAVE A SOLDIER'S LIFE!

It's a fact that a single 10-cent piece can be the means of saving a soldier's life—because the five cartridges it buys can make the difference between victory and defeat for one of our boys. Think then what more money will do, if put regularly into U. S. War Savings Stamps! Order them delivered to your home, week after week, by your newspaper carrier boy. This coupon, filled in, will be all the authorization he needs. Hand it to him next time he stops!

Mistakes on Home Front Need Something of Strategy Employed by High Command in Field

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 22—Mistakes in the field of strategy and operations are quickly surveyed by the high command so as to prevent their recurrence, but mistakes made here on the home front in the handling of the production and distribution of war weapons are difficult to ascertain because of the necessary censorship that must prevail in wartime.

Congressional committees have sought to find out wherein mistakes have been made so as to stimulate remedial action, but even these committees cannot possibly get the background needed for an imperial and objective survey. Yet today the United Nations are suffering severe handicaps because of the maldistribution of weapons and the lack of a balanced program.

In America, the statisticians figured out astronomical goals and insisted that these could be attained. Practical production men shook their heads but they were called pessimists or old facts. As a consequence the entire production program has been out of balance for several months and is only now getting into a stride that looks feasible.

It is a military secret just what per cent of the original goals set for 1943 will be reached, just as the figures for 1942 production are withheld, but it is apparent now that the sights were set too high and that a general revision has been in progress.

But what of the damage done by such an unbalanced program? What of the wastage of materials in making weapons that cannot be used for months while weapons that can be used right away are delayed? What battles have been lost and what offensives have been delayed because of such delays? The public will never know because there appears at present no way to check on the mistakes made by the men serving in the war agencies who persuaded the president to order the programs that have been in effect for a large part of 1942.

Some of the bright young men with a statistical bent thought they knew more about industrial production capacity than the men who had spent their lives in it. Fallacious reasons were offered, suggesting that the industrialists didn't want to expand too fast for fear of bringing about an after-the-war glut. Yet the practical men have been proved right, for many of the plants which were ordered have had to be cancelled and much of the material needed in the building of those plants has had to be diverted to the more immediate needs of the war program.

Increases in capacity have been made, some of expansion of existing plants and some by adding plants, but on the whole the job has not been permitted to interfere with the distribution of materials for current operations.

There are some fields, however, in which productions has had to be curtailed, and the public explanation usually is that materials are lacking. The truth is the goals were too high, and some weapons cannot possibly be finished because of shortages that might well have been foreseen if a practical goal had been properly visualized.

The tendency to assume that American industry needs a prod and that there's no harm in setting a high goal is a dangerous one. Industrial executives work on specific orders, and if someone in Washington tells them to produce 1,000 of any particular weapons, they'll do it and not question the fact that some other weapon made by somebody else will have to suffer delay or perhaps failure altogether to reach the goal set.

It may be surprising, but much of the fuss about the civilian and military striving for control over the production program is not a reflection of the real issue at all. The army and navy make the contracts, and unless the joint chiefs of staffs set a definite goal that is practicable, each division of the armed services will seek to get as much of any weapon made as possible. There is more coordination now under the war production board and the whole program is in better shape than it has been. But there is still a lack of realism as to what can or cannot be accomplished, and too much valuable time has been lost in determining a feasible program of needs.

Too much has, for instance, gone to air power and not enough to escort ships—and unless the cargoes of fuel and food and spare parts reach the overseas bases, the airplanes cannot get up in the sky from the runways. Too much of our production lies at the bottom of the ocean. This sort of unbalanced situation is still in need of attention lest the mistakes being made result in an unnecessarily prolonged war, with heavier sacrifices of lives than in necessary.

Washington, Dec. 23—The battle on the home front doesn't go so well. The rationing difficulties are merely symptomatic of a deeper dilemma—the lack of a sound relationship between the people and their government.

In business, this is usually called bad public relations. In government, it is sometimes described as the result of unfavorable criticism, or misunderstanding of the official acts to which complaint is directed.

The truth is hardships are here, and many more are coming before the war ends, and yet the biggest and most vital factor in getting civilian cooperation is missing. One reason, of course, is that too much information has been withheld as to the basic need for rationing of particular commodities. The censorship is given as the customary explanation.

If, for instance, the statistics on supply were available, the enemy would know what America lacked. But this advantage might be outweighed by the stimulus that would be given to programs of voluntary cooperation. Certainly the subscription by the American people of $10,000,000,000 in the December war bond drive is an example of what the public can do when it fully understands the need. The expense of the war production program has been well explained, and hence the sale of bonds has been correspondingly well accomplished.

But when it comes to curtailment of commodities the explanation is not so simple. Unfortunately the administration relies too much on the idea that because it says rationing is necessary, everybody will believe it and cooperate at once. The administering of the programs for rationing has been made more difficult because of a rather widespread distrust directed at Washington administrators, so many of whom only yesterday were associated with New Deal ideas of social reform and punitive measures of class friction. It is very difficult indeed to persuade observers of American economic life, when they hear of inefficiency and incompetence and efforts in Washington to cloak socialistic purposes under war programs, that appeals for rationing are based on strictly war necessity. There has been too much juggling of statistics in the New Deal and too much emphasis given to the New Dealers themselves in the handling of rationing programs. The customary excuse is that practical business men have been consulted, but if one digs a bit into it one finds that the theorist and certain radical college professors usually have had a large part in formulating the program.

The effort to carry on the New Deal despite the war is responsible for the distrust that is making it difficult to establish better public relations for the rationing programs. The same men who have been associated with the President in his campaign against the management class since 1933 have been given posts of responsibility and some of these men simply do not have the confidence of a substantial segment of the public opinion-forming group.

The last election brought a vote of disapproval which was aimed at the New Deal clique of young theorists who have loaded the country down with red tape schemes and formulas that have produced widespread skepticism as to whether the objective is or is not as outlined.

Such impressions are, of course, not a reflection of the basic purpose at all—which is to synchronize the home front with the needs of the war front. If nobody else can be found to administer the programs of rationing which require public support except the present group of officials, then it would seem that a program of candor might be of constructive help.

Even if some of the figures have been taboo, their publication would do America more good than they would give comfort to the enemy. Rumors, for instance, about our heavy submarine losses are current and the Axis radio broadcasters insist that twice as much tonnage is being sunk than last year—their estimate for 1942 being close to 7,500,000 tons. If anywhere near this amount is being lost, then it is important that the gravity of the situation be outlined, so that Americans may face the issue together as a unified people and not as pro or anti-Socialist reformers.

The need for restriction must be plainly outlined by commissions and boards comprised of men in whom the country has absolute faith—that's one way to bring about better public relations for the rationing programs on the home front.

PORT EWEN

The Christmas entertainment by the Sunday School of the Methodist Church will be given in the church hall tonight. Among those taking part are: Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Miss Betty Schweigel, Vincent Fairbrother, Sonny Rodder, Bobby Coutant, Lillian Woolsey, Miss Joan Rose, Miss Florence Clark, Mary Lee, and Mrs. Burlin Winchell's class will give a play. At the close of the entertainment the toy makers will help Santa Claus distribute gifts to the children of the school, from the well loaded Christmas tree.

This evening at 7:30, there will be a full rehearsal of the pageant "Unto Us is Born a Savior," which is to be presented by the young people of the Reformed Church on Sunday evening, December 27. As this is to be the final rehearsal, everyone taking part is requested to be present.

The Senior and Intermediate Christian Endeavor societies will go "caroling" on Christmas Eve. Those wishing to go should be at the Reformed Church at 8 o'clock Thursday evening.

Salvation Army Appeals

The Salvation Army is making its annual appeal to provide Christmas Cheer (and winter relief) to the needy of this community. Once more our citizens have an opportunity to bring a bit of happiness into otherwise dreary lives. Public relief has done much to alleviate material want, but even so there are places where public relief cannot reach. The officers of The Salvation Army here know intimately these fellow-Americans in deepest need. They are also cooperating with other relief agencies of the community in order to avoid duplicate effort. Your gift will be gladly received and wisely dispensed. Send it to The Salvation Army, 185 Green street.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of the powers vested in me by law, I shall on Wednesday, December 30, 1942, at 10 'clock in the forenoon at the Court House in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, commence selling at public auction, so much of each of the said several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land, as shall be sufficient to pay all State, County, Highway, School or other taxes assessed thereon in the year 1941 and also upon certain lands in the years 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, that may then remain due on each thereof, respectively together with the interests, costs and charges which have arisen or accrued or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall sell, and continue from day to day to sell, until the said sale shall be completed. The purchaser at such sale shall pay the amount of their respective bids to the County Treasurer within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale and receive certificates describing the lands purchased, the sums paid, and the time when the purchaser will be entitled to deeds and after the expiration of one year from the last day of such sale, they shall be entitled to receive conveyances of the lands so purchased by them, respectively, or at their option may foreclose the lien provided by law unless said lands shall have been previously redeemed pursuant to law, by payment to the County Treasurer, for the use of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, the sum mentioned in the certificate, with interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the date of such certificate and any tax which the holder of such certificate shall have paid between the days of sale and redemption together with the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem the real estate sold for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the County Treasurer to the real estate so redeemed.

C. A. LYONS,
County Treasurer.

British Prisoners Tell of Treatment By the Japanese

Chungking, Dec. 23 (AP)—Three Britons who escaped after a Japanese prison transport was torpedoed and sunk Oct. 1 have reached free China and describe as appaling the conditions under which they and nearly two thousand other prisoners of war were confined by the Japanese.

A British embassy release told today of their experiences.

The three, Warrant Officers J. C. Fallace and W. C. Johnstone, and A. J. W. Evans of the British-American Tobacco Company, said they and British Naval and Military officers of the Hongkong Garrison were crammed into the hold of a freighter with virtually no sanitary accommodations while being transported to Japan.

They said no special provisions was made for the sick, although many prisoners were suffering from dysentery, beri beri or diphtheria.

The sick were placed on a steel deck and permitted to lie on their blankets with a tarpaulin to shelter them when it rained. They were given adequate food, but water for drinking purposes only, the escaped men declared.

The ship with its miserable human cargo left Hongkong Sept. 29 and was torpedoed about 7 a. m. on Oct. 1. Immediately all prisoners on deck were ordered back into the holds, where they were forced to remain all day without food or water.

That night the hatch boards were closed and the chute cut down and allowed to fall on the prisoners below.

The hatches were so battened that there was no ventilation in the holds. The only sanitary provision for the 400 men in the hold with the three escaped men was a single bucket.

After a terrible night, in which two men died, the tarpaulins were removed from the hatches and the prisoners managed to reach the deck. They found that the entire stern of the ship was submerged and appeared to be resting on the bottom. The bow was high out of the water.

The Japanese apparently had abandoned the vessel. Hundreds of prisoners jumped into the sea and started swimming toward five or six Japanese auxiliaries that were cruising slowly between them and the land in the distance. Some of those in the water were shot by the Japanese, the refugees charged.

Suddenly the vessel sank, leaving only the crosstrees of the masts above water. Those prisoners who could, made their way on rafts to the Japanese ships, which picked up a few, but made no real effort to save the vast majority. The three survivors who reached China said they passed very close to the Japanese vessel but that their cries for help were ignored along with those of hundreds of others.

LEIBHARDT

Leibhardt, Dec. 22—There will be a Christmas service conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Douglas Fletcher, of Kerhonkson, Wednesday evening in the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Locke of Camp Shady Rest have presented a new carpet to the Samsonville Church.

Mrs. Lena Lypka has received word from her son, Pvt. Peter Lypka, that he is in North Africa.

Joan Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Crawford, who has been at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital in Ellenville, is reported to be greatly improved.

Mrs. Ross Crawford and two children spent Tuesday with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Spencer Quick, of Rochester Center.

Mrs. Floyd Brown of Samsonville will hold her Christmas exercises Wednesday evening. The Goodfellowship Club has a part in the program.

Mothers Line Up for Service

Portsmouth, N. H.—The newly formed "Service Mothers' Clubs," which have grown out of the local U. S. O. club, will turn over spare bedrooms to mothers, wives, and sisters who come here to visit their servicemen relatives.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

(AP) Features

A new series of the Princes of Liechtenstein stamps has been issued to continue the series begun last December. The sketches are from old pictures, and the stamps, which are valid until July 1, 1943, are in sheets of 20 each.

Values in this series are the 20 rappen, showing Prince Johann Karl (1732-1848) in red; the 30 rappen blue (illustrated here) showing Prince Franz Josef I (1772-1781); the 1.00 franc in red-violet, showing Prince Alois I (1781-1805), and 1.50 franc dark brown, Prince Johann II (1805 - 1836). Liechtenstein is a small independent state in Europe which recently has been closely identified with Switzerland.

Dealers are waiting arrival of a new set of Mexican stamps which include three for regular postage and three for airmail. The stamps have been issued in commemoration of the fourth centenary of the founding of San Miguel Allende.

The stamps were due in September and already have been printed because of the official government decree concerning them has not been published. Values are the same as in the last two sets of Mexican stamps, including regular postage of two, five and ten cents; and airmails of 20 and 40 cents and one peso.

San Miguel Allende is a small town in Guanajuato state, and on the National Railways of Mexico enroute to Mexico City. It is famous for having a school of art, but more famous for being the cradle of Mexican independence. It was there that the War of Independence was planned in 1810, and the town is named after Miguel Hidalgo, who is to Mexico what George Washington is to the United States.

So greatly has the use of airmail increased in the United States since Pearl Harbor that the post office department is uring airmail patrons to use lightweight stationery in order to reduce the load.

Because of numerous requests for airmail stamps in booklet form, experiments with that end in view are in progress. Two bicolored red and blue airmail stamps are available, the 16-cent special delivery issued in 1936, and the 6-cent issued in 1938. The special delivery stamp, which never has been popular, still is in use, but the bicolored 6-cent, which was replaced by the highly popular 6-cent red in 1941, may be obtained from the Philatelic Agency in Washington.

Total printing of the bicolored 6-cent airmail was 349,946,500. When present supplies of the 16-cent are exhausted the issue probably will not be replaced, according to word from Washington.

Reaches Record High in Personnel and Students

Ithaca, N. Y.—With approval of the appointment by the Cornell Board of Trustees of five new full-time instructors, 42 part-time instructors, and two other staff members for the University's Engineering, Science and Management War Training courses, including nine U. S. Naval officers for Diesel engineering, the program has reached an all-time high both in teaching personnel and in numbers of students in upstate New York, Prof. Walter L. Conwell, director, announced today.

He revealed that total enrollment to date in the fall program is 3500, and that new courses have been started, and are now in progress, in Lockport, Corning and Endicott.

Instructors, both full and part-time in the 16 upstate cities where the industrial training courses are given, now number 176, Conwell's report stated.

Part-time instructors in civil engineering: Harold G. Hunt, John B. Scalzi, Charles J. Soch, and Anton E. Hittl. In industrial engineering the appointees are Norman W. Job, Jr., Bert J. Pratt, and Hugh U. Graham.

Others are James D. Patterson and Carlos E. Harrington, mechanical engineering; Henry T. Nagamatsu, aerodynamics; Norman E. Wahl, chemical engineering; James E. Wilson, Dr. Gordon M. Butler, Frank O. Fuhrman and William D. Forgeng, metallurgy; Robert F. Cline, electrical engineering; and Harvey W. Busch, structural engineering.

Approved as part-time instructors in safety engineering were Victor K. Anderson, Binghamton; Frank J. Conroy, Niagara Falls; Frank W. Fiske, Auburn; Richard E. Frederick, Endicott; Harold Moore, Elmira; and Leslie G. Van Duesen, Corning.

Appointments of five full-time teachers, 12 part-time instructors and two additional staff members in the ESMWT program at Cornell University, Ithaca, were approved in addition to nine new Naval officers in Diesel engineering.

Full-time appointments were for Howard G. Smith, assistant professor of electrical engineering, transferred to electrical communications; C. R. Scott, Jr., instructor in Diesel engineering; George W. Rice and James D. Grant, instructors in inspection practice; and William H. O'Brien, instructor in experimental engineering.

The part-time instructors: Arthur C. Stallman and Daniel F. Langenwalter, electrical communications; Thomas B. Tracy, Diesel engineering; Gardner M. Rogers, experimental engineering; E. R. Dooley and Donald P. Roehm, chemistry; Fred G. Anderson, personnel management; Walter Wallin, geometrical optics; Forrest E. Pratt, production control; Charles W. Personius, structural engineering; George Beck, radio laboratory technician; and Charles Seegar, III, laboratory assistant in electrical communications.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Expert

Philadelphia—Roy Mason, who handles 20,000 oysters a week, was explaining how to spot one that contains a pearl.

Grabbing a knife, he half-shelled the oyster, and out rolled 73 pearls.

Mason says he never got more than $3 for a pearl, but he's going to have the 73 appraised when he has time.

Insult and Injury

Elkhart, Ind.—Ben Sive, proprietor of a sporting goods store, was dazed by the brass of a young man in soldiers' uniform who bought a utility kit and paid him with a $20 check.

The young man returned later, Sive said, and claimed he had been given change for $10 instead of for $20. Sive convinced him he was mistaken, and the soldier left.

The check turned out to be fraudulent.

Help! Help!

Kansas City—The record-breaking avalanche of Christmas parcels which swamped the railway terminal at Union Station is reaching staggering proportions.

One 17-year-old extra hand worked 24 hours, officials said, before he could find his foreman to ask for time out.

Now, Sergeant

A beautiful redhead, he said, approached him at a gift depot with: "If you'll marry me you can fill this out yourself." She had a blank check in her hand.

"It'd mean a lot of gifts for a lot of guys," he pondered. "But I've got a girl in Brooklyn. Gosh, I don't know what to do."

Surprise

The folks got busy trimming a tree and just as they finished, in walked the lieutenant, almost beating his cablegram home.

The commissioner has proposed an ordinance which would prohibit tuning radio receivers in taverns and other public places to police calls.

Jepsen said word of an "interesting" crime or fire call had resulted in emptying of some taverns of patrons who raced to the scene and hampered police and firemen.

Junior members of the Y. W. C. A. entertained their friends at a Christmas party, Monday evening. The guests were welcomed by Miss Dorothy Lowe, Girl Reserve secretary. The candlelight ceremonial was conducted by Miss Jacqueline Kirk representing the Spirit of Christmas.

During the evening the rhythm band entertained with several selections accompanied by Mrs. Albert Roosa and under the direction of Miss Jean Estey. The band members are the Misses Rachel Caunitz, Joan Lavery, Margaret Hayes, Rosemary Scully, Dorothy DeCicco, Joan Fay, Lucy Miller, Rose Joy, Barbara Hofbauer, Joan Bennett, Betty Anne Gallagher and Deborah Caunitz.

The Misses Eva May Richter, Agnes Thurin, Betty Jane Smith and Jacqueline Kirk had charge of the good deed ceremonial. The "Little Orphan Annie" skit was given by the Misses Frances Lowe, Joan Fay, Margaret Howard and Joan Bennett.

The group enjoyed the singing of Christmas carols and Santa Claus in the person of Robert Tramper arrived to distribute gifts. The evening closed with the serving of refreshments.

Clinton Chapter Elects Officers For Next Year at Meeting

At the recent annual meeting of Clinton Chapter No. 445, O. E. S., the following officers were unanimously elected to serve the chapter for the year 1943: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Hubert Smith of High Falls; Worthy Patron, Gordon A. Craig; Associate Matron, Mrs. Gordon A. Craig; Secretary, Mrs. Samuel Morgan; Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth C. Schwenk; Conductress, Mrs. Edwin J. DuBois; Associate Conductress, Mrs. Jesse Barnhart of Stone Ridge; Trustee, Mrs. Paul E. Jones. These officers and those to be appointed by the matron will be installed at the next meeting on January 8, 1943.

The annual reports of the officers showed that the chapter was closing a most successful year under the leadership of Mrs. Fred Beecher, worthy matron, and Gordon A. Craig, worthy patron.

Kerhonkson Woman to Remarry

New York, Dec. 21 (Special)—Miss Estelle Kellam, the former Mrs. Ronald Joseph Sodness of Kerhonkson, and now of 27 West 75th street, New York, and Benjamin Sturgis Kellogg, of 359 42nd street, Brooklyn, obtained a marriage license at the Municipal Building here today.

A native of Abrahamsville, Pa., Miss Kellam is the daughter of Elijah and Harriet Mitchell Kellam. Prior to the annullment of her former marriage, in 1941, she had been a resident of Kerhonkson.

Mr. Kellogg was born in Danbury, Conn., the son of Robert and Phebe Sellick Kellogg.

Caputo-Carpino

Miss Mary Carpino of 41 Gill street, was married to Dominico Caputo at St. Mary's Church, November 29.

Personal Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Chrisey of Rosendale are the parents of a son, Ivan, Jr., born December 19, at the Kingston Hospital. Mrs. Chrisey was the former Miss Elizabeth Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cox of Kyserike.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hornbeck of 482 Hasbrouck avenue are spending the winter months at Sarasota, Fla.

Sergeants John Clancy, Martin Glennon, William Ashdown and Vincent Crance have returned to Fort Lewis, Wash., after spending a nine-day furlough here. This was the first time they had been home in more than a year. Sergeant Clancy, who is from New Jersey, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Ashdown of Stephan street.

William Lahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lahl of the Plank road, has been promoted from private to sergeant in the U. S. Army Signal Corps at Washington, D. C.

Seaman Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Jacobs of 121 Green street, is attending the Army Administration Officer Candidate School No. 4, at State College, Miss.

Review and Dance

A review and dance will be held in the state armory on Tuesday evening, December 29, under the auspices of Company B of the New York State Guard.

Members of Company B have been notified to file with the commanding officers of the company a list of names of the guests they plan to invite to the review and dance as quickly as possible.

The committee in charge of the review and dance will meet Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the armory to complete plans.

Are Graduated at R. P. I.

CHARLES SCHREIBER

John A. McCullough, son of Hugh McCullough of 33 Orchard street; and Charles L. Schreiber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schreiber of Hurley, were among those receiving degrees today at the 118th graduation exercises at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy. A class of 250 seniors was graduated six months earlier than usual because of the demand for engineers, scientists, and technically trained personnel for the war effort. Both are graduates of the Kingston High School.

Mr. McCullough received the degree of bachelor of architecture in which he majored. He was secretary of the R. P. I. players, and a member of the Glee Club, Architectural Society, Theta Xi Fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega, Student A. I. A., and the senior ball committee. He is now a member of the naval reserve.

Mr. Schreiber was awarded the degree of bachelor of chemical engineering and he has accepted a defense position as metallurgist at the Adirondack Steel in Albany. He was a member of the student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers; Phi Kappa Tau fraternity for which he was rushing chairman this year; the "Pup" humor magazine, and Boot and Spur.

The famous port of Bristol is situated at the western limits of the early Saxon invasion of England.

Several airplanes have made nonstop flights between Africa and the United States during the present war.

Cast Is Given For Trinity Lutheran

The Trinity Lutheran Sunday school will hold its Christmas service in the church, Christmas Eve, at 7 o'clock. The Sunday school will have the honor of conducting the first service in the church proper since the rededication service for the redecoration of the church was held last Sunday morning.

The program will be:

The Angel Host—Lois Rider
Song of the Angels—Marilyn Albrecht, Alma Rider, Dolores and Beverly Nicholas and junior chorus
O Little Town of Bethlehem—Processional
Opening Versicle—Oscar J. Lawatsch, superintendent of Sunday school
Christmas Prayer — The Rev. Frank L. Gollnick
Christmas Poem — Miss Sophie Schmidtkonz
A Little Girl's Christmas—Donna Hyatt
In a Lowly Manger—Marilyn Albrecht, Frederick Bickert, Dolores Nicholas, Joseph Scott
Away in a Manger—Chorus
The Joy Bells of Christmas—Jay Rider
Sing for Joy—Junior chorus
A Child Like Jesus—Susanna Paulus, Janet Maines, William Marks and Richard Meyer with primary chorus
Christmas Bells—Beverly and Dolores Nicholas and Marilyn Albrecht
Christmas Everywhere — Betty Wagner
Merry Christmas Bells Are Ringing—Junior chorus
In Little Hearts the Joy Bells Ring—Shirley and Doris Henninger, Susanna Paulus, Charles Baechtle, Richard Meyer, William Marks
Sharing — Pauline Hohenberger, Frances Scott, Donald Lawatsch, Richard Gollnick
There's a Wonderful Tree—Alma Rider
Merry, Merry Christmas Bells — Junior chorus

POLITENESS ONLY RETURN OFTEN NECESSARY

Just politeness—and that of a very "ordinary sort" is the answer to a young girl who asks. "What return can I make to a lady who was a complete stranger to me several weeks ago—and is really a stranger now. She is a friend of my oldest sister and it was while I was on a visit to this sister that I was invited to come with her to a large party her friend gave. I had a grand time and everything was fine until afterward when I began to realize that I might be expected to make some return. What return can I make?"

To this, as I have said, the only return ever expected by a hostess of a young guest who came to no matter what sort of a party, is that the young girl shall have good manners at the party and remember the hostess well enough to go up and shake hands with her the next time they meet.

Unmarried Daughter to Give Party for Parents

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother and father will observe their fortieth wedding aniversary soon and I'd like to send invitations to their friends and to some of my own, to come in during the evening. I am not married and live at home with my parents. Please tell me how I could write these invitations on my visiting cards, or how I could use both their cards and my own. I don't want to have special invitations printed.

1902-1942
Wed. evening, Jan. 6
8 to 11 o'clock

It is true this will hardly suggest that the party is given by you. If that is necessary then you will have to write notes of invitation or have cards printed especially reading, "Miss...... requests the pleasure of etc." To your own friends enclose your own card with that of your parents.

The Bridegroom Is a Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is marrying a man who has just obtained his divorce. However, he did not live with his wife for three or four years before that, and in fact, never saw her during this separation. How long must we wait to give this wedding and how much of a wedding may we give our daughter due to the divorce?

Answer: Whether she may be married in church or even by your clergyman depends upon your clergyman's consent. It is likely that she may have to be married at home or in an assembly room by a justice. If your church permits and no special notoriety was connected with the divorce your daughter's wedding may take place at any time and be exactly the same as any other wedding of moderate size. She may of course wear white and a veil, and have a maid of honor or two bridesmaids, or both. But many attendants of his as well as her would be in doubtful taste.

Stratosphere Has Effect on Weight

Person of 150 Pounds Loses Six-Tenths of One Pound Up There

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Austin, Tex., Dec. 23—A 150-pound fighter pilot at 40,000 feet weighs six-tenths of a pound less than when he is on the ground.

The reason is the diminished pull of gravitation that far above the earth's surface. These human calculations are substantiated by a new University of Texas instrument which detects the change in gravitation in one-tenth of an inch movement up or down, that is, away from or toward the center of the earth. It records a gravitational change of one part in a billion.

The detector is giving science the first accurate records of a daily irregularity in gravitation. The irregularity is a slight rise and fall of gravitational pull about twice every 24 hours. Every human being is affected, but the change does not count in reducing overweight, because for each 100 pounds of flesh the variation at ground level is only about three one-hundred-thousandths of a pound.

The Texas apparatus is a gravitimeter, an instrument used by oil prospectors to detect deeply buried rock formations by their slight gravitational pull. This gravitimeter is a commercial instrument, refined by the work of former Texas University Physicists Doctors Romberg and La Coste, until it measures gravitational changes with an accuracy of one-tenth of one per cent. A. E. Lockenvitz, assistant professor of physics, records the gravitational variations.

The daily flluctuations are due to the pull of the moon mainly and the sun to a lesser extent, as they change their positions with respect to the center of the earth. Ocean tides are one result. The Texas records indicate that the daily change in this gravitational pull is somewhat greater than has been calculated.

Scientists believe there is also a tide in the earth's crust due to the same celestial pull. The gravitimeter possibly can be used as the first earth tide guage. For if the earth's surface, on which the instrument sits, on a concrete pier set in bedrock, rises even one-tenth of an inch. The instrument will measure and record the rise automatically.

Actually the records to date suggest a daily earth tide here at Austin of two or three inches. Longer observation and use of more gravitimeters to check this one, and readings at other places, will be required for certainty.

But if the earth tide gauges prove correct, seismologists will then possess a long-sought instrument with which to look for warning of earthquakes.

One theory which could be tested is that for some time preceding a quake the earth tides at the vicinity may rise gradually above normal.

The theoretical reason is that the rocks whose slow, sub-surface slipping builds up the tension which breaks in a quake, may produce a slight preliminary bulge in the coming quake area. The gravitimeter would read any such bulge.

How does gravitation travel? Does it go from mass to mass with the speed of light? Or is it something whose long tentacles are always spread? Science does not know. If gravitation travels, and goes no faster than light's 186,000 miles a second, it may well be that future gravitimeters can detect this movement through checking the gravitational fluctuations from sun and moon.

Mr. Lockenvitz and his assistants are making an average of about 500 mathematical calculations a day merely in checking the accuracy of the recordings of the daily fluctuations.

The instrument is a good, strong spring, with a weight attached to the lower end. The gravitational change elongates or shortens the spring by acting on the weight. Although this motion is too slight ever to be visible, a beam of light and a photo-electric cell detect the change. Electrical amplification transforms the tiny scale movement enough to record in inches up and down on a chart.

The gravitimeter has to be shielded from changes in atmospheric pressure, and kept at a temperature which never varies by as much as one-thousandth of a degree. Only earthquakes are able to interrupt its automatic recordings of gravitation.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 23—The most outstanding event of the holiday season this year in Woodstock will be a concert to be held in Town Hall at 8:30 p. m., on December 27, under the auspices of the Woodstock Committee for Russian war relief. The concert will consist of a recital by Horace Britt, world famous cellist, who will come to Woodstock especially for the evening and Validmar Padwa, pianist. Padwa has become a familiar figure in the music world, and has lately devoted his talent to the radio.

A number of people have arrived in Woodstock for the Christmas holidays. They are: Joan Goetz, Robert Peters, Nellie Robinson, Nancy Cooper and Doris Lapo. Others are expected soon.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman of Twin Gables and to Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. McLennan at the Kingston hospital Saturday morning.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — In mid-January, the Senate's Small Business committee is going to hold here a big powwow with 50 representatives of more than 300,000 small and medium business all over the land "to formulate a program."

If anything has been more talked about and less attended to since the United States went into high wartime production gear, it has been the plight of small business. Some legislation has been brought, but it is infinitesimal compared to the damage that has been and is being done in a great many areas.

As one observer put it, "Everyone seems ready to die for little business but very few are willing to sit down and work out constructive proposals that are in line with reality."

The Senate committee's invitation indicates that this group headed by Senator Murray (D.-Mont.), has a worthy ambition. At one point, the invitation says: "Today, an ill-planned war program is not only cutting off the fat, but is also in some sectors, cutting into the very bone of our civilian economy."

Some economists here think "the bone of civilian economy" (as well as the sinew of our middle classes) is small business and that unless something is done to save it from going down in the deluge of priorities, price controls, rationing, inventory controls and manpower shortages, our entire economic and even social system will undergo a change from which it will never recover.

Let it be said now that some economists, big business men and labor leaders think this would be a good thing. That and the inertia of the protectors of little business (with, perhaps, little business' lack of organization) is what has brought its present plight — a plight serious enough to force a Senate committee to call a three-day session to see what can be done about it.

Recently, I talked to a newsman who had just returned from the southwest and middle west.

"Figuratively," he said, "I saw hundreds of closed doors of small businesses which had signs hung on them, 'Gone to War,' or maybe 'Gone with the War.' I'll bet nothing has ever happened like this in the country since the post-Civil War depressions when so many small merchants folded and left signs on their doors, 'Gone to Texas'."

One interesting slant of the situation came the other day from a government official who asked that his name not be used. "The little businessman," he said, "is not suffering nearly as much as is made out. Many have had the ingenuity or fortune to get in on war contracts. Others have gone into war industry, and are making more money as workers than they ever made running their own businesses."

Nekos Is Lieutenant

Carlisle Barracks, Pa. — Two hundred and forty-eight enlisted men of the Medical Department of the Army became Second Lieutenants when they were graduated from the Officer Candidate Course at the Army's Medical Field Service School, Carlisle, (Pa.) Barracks, shortly before noon today. Among the group was Louis Nekos, 321 Washington avenue, this city.

Pudge Halsey—He's Always Loved a Good Fight

GROWING UP — (Left), Billy Halsey as a baby in his mother's arms. He wore curls — until his father saw them. (Center) At Pingry School he had a lot of "steam," played good football as a full-back. (Right) As he looked before entering Annapolis, where he was nicknamed "Pudge" for his square face and figure.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Now they're saying that Admiral "Billy" Halsey had a hand in the raid on Tokyo, just as he has had a hand in most of the important naval events of the Pecific war. And they're saying that his great naval victory in the Solomons was bigger than Jutland, in ships sunk and casualties inflicted.

His home town of Elizabeth, which has just celebrated Halsey Day, is not surprised.

"If he hits the Japs as hard as he used to hit us—God help the Japs," says Norman F. Charlock, recalling Halsey's football playing in prep school.

"Look at that bulldog jaw," a proud aunt comments.

"What did you expect from a boy who grew up in the Navy?" asks his white-haired mother, now in her 80's, a resident of Delaware who only recently gave up driving a car.

Not only did Elizabeth's 20,000 school children celebrate Admiral Halsey Day but a main highway probably will be named for him. And his birth place at 134 West Jersey street is already a tourist sight.

It is the launching of a tradition for a new American naval hero.

Has Navy Tradition

Billy Halsey grew up in the navy being the son of Captain W. F. Halsey, Sr., a navy man now buried at Arlington. His mother was a Brewster of the good ship Mayflower Brewsters.

When Billy arrived just sixty years ago in the Brewster mansion here, now occupied by Uncle J. O. Brewster, Captain Halsey was away at sea. It was three years before father saw son. And Billy was wearing blonde curls!

"The first thing his father did was to take him to a barber shop," says his mother. "I'll never forget that day."

A 'He-Boy'

His mother says Billy was a "he-boy." He had a lot of steam, played well at fullback, collected stamps, attended Pingry Academy and a Swarthmore, Pa., prep school. He had some fights, including the now legendary one in which a brawnier lad beat him up with a baseball bat. His mother asked him who did it.

"Never mind," said Billy, "I'll take care of that guy myself."

Old friends say Billy Halsey never gave thought to any other career. It was no surprise when he entered the Naval Academy in 1900. He was nicknamed "Pudge" for his square, thick-set, broad-shouldered figure, an inch or so under six feet. He played football, began to notice girls and was a so-so scholar.

Pals called him "the old salt"; an academy magazine said he looked "like a figurehead of Neptune."

Out of the Academy in 1904, he shortly afterwards married Miss Frances "Fanny" Grandy of Norfolk, Va. In 1911, he was on a destroyer; in the World War he commanded two, the Shaw and Benham, and won the Navy cross for distinguished service for patrol and convoy duties. In 1920, he was naval attahe in Berlin. Back to sea again, he climbed to command of a destroyer squadron. In 1930, he went to Norfolk training station.

At 52, Halsey was assigned to naval aviation and learned to fly. He later took command of the carrier Saratoga, then Penscola air station, and so on until in 1938, he was training the air squadrons for Carriers Yorktown and Enterprise. Then he turned again to the battle force in 1938.

Nine days before Pearl Harbor, he took an unusually large carrier task force out of Honolulu. He must have smelled trouble, for his orders were:

Couldn't Wait To Score

His officers call him a "tough old billygoat." He's not so pudgy today; there's a touch of gauntness in his square face and frame; his leathery skin crinkles about his blue eyes, and gray tinges his brown hair.

His specialties are "drive" and "lightning decisions that hit the button." Otherwise it's hard to get anyone to say that Halsey is anything but a "nice guy" or "strictly normal." He can't stand "spit and polish." He doesn't like to wear neckties. His officers' mess is a model of informality.

On the bridge, his favorite spot is atop a high stool, wearing his old sheepskin coat or, in thick weather, a black raincoat with letters "ADM" painted on the back. He outlines his strategy with masterful understatement, like this (after the Solomons battle):

Strategy In Reverse

"We do the exact opposite of what they expect us to do; we expose ourselves to enemy fire and shore-based planes. We do not stay behind the battle with our carriers.

"Most important: whatever we do, we do fast." His also is the dictum:

At Guadalcanal, Halsey's forces steamed right into the attack lines of the Jap armada. Jap ships were firing on each other in confusion. In reward for his achievement he was named full Admiral by the President.

Halsey's family has moved around a great deal. Their last residence was in Washington. Now the folks are at Greenville, Del. His wife, who was at Honolulu at the time of the bombing, lives there with their daughter, Margaret (Mrs. Lee Spruance). A son, William 3rd, has just finished at Princeton. His mother lives with her daughter, Deborah (Mrs. Reynolds Wilson), who is just a few years younger than the Admiral.

Cairo Is Ready For Prosperous, Relaxed Winter

Battle for Terrace Tables Supersedes Distant Campaign, Gossip Has Innings

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

Cairo, Dec. 23 (AP)—With the war now out of her own front yard Cairo seems to have wiped the chill sweat from her brow—if worried she ever was—and is now relaxing for a prosperous winter season. The battle of the Egyptian desert is ended; the battle for the sunny terrace tables at Shepherd's or the Continental-Savoy was begun in earnest.

In this theatre one must proceed with the decisive opportunism of the master tactician if he is to win lodgement on the wicker chair front. The rivalry is keen among officers here and the reward of a well-planned maneuver on the hotel terraces along Sharia Ibrahim Pasha is an hour or two of relaxation, liquid refreshment and a chance to participate in Cairo's principal pastime—rumor-mongering.

The zero hour in the battle of the terraces strikes daily at 12:30 p. m. when military regulations permit the first alcoholic beverages to be sold. A sluggard campaigner may easily be cut off and surrounded by filled tables and chairs before he realizes his plight. Unless he wants to drink standing up his best tactic is to stroll about, waiting for someone to be called to the telephone or something.

The favorite beverage on the wicker front is gin-lime, lime juice being highly considered as a fortification against tropical ailments. One gin-lime is considered adequate for even an hour of humor-swapping, although a minority of extremists lean to different ratios and some actually get along on lime juice and water, tea or cafe au lait.

For example, a new-found acquaintance of mine, working only on lime juice and water, heard that Spain was being occupied by the Germans and Portugal invaded in an allied counter-stroke.

Gossip, however, is not exclusively war-related. In fact many a gin-lime has been expended without a mention of the war. An acquaintance tells the classic example of a friend who injured his hand while closing an automobile door. He had to have it bandaged. Before bar closing time that night the trivial matter had been distorted into a story of fisticuffs in defense of a woman's honor.

It is academically interesting to speculate on the state of affairs if military regulations were relaxed and gin-limes sanctioned throughout the day and night instead of the present 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 to 10 p. m.

Hotels Are Crowded

Cairo's hotels are crowded; the whole town is doing a rushing business. A friend reporting a fluctuation downward in the local stock exchange readily credited it to the fact that the war news that day was excellent for the allies. The end of the war may well be followed by a depression here.

The terraces offer a kaleidoscope of uniforms of the United Nations, the British naturally predominating. Officers sit about, looking surprisingly like the pictures of them in the smart men's magazines, what with their mustaches and lean, tweedy outdoor look. Here and there one spots the dusty battledress of a man fresh from the desert.

Women are a distinct minority on the terraces but those appearing achieve considerable chic, considering the war's effect on feminine styles. Women in uniform also are rather a common sight.

Some observers, here for months, insist Cairo's outlook has not been changed. Others insist, however, that there have been perceptible signs of relief since the night of November 5 when the Axis retreat was precipitated by the British Eighth Army's break-through on the El Alamein front. The latter seems but natural.

The mingling currents of the Christian and Moslem worlds funnel through Cairo's streets as in ages past. The fezzed and robed driver of an American-made taxi may carry a visiting British India officer to a luncheon engagement with a Fighting French official just back from Equatorial Africa. The prosperous Egyptian merchant taking his thick Turkish-style coffee and morning smoke at a sidewalk table will lay down the tube of his hubble-bubble pipe to give street directions to the visiting American.

Wealth and poverty stream together through the avenues between the yellow-plastered squarish buildings. Filthy children forage swiftly along the sidewalks for cigarette butts, flies buzz with awful persistence and settle on the infected eyes of a baby riding the shoulder of its veiled mother. A limousine drawing up to the curb will disgorge an European prince or an oriental nabob.

Traffic in the principal streets is a constant racket. There is the unrelenting sound of all manner of automobiles and above their honking can be heard the clanging footbells of the fiacres and the clop-clop of the Arabian horses which pull these numberless open carriages.

Horses give a distinctive odor to Cairo's streets—though the newcomer soon gets used to it—and provide jobs for numerous sweepers who move along the streets swinging their long brooms in wide, dusty arcs. The refuse is gathered in limp baskets to be borne away by patient donkeys.

That is part of the Cairo which fails to attain in the hotel terraces and no doubt is the more interesting but until this writer finds how to outflank the omniscient guides who insist that he visit the sphinx and the pyramids he will not know much about it.

The Year of the Goat

AP Features

January 1 marks a new year for Japan too—2,603rd since founding of the empire. Following the custom of dedicating each year to one of twelve signs in the zodiac, and maybe with Oriental foresight, Japs list 1943 as "year of the goat."

On New Year's, the Japs lavishly decorate homes with bamboo, laurel, charcoal (keeps bad spirits away), dried persimmon (for health), dried bitter orange (for long life). They dress their best, feast, celebrate in advance the luck they hope the year will bring. In past years it has also been customary to look happy.

The Imperial household on New Year's traditionally goes to the Imperial sanctuary for the Shinto rites, Shihohai. At dawn worshippers throng to shrine compounds, bow before the rising sun, worship in four directions.

On January 2, Shigoto Hajime, they begin work with revelry on the theory they'll then be happy the year round. Next day is a national holiday—Genshi-sai, when government officials, peers, royalty appear at the Imperial palace to worship ancestors and to hope, in effect, that the current son of heaven has a happy new year.

New Rationing Form Has Been Instituted to Set Quotas Based on Supplies

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Aimed at preventing a recurrence of last week's gasoline crisis in the east, a new form of rationing for east coast gasoline and fuel oil suppliers has been instituted by Petroleum Administrator Ickes.

The new system will backstop the Office of Price Administration's rationing for the consumer by going to the source of supply, and is expected to combat "black market" operations whereby some retailers have used bootleg ration coupons to obtain supplies from the oil companies.

Ickes' program sets up for suppliers in six eastern zones quotas pegged to the amount of petroleum products that can be shipped into each zone with "presently available transportation facilities." Suppliers, in turn, are expected to assign quotas for wholesalers and retailers.

Since no supplier, wholesaler or retailer will have more gasoline to sell once his quota is exhausted, consumers may find their coupons are worthless at times. Either the consumers will go without gasoline or be forced to find a dealer who still has some.

Previously, the supply for the retailer or wholesaler was limited theoretically only by the amount of coupons which they received from consumers and turned into the suppliers.

A temporary limitation on gasoline sales was suddenly ordered in the east last week when it was discovered that the coupons had exceeded current supplies and dug dangerously into the area's petroleum reserves.

Quotas for the six zones were not announced but Ickes' office said the total for the east coast from Dec. 18-21 would be 365,000 barrels of gasoline; 184,000 barrels of kerosene; 340,000 of heating oils and 282,000 of industrial oils.

Ickes' order followed Price Administrator Leon Henderson's announcement that fuel oil rations in 13 midwestern states would be increased 10 per cent during period 3 and that consumers could begin using the period 3 coupons today instead of waiting until the original effective dates early in January. Henderson attributed the move to unusually cold weather in the midwest.

ers also have done excellent work in support of the Eighth Army, especially in bombing and machinegunning enemy motor transport and troops during the retreat. There has been no glamor about this job. It has just been steady slugging.

"The famous Royal Airforce Shark Squadron has been attached to our fighters, and this combination is now one of the crack fighter units of the whole desert.

"Back of this effort of course is service and supply to keep the airplanes flying. British cooperation in this service has been superb. At first we were entirely dependent on them and we still have to rely on them to some extent.

"I haven't the words to describe the whole-heartedness of this cooperation. Never once have the British turned down an appeal from us, and they have gone all out to service us.

"But there is more than that to the cooperation. When our men first arrived in desert they were great fliers but without practical experience in fighting. So the British taught us combat work. The R.A.F. put us through actual combat training. They first broke in one pilot. Then they added others gradually until we had reached a squadron. Now of course our own veterans do our training, but our first combat and operational schooling came from the British.

"Naturally relations between the two forces are extremely cordial. All the big personalities seem to click and the men get along fine."

I asked the general what he considered was our greatest contribution to the Eighth Army victory.

"Destruction of land and sea communications," he said, "the show has turned mainly on communications and supplies."

Van Kleeck Pleads To Driving Charge

Hotel Resident Fined $50 by Judge Cahill

Irving R. Van Kleeck, 26, of the West Shore Hotel, pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a truck while intoxicated when arraigned before City Judge Matthew V. Cahill this morning.

Public Hearing Listed On 1943 City Budget

Mayor William F. Edelmuth announced today that he would hold a public hearing on the tentative city budget for 1943, in the council chambers in the city hall on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The mayor said that as there were several changes to be made in the budget before the hearing that he was unable at this time to state that the tentative tax rate would be for next year.

Loses Wife, Gets $9,000

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 23 (AP)—Superior Court Judge Kenneth Wynne yesterday ordered Arthur H. Dolge, 63, Westport embalming fluid manufacturer to pay damages of $9,000 to Reginald W. Armstrong, 56, New York apartment house superintendent. Armstrong charged that Dolge alienated the love and affections of his 38-year-old wife, Alice, during 1940 and 1941 while she was a summer resident in Westport and asked $100,000 in a civil action heard by Judge Wynne. Dolge admitted during the trial that he was friendly with Mrs. Armstrong and that he had given her presents.

'Encouraging Sign'

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—O. W. I. Director Elmer Davis said today the declaration of peace and solidarity newly concluded between Spain and Portugal is "a very encouraging sign" that the Franco government of Spain is truly committed to a course of neutrality. All evidence reaching the Office of War Information indicates, Davis told a press conference, that the past signed during the Spanish foreign minister's recent trip to Portugal is a "sincere statement of Spain's intention to remain neutral."

Reds Capture 22,300 Germans

While the Red armies battled to inflict a crushing yuletide defeat on Adolf Hitler's invasion forces, the fate of the Axis in North Africa grew ever more precarious.

On the Libyan desert front, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army was reported to have advanced within 180 miles of Tripoli, capitol of Italian Tripolitania, after a 220-mile advance in 11 days from the old El Agheila line.

British headquarters in Cairo said Gen. Montgomery's vanguards continued to harass Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing Africa corps, while British sappers speeded the task of clearing away deadly minefields retarding the main advance.

On the Tunisian front, allied patrols skirmished with German forces yesterday 15 miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, which lies 35 miles southwest of Tunis, the capital, and also clashed with Axis troops 10 miles southeast of Mateur.

French Inflict Losses

French troops knifing toward the Gulf of Gabes coast below Tunis, in an attempt to cut off Axis communications between Tunisia and Tripolitania, were reported to have inflicted "serious losses" on the Germans in a fight yesterday.

An allied spokesman said there were no indications that "the enemy is in any great strength in that area, or anywhere in southern Tunisia," apparently having concentrated their forces in the strategic Tunis-Bizerte zone.

Allied bombers, warships and submarines continued to exact a heavy toll on Axis ships ferrying badly-needed reinforcements and supplies across the Mediterranean to North Africa, sinking at least two merchant vessels, damaging others and scoring two torpedo hits on a destroyer.

These blows, while minor actions individually, are playing a vital collective role in frustrating Adolf Hitler's desperate effort to maintain a foothold in North Africa and thus delay an allied offensive against the soft "under side" of Nazi-conquered Europe.

Possibly looking forward to the day of a great allied sweep across the Mediterranean, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander in chief of British forces in the Middle East, was reported to have paid a surprise visit by plane to inspect the eastern Mediterranean island of Cyprus, which lies off the coast of Syria and might serve as a base for an attack across the Dodecanese stepping-stone islands to Greece.

Meanwhile, Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, sought to buck up morale on the German home front by declaring that the decisive struggle was in Russia, not Africa, and that after Soviet resistance was wiped out "we will soon regain on the southern (African) front what we have had to give up."

In the Western Air War, RAF fighter planes attacked railway targets and damaged many locomotives in widespread sorties over France and the low countries last night, the British air ministry announced, while RAF coastal bombers pounded an Axis convoy off Holland and left two supply ships in flames.

In ancient Rome, an album was a board chalked or painted white, on which public notices were inscribed in black.

AN APPEAL

The Salvation Army winds up its kettle campaign Thursday and is making a final appeal for funds. The kettles located in several prominent spots of the city, will be taken up at 8 o'clock.

The funds obtained through the pennies, nickles, and dimes dropped in by passers-by will be used exclusively by the Salavtion Army in giving relief to the needy at Christmas time and in providing Christmas baskets and food.

This year the response from the mail appeal has been very slow and the demand for Christmas relief is as great as ever. There are old people, and the widows with large families, and we have several families where the husband, or father, has recently been drafted into the armed service.

We are in need of $200 to carry on our Christmas effort, and I am sure when the people of Kingston understand the problem we face, this difficulty will be overcome by your response by dropping your change in the Salvation Army kettle and sending your check to Adjutant W. J. Hoffman, 186 Green street, Kingston, or to the Salvation Army treasurer, John Saxe, State of New York National Bank, Wall street, Kingston, N. Y.

Do Not Travel Except For an Emergency

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23—"Make your Christmas a patriotic one," said Carroll E. Mealey, Chairman of the War Transportation of the New York State War Council, "Do not travel this Christmas except for an emergency.

"Buses and trains are already booked to capacity and in many places even standing room is no longer available because of the armed forces, architects, engineers and other war workers are going back to their homes or from one point to another on official business. If you are not compelled by emergency to travel, stay where you are for the holidays and help us solve this tremendous task of moving essential passengers."

The movement of troops and their equipment is of formost importance, explained Commissioner Mealey. Then come the welders, draftsmen, chemists, engineers, doctors and other war workers. Buses and trains should be reserved for them and all non-essential travel should be discontinued.

Rubber shortage and now further restrictions on gasoline affect increased passenger traffic at a time when there are not enough trains and buses to handle it. With a war on sixteen fronts at one time, the railroad companies alone are moving 2,000,000 men at one time. There is a close connection between freight and passenger traffic and if one is overburdened it slows up the other.

"Statistics show that one out of every three people using trains or buses travels for social purposes, "Mealey concluded. " I urge everyone in New York State, as a patriotic measure, to stay where you are for the holidays. Do not travel for non-essential reasons."

Rear Admiral McCain Tells That General Motors Will Build Grumman Ships

Newark, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—The Grumann-designed "Avenger" bomber and "Wildcat" fighter planes now in full-scale production at three New Jersey plants of General Motors' Eastern Aircraft Division have stopped the best that Germany, Italy or Japan can offer, Rear Admiral J. R. Mc Cain, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, has disclosed.

These planes, flown by U. S. Navy and Marine airmen, saved Australia from Japanese invasion and hurled back the enemy at Guadalcanal, McCain said at a meeting of General Motors executives and newspapermen at the Essex House Monday night. News of the meeting was delayed by wartime technicalities.

"There are no finer all-around aircraft of their class in service today," McCain declared.

He read a message from Rear Admiral W. F. Patterson of the British Admiralty, which said:

"It has been shown that the Martlet (British name for the Wildcat type) can deal successfully not only with the newest Italian fighters but also with the German (Messerschmidt) ME-109-F. German bombers are heavily armored, but the Martlets have a most satisfactory number to their credit. They have made light work of Italian bombers of all types."

Both planes are carrier-based types now being produced by General Motors at plants in Trenton, Linden and Bloomfield, in New Jersey, Tarrytown, N. Y., and Baltimore.

Woman, Absent for Month, Is Charged With Assault

Huntington Park, Calif., Dec. 23—Mrs. Margaret Wallace, 26, sought more than a month on charges of assaulting another woman with a rock and throwing her over a cliff, was arrested today.

She refused to answer questions, said Capt. Thomas Bryan, of the Los Angeles police, and called for an attorney.

Mrs. Wallace is charged with assault with intent to commit murder on Mrs. Inez Maclam, 22, along the seashore near Encinitas, Calif., November 17. Mrs. Maclam was found at the base of the cliff next morning, but her automobile and her children, Judith Rae, six weeks, Clark Edward, 13 months, and Kay Rose, four years, had disappeared.

The following day the two oldest children were found abandoned in the Union Railway Station at Huntington Park. The day after that, Judith Rae was found in an automobile. All were unharmed.

Mrs. Maclam, who is recovering from her injuries, told police she and Mrs. Wallace were motoring to San Diego and had stopped at the edge of a bluff to admire the view.

Tough On Vegetarian

Benny passes up all the untasty things like chicken, roast beef and turkey. "I hate meat and I don't eat anything that walks, swims, crawls or flies," says Benny. "And no pastry, please."

In the Army that takes in a lot of eating territory and so Benny has to be content with bread, potatoes and salads, of which he wishes there were more.

"My advice to vegetarians who go into the Army is this: Bring your own truck garden with you," says Ben.

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Christmas was forbidden in America for 22 years because the Puritan fathers believed it was a Pagan custom. In 1659 the General Court of Massachusetts enacted a law providing "a fine of five shillings for every offense if a body be found observing, by abstinence from work, by celebrating or attending a religious service. . . . such a day as Christmas Day." The law was repealed in 1681.

A teacher, examining a class in natural history, asked:

Teacher—Speaking of sheep, can any of you tell me the names of the male, the female and the offspring?

"How To Win Friends—"

The first thing is to go and buy a few cents worth of suet;
Then, in the center of a cup, you place (head down) a nail;
And 'round the nail put meats of nuts which may be fresh—or stale.
Next, pour some melted suet in 'til nuts cannot be seen.
When cold, if you will warm the cup a ball will come out clean.
Nail this on window-sill, or fence, and you'll win friends, with wings;
Who'll dine with you and, in bird talk, tell you some lovely things!

—Lyla Myers.

Hubby—Everything I tell you goes.

Wifey—Is that so?

Hubby—Yes, it goes all over the neighborhood.

Many soldiers, out of their not large pay, are buying war savings bonds. Maybe that will shame many of us into buying our share.

Sweet Young Thing—Not if you left me enough.

A minor executive of a large bakery who was accustomed to signing the firm's name at the bottom of all correspondence passing over his desk, was a proud, but slightly bewildered parent and had occasion to sign the baptismal register of the church and through force of habit he wrote: "Jones, Brown & Co."

The farmer's pink-cheeked daughter was coming up the lane. She was clad in a grimy pair of overalls, from the pockets of which bulged huge bunches of waste and sundry wrenches and pliers. In her hand was a dirty satchel rattling with an assortment of iron tools:

Stranger (meeting her)—Where are you going, my pretty maid?

Girl—I'm going a'milking, sir.

Stranger—But why the tools?

Girl—Trouble with that darned old milking machine, again.

It is better to be the smallest cog among the wheels than a monkey-wrench in the machine.

Exceptions To The Rule

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house not a creature was stirring, with the exception of—

Father, who wants to know what happened to the Christmas tree stand when he put it away last year—

Mother, who is trying to answer the telephone and Father at the same time—

Norman, aged 3, who is calling from the crib wishing to be informed if that noise he hears is Santa Claus—

An expressman, aged 150 by the way he feels, who is delivering a rocking horse at the side door—

Aunt Agnes, who has just dropped the library table drawer seeking a pencil to sign the receipt—

Grandma, who can't remember what she did with the Bedtime Stories she bought for Norman's Stockings and who wanders about like Lady Macbeth—

Annabelle, aged 16, who skips endlessly and wants to know if they can't unpack the new radio-phonograph tonight instead of tomorrow so she can ask some of the boys in to dance while father trims the tree—

A deliveryman who sounds like a troop of calvary in the front vestibule and who is with difficulty convinced that he has the wrong house—

Norah, the maid, who has just dropped a plate in the kitchen—

Jack, aged 13, who blows out a fuse while monkeying with the lights for the Christmas tree and throws the whole house in darkness—

East Greenbush School Saves Gas and Rubber

Albany, N. Y.—Leading other schools of the state in a new plan to save gasoline and rubber, the East Greenbush Central School District has instituted a policy of having its buses pick up children at designated stops placed not less than 1,000 feet apart instead of making stops at every house.

Benjamin R. Miller, the State Board of Education's representative on the War Transportation Committee of the New York State War Council today praised this war-time action which was brought about through the cooperation of the Board of Education and the student body.

"This is a most commendable war-time measure," said Mr. Miller, "and we urge all school supervisors to consider the possibilities of inaugurating 'skip stops' in their districts.

"The students themselves like it better. It shortens the length of time spent on buses to and from the school. It saves a significant amount of gasoline and rubber. And it aids in the war transportation conservation program," he added.

The "skip stop" method has proved satisfactory in other school regions, according to Mr. Miller. Reports from Pasadena, California indicate that when a shift of classes in the Junior High School and the Junior College was made one hour later, it resulted in the elimination of 370 school bus stops.

"Multiply the amount of gasoline and rubber saved in the East Greenbush Central School District by the numbers of similar schools throughout the state where 'skip stop' method could also be used and you get an appalling quantity of significant gas and oil saved" concluded Mr. Miller. "This is definitely a war measure and should be adopted wherever it is possible."

College and Professional Stars to Appear in All-Army Lineup

Two New Players Will See Action For Recreations

Game Here on Christmas Night Will Start at 9:15 Sharp, Recs' Manager Declares

It will be a battle of giants at the center-circle on Christmas night at the Municipal Auditorium when the All-Army team meets the Kingston Recreations at 9:15 p. m. in the weekly basketball game.

Kevin Connors, 6 feet 5½ inch center of the Army team will be ready to match Howie Bollerman, 6 feet 1 inch center of the Recs, for control of the tap. Connors was a member of a great Seton Hall College team last season. His youth should more than make up the one and half inch advantage that Bollerman will have in height. On finishing his college career last season, Connors signed a contract with the New York Yankees and was sent to the Norfolk, Va., farm team of the Piedmont League as a first baseman. He enlisted in the Army right after the baseball season and is now stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., where he plays with the 36th Armored Regiment basketball team. His signing a baseball contract with the Yankees started a feud between Larry MacPhail and Ed Barrow. In 1939, when he finished his high school education, the Dodgers signed the big blond first baseman to a contract. When he decided to go to college, Judge Landis made the Dodgers release him from the contract. Last season, Connors decided to enter organized baseball and the Yankees grabbed him before the Dodgers could do anything about it. MacPhail claimed he had a gentleman's agreement with the Yankee organization not to touch the youngster, but the Yankees laughed at MacPhail's statement.

Besides Connors, the All-Army team will line-up with Bernie Opper, Red Tough, Joe Bellis, Cy Winograd, Lyn Lacey and Bill Goodwin. Bellis is a former House of David basketball star and played with the Chicago Bruins of the National Basketball League. He is stationed at Scott Field, Ill. Winograd is a former College of the City of New York captain. He entered the professional basketball picture in 1939 with the Jersey Reds of the American League. Tough is a former captain and All-America selection from St. John's of Brooklyn. Opper is another All-America selection, who captained the 1939 Kentucky University basketball team. Goodwin hails from St. John's of Brooklyn and is stationed at Fort Knox. Lacey is from Richmond University, and last season was a catcher with the Louisville club of the American Association.

The Recreations will have Hagan Anderson ready for duty again after his recent back injury which prevented him from playing against the Detroit Eagles. The locals will be out to make it six straight and remain undefeated. Two new players will be in the line-up of the Recreations to replace Gershon and Goldstein, who will be in Trenton, N. J., on Christmas night playing with the Bengals of the American League, which team they are under contract with since last season. Friday night the Recs played a practice game against St. Francis College in Brooklyn, and Manager Turk Karam has decided to replace Gershon and Goldstein with Freddie Lane, former Columbia University player, and Max Berkowitz from Temple University. Both of these players stand two inches over six feet, and Karam feels they will fit in perfect with his system.

Due to weather conditions and transportation difficulties for the past two Wednesdays the Recreations players have arrived late in Kingston for the games, but definite plans, the management announces, have been arranged to start all future games at 9:15 p. m. sharp to give all the fans the proper rest for the next day's work.

Redskins' Coaches Worry About Over-Confidence

Philadelphia, Dec. 23 (AP)—The dizziest of all-football seasons brought forth another phenomenon today. The Washington Redskins coaching staff is worried about over-confidence.

"We can't lose," was the watchword of the winners of the National Football League playoffs as they arrived here last night to start drilling for their pro bowl class with the league's all-stars on Sunday.

"Nobody gave us a chance to beat the Chicago Bears," the players pointed out, "but we did it. And we can do it again."

Cardinals Break Up the Yankees

By DILLON GRAHAM

(AP) Features Sports Editor

New York—This was the year a speedy, sharp-hitting gang of St. Louis Cardinals did the job of breaking up the Yankees.

The New Yorkers were, as usual, king of the walk in their own league but in the world series, the Cardinals turned loose such a fast, crippling attack that the Yankees, at the finish, beaten four games to one, were all but stumbling around like dazed sandlotters.

This triumph came almost as an anti-climax to the Cardinals' great stretch drive to slice away a 10-game Brooklyn lead and win the National pennant in a stirring duel that lasted right down to the last day. Far behind the Brooklyn Dodgers, who in early August appeared to have the flag all but wrapped up, Billy Southworth's youngsters won 47 out of their last 57 games to overhaul the Flatbush Fusileers and grab the bunting in an almost photo finish.

Trailing by two games as they came into Brooklyn, September 10, the Cards walloped the Dodgers twice to gain a tie and then took the lead next day, and were never headed, although the aroused Brooklyns put up a stubborn last-ditch battled to the end.

Yanks Were Favorites

The Yanks, who made a runaway of their loop race, and clinched their sixth pennant in seven years on September 14, were series' favorites and it looked like another Yankee sweep in the first game as Red Ruffing set a new series' record by holding St. Louis hitless for seven and two-thirds innings. However, there should have been a sign of what was to come in the Cardinals' last inning uprising that drove Old Red from the mound before New York won 7-4.

From there on out, it was all St. Louis, with the Cardinals dazzling the Yankees with their speed to win four straight games. Rookie Johnny Beazley outpitched the Yankee ace, Tiny Bonham, to win the second game on Rookie Stan Musial's late single. Lefty Ernie White shut out the New Yorkers 2-0 in the third game, the Cards put on a late batting splurge to take the next 9-6 and Beazley came back to win his second game in the finale, which was decided by a ninth-inning home run by another rookie, Third Baseman Whitey Kurowski.

Marvelous catches by Terry Moore, great throws by Moore and Country Slaughter, blinding speed by the base runners, and timely hitting, combined to produce jittery performances by the usually calm and confident Yanks, such as Bill Dickey's wild throw over second base and the trapping of Joe Gordon off second in the last game. Gordon, top Yankee batter, couldn't buy a hit until late in the series.

Whitey Kurowski, St. Louis rookie third baseman, holds the bat with which he hit a home run that won the last game of the World Series and clinched the championship for the Cardinals. John Beazley (inset), was another Cardinal Rookie. He was credited with two series' pitching triumphs.

Williams Wins Triple

Ted Williams was the standout batter of the majors, winning the American league hitting triple and pacing the Boston Red Sox into second place, ahead of the surprisingly strong St. Louis Browns. He won the batting crown with a .356 average, knocked 36 homers and batted in 137 runs. However, the unpredictable, tempermental beanpole got into trouble—he was benched for loafing in July and fined $250. Boston had another young star in Rookie Shortstop Johnny Pesky, who led the majors in hits, 205.

Bulky Ernie Lombardi of the Braves won the senior circuit batting championship with a .331 average while Mel Ott, who did a fine job of managing the Giants into third place, led in homers with 30 and Johnny Mize of the Giants knocked in 110 runs. Bonham of the Yankees won 21 games as did Beazley while Mort Cooper of the Cards, who couldn't win either of his series' starts, topped the National pitchers with 22 triumphs.

Home runs by Lou Boudreau, serving his first year as Cleveland manager, and Rudy York of Detroit gave the Americans a 3-1 triumph in the All-Star game and the Americans then shut out a service team managed by Mickey Cochrane 5-0. Rogers Hornsby was named to the Hall of Fame.

Million For War Effort

With benefit games during the season and a large slice of world series proceeds, baseball contributed nearly a million dollars to war relief funds. Because of the war-time dimouts in the East, night games were replaced by twilight contests. An epidemic of bean ball pitches caused the National league to threaten a $200 fine for managers for every occurrence. Military calls and transportation problems forced 15 of the 41 minor leagues to fold up. Baseball attendance was off some eight per cent.

General Manager Larry MacPhail of Brooklyn resigned to enter the army and was replaced by Branch Rickey from the Cardinals. Detroit released Manager Del Baker and hired Steve O'Neill. Buck Harris of Washington resigned and was replaced by Ossie Bluege. Bill Terry quit as farm manager of the Giants.

Dodgers to Train Home, Seek College Facilities

By JUDSON BAILEY

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers are searching for a college field house in the vicinity of New York city with the idea of training at home, it was disclosed today as the exodus of major league clubs from their spring bases in Florida gained momentum.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, who revealed on Monday that Brooklyn had abandoned plans to train at West Palm Beach, said that the metropolitan area was being canvassed for suitable accommodations where the players might do their preliminary conditioning indoors.

"An ideal arrangement," he suggested, "would be two field houses in close proximity so that two clubs could train together. And I think I know of another club that would be interested in the same proposition."

Rickey expressed doubt that a month or six weeks of outdoor conditioning is necessary and said he believed that with proper preliminary gymnasium work, and batting in cages, ten days of outside practice might be sufficient for the opening of the season.

While Rickey was scouting for a training site in this area, the New York Giants announced that they were withdrawing from Miami and the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals stated they were looking around for a satisfactory switch from St. Petersburg, where the Yanks have trained for 19 years.

The Giants expect to locate in North Carolina and Secretary Edward Brannick said the training bases probably would be selected within a week.

The Yanks and Cardinals, who have shared St. Petersburg for many years, are seeking accommodations where they can continue to train together and Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yanks, disclosed that Albany, Ga., is under consideration.

Barrow also made public the fact that Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, had written all major league clubs suggesting the advisability of their moving out of Florida and finding locations closer home. The move resulted from Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman's suggestions that baseball travel be reduced to a minimum and also from the congestion of army camps in Florida.

What action other clubs will take as the result of Landis' letter has not been made known, but Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, said he had selected an alternative site "just in case it is necessary" to leave Tampa, Fla. Four clubs that had planned to train in California, the Chicago Cubs and White Sox, the St. Louis Browns and Pittsburgh Pirates, also have called a meeting to decide upon a possible switch to Hot Springs, Ark.

The Giants announced the cancellation of a ten-game exhibition tour with the Cleveland Indians and also that their Jersey City farm club would not train at Jacksonville, Fla.

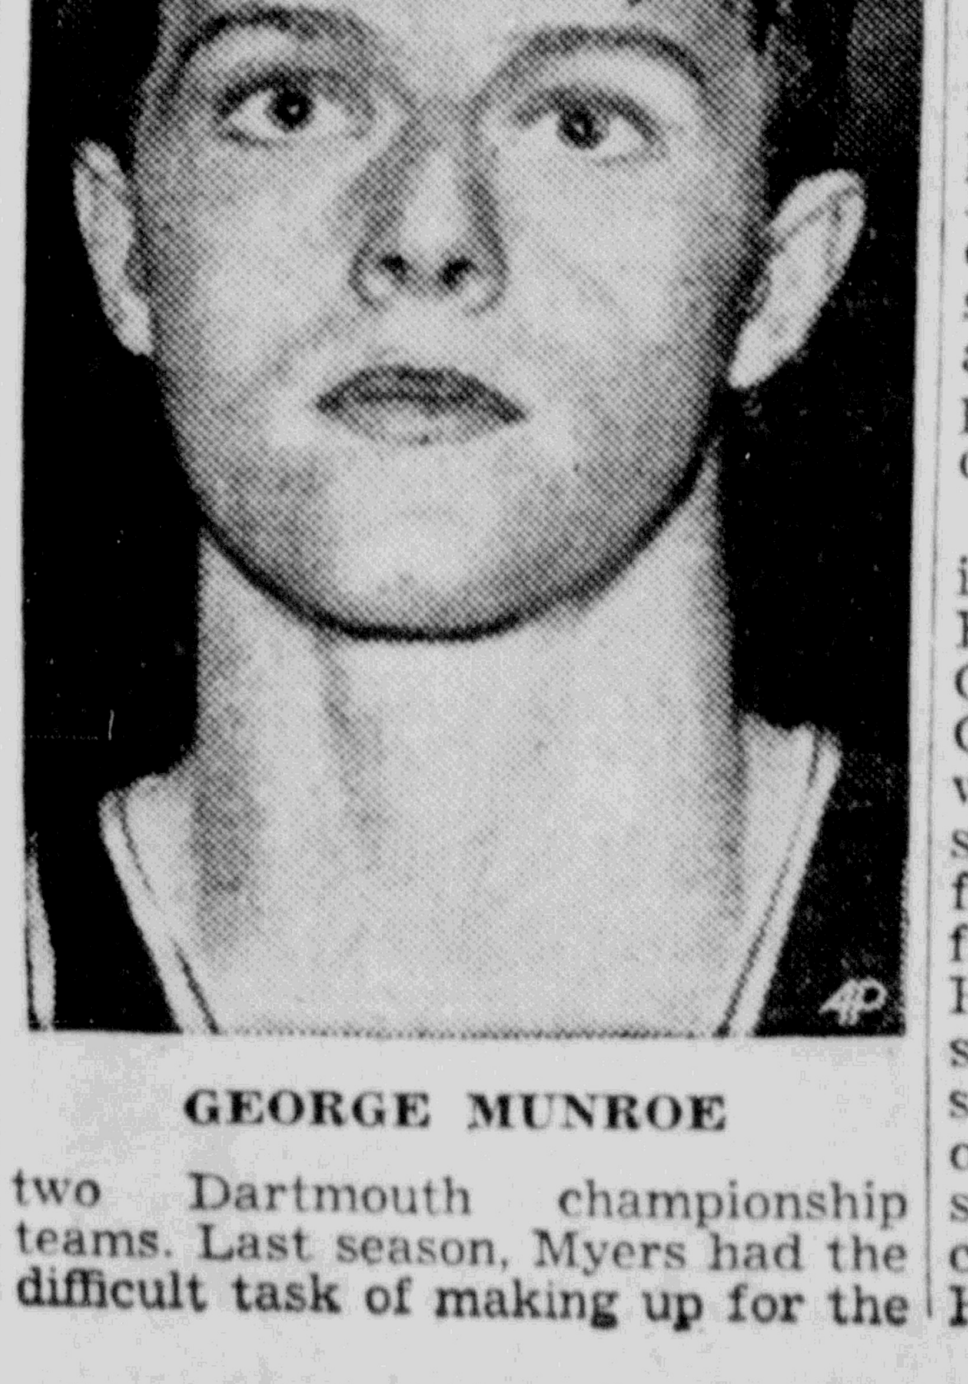
Dartmouth Counting on Four Vets To Win 6th Straight Eastern Title

(AP) Features

Hanover, N. H.—The fact that four of the five players who carried Dartmouth to the National Intercollegiate basketball finals last season are ready for another campaign, makes the "Big Green" a strong favorite to annex its sixth straight Eastern Intercollegiate title.

The only major problem confronting Coach Ossie Cowles is to find a guard to replace last year's captain, Stub Pearson. Otherwise, the Green's championship quintet is intact with Bob Myers of Wyoming, O., and high scoring George Munroe of Joliet, Ill., at the forwards, Jim Olsen of Stewart Manor, N. Y., at center, and captain Stan Skaug of Clarkfield, Minn, at guard.

Jim Briggs, also from Wyoming, O., is the leading candidate for the vacant position, largely because of his experience as a substitute guard last winter. Brigg's chief rival is Jack Monahan, the West Haven, Conn., youth who was a guard on last season's freshman five.



GEORGE MUNROE

Captain Skaug, Munroe, and Olsen have been the nucleus for two Dartmouth championship teams. Last season, Myers had the difficult task of making up for the loss of Gus Broberg. After a hectic 1941-42 campaign, which saw Dartmouth defeat Princeton for the E.I.L. title and gain the finals in the Nationals in the same week, all four can be regarded as veterans in the true sense of the word.

None of Cowles' basketball teams of Dartmouth have had to rely wholly upon the ability of one player, but, nevertheless, George Munroe is the outstanding individual on this year's squad. Last season the six-foot blonde forward amassed 175 points to almost topple Broberg's all-time E.I.L. record.

The Big Green also has promising reserves for every position. Besides Briggs and Monahan, Coach Cowles has freshman Jim Coleman of Asbury Park, N. J., working out at guard on the varsity squad. Andy Cartensen, six-foot-four center on last season's freshman five, from Cleveland Heights, O., will be able to take some of the burden off Jim Olsen's shoulders. Jack Carroll, another player up from the freshman squad of last winter, looms as a capable understudy for Munroe. His home is in Fremont, O.

'Sack 'Em Up Sax' Best Tulsa Pigskin Snatcher

By ED CURTIS
(AP Features)

His teammates of the unbeaten, untied University of Tulsa Golden Hurricanes call him "Sack 'em up Sax." The six-foot, one-inch end has gathered in 35 passes for 509 yards, scoring nine touchdowns this season.

Judd, Cal Purdin and John Green will be the principal targets for passers Glenn Dobbs, N. A. Keithley and Clyde LeForce as the Hurricane unlooses its aerial circus against Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, New Year's day.

Purdin, a wingback, has caught 24 passes for 363 yards; Green, 14 for 300 yards. Backfield Coach Buddy Brothers says Purdin is the most underrated back on the Tulsa squad.

Thought unassuming, Judd can't resist letting the quips fall where they may. Against Oklahoma A. and M., Judd caught a pass near the sideline and was promptly blocked out of bounds in front of the Oklahoma Aggie bench. Looking up he saw Aggie Coach Jim Lookabaugh.

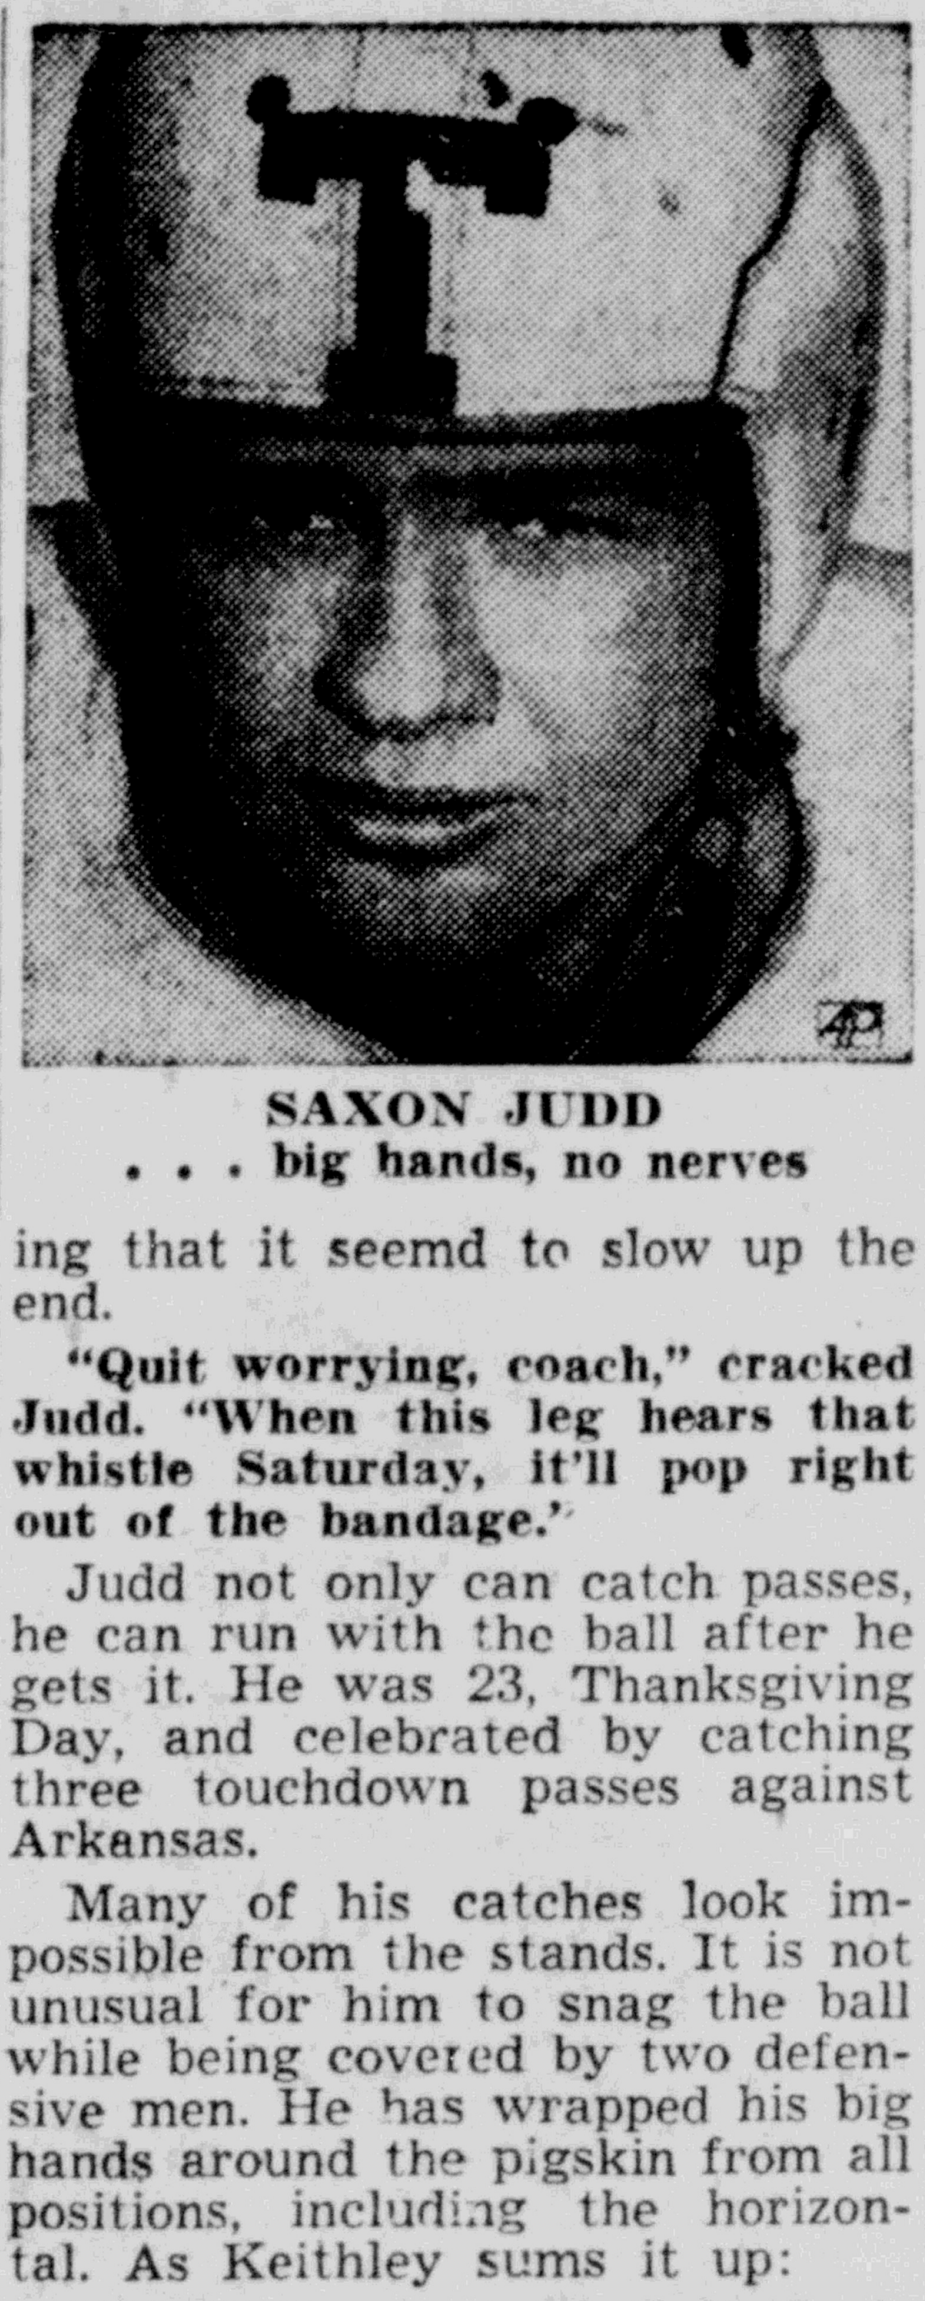
Before an out-of-town trip, Coach Henry Frnka thought his squad looked sluggish in its last workout. Frnka started down the line, speaking to each player. Stopping before Judd, Frnka inquired about a minor leg injury, remarking that it seemd to slow up the end.

TULSA'S BOWL RECORD

Tulsa (AP)—Tulsa has played in only one football bowl game. The Hurricane beat Texas Tech 6-1 in the 1942 Sun Bowl contest.



SAXON JUDD
. . . big hands, no nerves

Judd not only can catch passes, he can run with the ball after he gets it. He was 23, Thanksgiving Day, and celebrated by catching three touchdown passes against Arkansas.

Many of his catches look impossible from the stands. It is not unusual for him to snag the ball while being covered by two defensive men. He has wrapped his big hands around the pigskin from all positions, including the horizontal. As Keithley sums it up:

Judd is a fine defensive player, a difficult man to block out on a play. He weighs 187 pounds and handles himself nimbly, using finesse rather than power to smear the opposition.

Light Tournament Is Narrowed to Three Competitors

By LARRY SMITH

Cleveland, Dec. 23 (AP)—Matchmaker Larry Atkins' tournament to crown a light heavyweight "duration champ" was narrowed to three competitors today.

Anton Christoforidis, spotting his adversary six pounds at 166, won a 10-round decision over dusky Nate Bolden from Chicago before a crowd of 5,534 fans who paid $12,816.50 to watch the tame tourney inaugural at the arena last night.

Only some fast and furious leather-slinging in the last two rounds gave the fans any excitement. Both boxed cautiously, looking for an opening that never developed and meanwhile delivering head jabs and engaging in close in-fighting, there were no knockdowns or heavy assaults.

Christo, former light heavyweight champion who drew with Bolden at Chicago last August, got the nod from referee Jackie Davis and both judges. The judges gave the Clevelander five rounds while the referee was generous enough to see him winning seven.

The Greek made the most of the in-fighting while Bolden gained his points in the early rounds. The Chicagoan was the aggressor in the best stanzas—the ninth and tenth—but Christo tied up each assault and then scored in the clinches.

For the next round of the tournament, negroes Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland and Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, have been tentatively matched in a January 7 meeting. Charles decisioned Christo early this year and the National Boxing Association rated the Cincinnatian the logical contender for the championship of Gus Lesnevich, now in the coast guard.

The crowd-pleaser on last night's card was the eight-round semi-final between Lulu Costantino, highly-regarded New York featherweight, and Joey Pirrone, Cleveland lightweight.

Pirrone, who has more slugging ability than boxing knowledge, sent Costantino to the canvas for a count of seven in the opening round and again floored the New Yorker for no count in the seventh.

Oddest Happening Was by Alex Agase

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—In a year when all sports turned up strange and startling happenings the oddest of all was the feat of a University of Illinois guard, Alex Agase, scoring two touchdowns to upset once-mighty Minnesota.

Sports writers polled by the Associated Press recalled no less than 152 different freak occurrences of 1942, but 33 of these observers settled on that touchdown fantasy as the rarest of the crop.

Guards are seldom even seen, let alone spotlighted as was Agase. Yet he not only tallied twice for the Illini, he did it the odd way. First he "stole" the ball from a confused Gopher back and romped over for one touchdown, then he fell on a fumbled pass from the Minnesota center to account for touchdown No. 2.

Next to this performance the writers, with football fresh in their minds, recalled best the various backs who caught their own passes at some time or another during the season. Bruce Smith of Great Lakes tossed one against Notre Dame and caught it on a ricochet for a 12-yard loss. Ray Evan of Kansas was another who performed a similar stunt.

Just to refresh your memory of some of the year's other wacky didoes—here are some of the incidents that drew chuckles and votes from the scribes:

The Louis-Conn fight that didn't come off; Conn's breaking his hand in a kitchen fight with his father-in-law; Minnesota's victory over Michigan on a field goal dropped kicked after time should have run out in the first half; the four-inch margin by which Wisconsin missed a touchdown against Iowa; Whirlaway's walkover to pick up $10,000 in the Pimlico Special; and Red Ruffing getting knocked out of the box in the World Series after almost getting a no-hitter.

'Red' Cagle, Famous Football Player, Is Dead

John Borican, Great Natural Athlete, Dead

Bridgeton, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—John Borican, one of America's great natural athletes, died last night.

The powerful body which carried him to numerous world track records and national championships had wasted away to a mere 110 pounds through an ailment which his family said specialists were unable to diagnose.

"They don't seem to know what's the matter with me, or maybe they don't want to tell me," Borican said recently at his apartment-studio in New York. "You wouldn't know me anymore."

All sports came easy to Borican, a perfecty proportioned, six-foot negro. Only a few months ago, weighing 170 pounds, he had run off with the National A. A. U. 800-meter outdoor championship. He had breezed through the indoor season, adding the 800-meter, the 880-yard and the 1,000-meter world records to his ever increasing list.

He had captured the 1,000-yard national title for the third straight year and had doubled up to take the 600-yard and 1,000 yard K. of C. races one night with seeming lack of effort.

Borican was a star in every sport at Bridgeton High School. He attended Temple University for a year but had to retire because of illness. Later at Virginia State College he starred at football, baseball, basketball and track. He received a master of arts degree at Columbia University and was a candidate for a Ph. D. when he died.

As a youth in Bridgeton Borican was a delicate and diffident child and early turned to the arts and social studies. But as he grew older his remarkable athletic abilities took up more and more of his efforts.

Borican, however, never lost his interest in arts. He was an accomplished oil painter and his portraits hung in several exhibitions. Until several months ago he was assistant director of the Newark Boys Club where he helped in rehabilitating many of the poorer Negro boys of Newark.

Three months ago Borican began to fail. He lost weight and found his workouts tiring. Physicians referred him to specialists and he went to hospitals for observation.

Several weeks ago he said he was going home for Christmas to be with his family over the holidays.

Found Semi-Conscious in Lobby of Apartment Where He Lived With His Wife

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Death, with a background of mystery, came today to one of the greatest football players of all time—Christian Keener (Red) Cagle, whose brilliant ball-carrying for Army twice brought him All-America glory.

The sandy-haired, 37-year-old athlete, unanimous choice for All-American halfback in 1928 and 1929, died in a Queens hospital at 12:40 a. m. (E. W. T.) of pneumonia and a skull fracture.

Cagle, who carried his talents to the professional gridiron and once was part owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional eleven, was found semi-conscious Saturday night in the lobby of a Queens apartment house where he lived with his wife.

Police said they had not yet determined how Cagle received the head injury. Asked if the athlete might have been assaulted, Deputy Inspector Edward Mullins declared:

"We are convinced that Mr. Cagle received his injuries in Queens. How he received them, we do not have enough information to be certain. We cannot assert he was assaulted."

Police said the house superintendent, who with Mrs. Cagle brought the athlete to the hospital, told them that Cagle had muttered "something about being kicked in the head."

A native of Merryville, La., Cagle played for Southwestern before going to the U. S. Military Academy. He made his first gridiron appearance for Army in 1927, but it was not until the next season that he won widespread fame. By 1929, when he captained Army, he probably was one of the most publicized football players in the world.

Cagle, who at the time of his death was employed by an insurance company, resigned from West Point, by official request, in 1930, when his marriage to Marion Munford Haile, of Gretna, La., became known. They had been married for two years. Cadets may not be married while at the military academy.

In 1930, 1931 and part of 1932, Cagle played with the professional New York Giants—at $7,500 a year. In 1933, he and John (Shipwreck) Kelly, the husband of Heiress Brenda Frazier, bought the Brooklyn Dodgers, but the next year Cagle sold his share to Daniel L. Topping.

The Cagles had two children.

Blue and Gray Squads Announce Captains

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 23 (AP) —The Blue and Gray squads announced captains today to lead the starting elevens in the fifth annual North-South all-star game here Saturday.

The Northern Blues selected Victor Peelish, West Virginia guard, and Bill Vickroy, Ohio State center, as co-captains for the intersectional classic.

Jumpin' Joe Muha, smashing V. M. I. fullback, was named captain of the Southern Grays by one vote over Garrard Ramsey, William & Mary guard, who was elected alternate captain.

Each team boasts of stars in every position. One team will play the first quarters and another the second for each side and the second half will see teams made up of outstanding players from the first half.

The backfields are almost set. For the North, Brundage of Pennsylvania and Barrett of Georgetown will play fullback, Bezemes of Holy Cross and Mutryn of Xavier, tailback; Grigas of Holy Cross and Wolfe of Dartmouth, wingback; Adams of Missouri and Doloway of Indiana, blocking back.

Black of Mississippi State and Johnson of William & Mary will share the fullback slot for the South; Thomas of Tulane and Jones of Union, tailback; Gafford of Auburn and Muha of V. M. I., wingback; McDonald of Tulane and Proctor of Furman, blocking back.

Private Melvin Lynch Extends Holiday Greetings

Private Melvin Lunch, who is now stationed at Fort Custer, Michigan, attached to Company C, 769 Battalion, in a letter to The Freeman, requests that his Christmas greetings to the Dodgerettes and friends in Wilbur and Kingston be published.

The former Dodgerette manager says that the people in Michigan are swell and extend a warm welcome to the soldiers. He says the food and quarters at Fort Custer are tops.

The trip from Fort McClellan, Alabama, to Michigan, was very joyful, he states. Soldiers from all over the country in this camp are all grand fellows, he asserts.

Five 'Jacks'

Atlanta, Dec. 23 (AP) — When Coach W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech asks for "Jack" he has to be specific. No less than five of the 35 Yellowjackets making the jaunt to Dallas for the Cotton Bowl clash with Texas bear that first name. The Tech mentor has two ends named Jack—Capt. Jack Marshall and Jack Helms. And he has two ball-toters named Jack, Hancock and Faulkner. Jack Jordon, a guard, is the fifth player with that given name.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Dec. 23 — Lieutenant Virgil B. DeWitt, M. C. of the 68th Medical Regiment, Camp Forrest, Tennessee, arrived home Monday, December 21 for a visit with his family. His many friends are also very glad to see him.

The church service Sunday morning in the Reformed Church was in charge of the members of the Sunday School. There was singing of Christmas carols, antiphonal reading of Scripture by classes and a dramatization "He Came to Minister." An offering of clothing and food was received for those in need in our community and a special offering from the Sunday School and congregation for the Reformed Church War Emergency Fund for the relief of suffering in all parts of the world. The junior choir and the senior choir led the singing. The entire program was directed by Miss Arietta Snyder, superintendent of the Senior Department, who is taking the place of Ralph Johnston during his illness.

PROCLAMATION

The People of the State of New York, by the Grace of God free and independent:

GREETINGS:

Whereas, a Trial Term of Supreme Court and Jail Delivery is to be held in and for the County of Ulster, at the Court House, in the City of Kingston, on Monday the 4th day of January, 1943. We Command you, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 222-a of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in that case made and provided: First.—That you summon the several persons who shall have been drawn in said County of Ulster, pursuant to law, to serve as Grand Jurors and Trial Jurors at the said Court to appear thereat. Second.—That you bring before the said Court all prisoners then being in the Jail of said county, together with all process and proceedings in any way concerning them in your hands as such Sheriff. Third.—That you make Proclamation, in the manner prescribed by Section 222-c of the Code of Criminal Procedure, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said Court by recognizance or otherwise, to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, and other officers who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at such Court, or who shall have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said Court at the opening thereof, on the first day of its sitting.

Witness, Hon. Harry E. Schirick, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, this 8th day of December, in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-two.

N. LEVAN HAVER
District Attorney

In pursuance to the above precept, I hereby make proclamation that a term of Supreme Court of Ulster County and Jail Delivery will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the first Monday of Jan. next, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day; and all persons who will prosecute against persons confined in the jail of said County are required to be then and there present, to proceed as may be just; and all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognizance or otherwise, are required to appear thereat; and all Justices of the Peace, Coroners or other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court, or who may have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, are required to return such recognizance, inquisition and examination, to the said court, at the opening thereof, and on the first day of the sitting thereof, and to be then and there present with their rolls and records, indictments and remembrances, to do those things which to their offices pertain.

Dated, City of Kingston, December 8, 1942.

Icy Going Forces Cars Off Streets

Late Christmas Shopping Is Almost at Standstill

The cold wave which has gripped the east for several days was broken Tuesday when temperatures rose from 20 to 30 degrees and by mid-afternoon the mercury hovered near the freezing mark. Early in the afternoon a light rain began to fall, covering streets and roads with a coating of smooth ice.

Travel was so difficult by early evening that the Christmas shopping crowds were cut to a minimum and some of the local stores closed early when customers failed to appear.

In Kingston the sidewalks were covered with a glare of ice which made walking almost impossible and caused motor traffic to dwindle to a mere trickle. Private cars were scarce and some of the public conveyances ceased to operate. Taxi concerns continued to operate for a time under difficulty but later in the evening some of the cabs were removed from the streets and the operators in the interest of safety declined to send out cars.

In the county, highways were made extremely dangerous and sanding operations were conducted all night by the entire force of county trucks. These trucks were compelled to remain on the job since the rain froze as it fell and made necessary re-sanding of the roads and the sand was covered repeatedly with an icy coating.

Sand trucks operated over all of the main arteries and what limited traffic was on the roads continued at reduced speed. No serious accidents were reported and it was reported at the Ulster County Garage this morning that no emergency calls had been received by the Highway Department for aid. Sand trucks were still out this morning completing the job.

At the Payne hill in West Park several large trucks operating on 9-W were stalled despite efforts to keep the hill sanded. In many instances the big tractor-trailer vehicles did not have chains and were helpless until sand had been applied.

One driver of a New York to Kingston bus reported that he had driven up to Rosendale before he encountered hard ice and from that point to Kingston it took an hour and a half to make the trip because of ice on the hills.

The County Highway Department reported the ice condition general throughout the county and in no place did the storm come in the form of snow. Temperatures hovered around the freezing mark all night.

Weary Boston Men Fight More Fires

Firemen Have Answered 200 Calls Since Saturday

Boston, Dec. 23 (AP)—Boston's hard-pressed firemen, who have answered more than 200 alarms since Saturday night, were routed out again today for a three-alarm fire in Roughan's Hall, a five-story brick block in the Charlestown section.

The fire, cause of which was undetermined, was confined chiefly to two vacant stores, but a roller skating rink, a ballroom, bowling alleys and law offices suffered smoke and water damage.

District Chief Patrick J. Collins pulled the extra alarms immediately upon arrival to obtain an adequate force to prevent the fire from spreading through the congested city square district. Coast guards aided the weary firemen.

Some of the fire trucks responding to the first alarm lacked their full crews and those who were aboard were almost completely worn out from responding to the scores of recent calls.

Most of the calls were for frozen sprinkler systems or overheated furnaces, but one was for a lengthy four-alarm fire yesterday in a waterfront coal yard—the fourth major fire in the past six weeks.

Loudon Says Victory Needs Practical Realism

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—It will take "practical realism" to win the war and assure peace, the Netherlands ambassador to the United States told 250 graduating seniors of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute today.

In a speech prepared for commencement ceremonies advanced six months by R. P. I.'s wartime schedule, Alexander Loudon declared:

"We may try, even with some success, to educate the Germans and the Japanese to become decent members of the family of nations, but we must use great care in applying to them our democratic standards of idealism, to which, in the light of their own history and deeds, they are completely allergic."

Ambassador Loudon said that people of the United Nations should learn to know their Axis enemies by studying their history and psychology.

"It is imperative for winning the war, and for winning the peace," he asserted. "If we want to deal with our enemies in the way which is compatible with our Christian conception of human rights and duties and with our democratic spirit, we can do so provided that we take into serious account the mentality of the enemy."

Speaking of Italy, Loudon said, "for once, the enemy has been over-estimated. We now know that for Mussolini and his Fascist system we can have only contempt; we need not have fear."

Shipment of export freight to U. S. ports by American railways has increased more than 40 per cent since Pearl Harbor.

Knights Entertain Children

Corp. William A. Krom Writes from Oklahoma

Letters Chase Soldier

Lamar, Mo. (AP)—Lieut. Fred Finley of Lamar has been complaining in his letters recently that the folks back home never write but if his mail ever catches up with him he's going to have a real writing job of his own to do. His bride has written him 81 times but apparently the letters haven't followed him yet through England, Ireland, Scotland and to Africa.

Dolls Are Always Children's Choice

Santa Will Leave Many Teddy Bears This Year

Chicago, Dec. 23 (AP)—Santa Claus will carry a new variety of playthings in his pack this wartime Christmas, but dolls — old when recorded history began—still remain the most popular children's toy, says a Northwestern University phychologist.

And under the Christmas trees in American homes, said the psychologist, Dr. Grayson L. Freeman, Santa will leave more teddy bears—a doll—than any other single kind of toy. Another favorite toy of children is a ball—preferably a red one.

Facts about toys and their history are related in a recently published book by Dr. Freeman and his wife, who said that "viewing the toy world of the past is like looking at history in miniature. Every important event, even to the guillotine of the French revolution, has left its mark in a plaything."

They said that toys also have been instrumental in shaping cultural forces. A preoccupation with tin soldiers and gun play helps mold a race of militarists, they said, whereas an emphasis on construction toys tends to develop inventive tendencies.

Dr. Freeman said that wooden dolls were found in the Egyptian tombs and in the excavations of ancient Greece and Rome. Puppet dolls also were used in the middle ages, largely in connection with ceremonials.

Of all the dolls of modern times, the psychologist said, none has enjoyed the popularity of the teddy bear, which has become a standard item on toy counters all over the world. The teddy bear and his stuffed cousins, Dr. Freeman said, top all others in popularity. He explained the first teddy bear was designed from a cartoonist's version of President Tneodore Roosevelt's bear hunt in the rockies—and the doll was called a "Teddy bear."

As a toy, the ball has as great antiquity as the doll, said the Freemans whose research disclosed that pottery, wood and papyrus balls were common in ancient Egypt. They also said that while mechanical toys were known to the ancients, they appeal more to adults than to children, who prefer dolls, blocks and balls.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of the powers vested in me by law, I shall on Wednesday, December 30, 1942, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the Court House in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, commence selling at public auction, so much of each of the said several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land, as shall be sufficient to pay all State, County, Highway, School or other taxes assessed thereon in the year 1941 and also upon certain lands in the years 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, that may then remain due on each thereof, respectively together with the interests, costs and charges which have arisen or accrued or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall sell, and continue from day to day to sell, until the said sale shall be completed. The purchaser at such sale shall pay the amount of their respective bids to the County Treasurer within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale and receive certificates describing the lands purchased, the sums paid, and the time when the purchaser will be entitled to deeds and after the expiration of one year from the last day of such sale, they shall be entitled to receive conveyances of the lands so purchased by them, respectively, or at their option may foreclose the lien provided by law unless said lands shall have been previously redeemed pursuant to law, by payment to the County Treasurer, for the use of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, the sum mentioned in the certificate, with interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the date of such certificate and any tax which the holder of such certificate shall have paid between the days of sale and redemption together with the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem the real estate sold for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the County Treasurer to the real estate so redeemed.

C. A. LYONS,
County Treasurer.

British Prisoners Tell of Treatment By the Japanese

Chungking, Dec. 23 (AP)—Three Britons who escaped after a Japanese prison transport was torpedoed and sunk Oct. 1 have reached free China and describe as appaling the conditions under which they and nearly two thousand other prisoners of war were confined by the Japanese.

A British embassy release told today of their experiences.

The three, Warrant Officers J. C. Fallace and W. C. Johnstone, and A. J. W. Evans of the British-American Tobacco Company, said they and British Naval and Military officers of the Hongkong Garrison were crammed into the hold of a freighter with virtually no sanitary accommodations while being transported to Japan.

They said no special provisions was made for the sick, although many prisoners were suffering from dysentery, beri beri or diphtheria.

The sick were placed on a steel deck and permitted to lie on their blankets with a tarpaulin to shelter them when it rained. They were given adequate food, but water for drinking purposes only, the escaped men declared.

The ship with its miserable human cargo left Hongkong Sept. 29 and was torpedoed about 7 a. m. on Oct. 1. Immediately all prisoners on deck were ordered back into the holds, where they were forced to remain all day without food or water.

That night the hatch boards were closed and the chute cut down and allowed to fall on the prisoners below.

The hatches were so battened that there was no ventilation in the holds. The only sanitary provision for the 400 men in the hold with the three escaped men was a single bucket.

After a terrible night, in which two men died, the tarpaulins were removed from the hatches and the prisoners managed to reach the deck. They found that the entire stern of the ship was submerged and appeared to be resting on the bottom. The bow was high out of the water.

The Japanese apparently had abandoned the vessel. Hundreds of prisoners jumped into the sea and started swimming toward five or six Japanese auxiliaries that were cruising slowly between them and the land in the distance. Some of those in the water were shot by the Japanese, the refugees charged.

Suddenly the vessel sank, leaving only the crosstrees of the masts above water. Those prisoners who could, made their way on rafts to the Japanese ships, which picked up a few, but made no real effort to save the vast majority. The three survivors who reached China said they passed very close to the Japanese vessel but that their cries for help were ignored along with those of hundreds of others.

LEIBHARDT

Leibhardt, Dec. 22—There will be a Christmas service conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Douglas Fletcher, of Kerhonkson, Wednesday evening in the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Locke of Camp Shady Rest have presented a new carpet to the Samsonville Church.

Mrs. Lena Lypka has received word from her son, Pvt. Peter Lypka, that he is in North Africa.

Joan Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Crawford, who has been at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital in Ellenville, is reported to be greatly improved.

Mrs. Ross Crawford and two children spent Tuesday with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Spencer Quick, of Rochester Center.

Mrs. Floyd Brown of Samsonville will hold her Christmas exercises Wednesday evening. The Goodfellowship Club has a part in the program.

Mothers Line Up for Service

Portsmouth, N. H.—The newly formed "Service Mothers' Clubs," which have grown out of the local U. S. O. club, will turn over spare bedrooms to mothers, wives, and sisters who come here to visit their servicemen relatives.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

(AP) Features

A new series of the Princes of Liechtenstein stamps has been issued to continue the series begun last December. The sketches are from old pictures, and the stamps, which are valid until July 1, 1943, are in sheets of 20 each.

Values in this series are the 20 rappen, showing Prince Johann Karl (1732-1848) in red; the 30 rappen blue (illustrated here) showing Prince Franz Josef I (1772-1781); the 1.00 franc in red-violet, showing Prince Alois I (1781-1805), and 1.50 franc dark brown, Prince Johann II (1805-1836). Liechtenstein is a small independent state in Europe which recently has been closely identified with Switzerland.

Dealers are waiting arrival of a new set of Mexican stamps which include three for regular postage and three for airmail. The stamps have been issued in commemoration of the fourth centenary of the founding of San Miguel Allende.

The stamps were due in September and already have been printed because of the official government decree concerning them has not been published. Values are the same as in the last two sets of Mexican stamps, including regular postage of two, five and ten cents; and airmails of 20 and 40 cents and one peso.

San Miguel Allende is a small town in Guanajuato state, and on the National Railways of Mexico enroute to Mexico City. It is famous for having a school of art, but more famous for being the cradle of Mexican independence. It was there that the War of Independence was planned in 1810, and the town is named after Miguel Hidalgo, who is to Mexico what George Washington is to the United States.

So greatly has the use of airmail increased in the United States since Pearl Harbor that the post office department is urging airmail patrons to use lightweight stationery in order to reduce the load.

Because of numerous requests for airmail stamps in booklet form, experiments with that end in view are in progress. Two bicolored red and blue airmail stamps are available, the 16-cent special delivery issued in 1936, and the 6-cent issued in 1938. The special delivery stamp, which never has been popular, still is in use, but the bicolored 6-cent, which was replaced by the highly popular 6-cent red in 1941, may be obtained from the Philatelic Agency in Washington.

Total printing of the bicolored 6-cent airmail was 349,946,500. When present supplies of the 16-cent are exhausted the issue probably will not be replaced, according to word from Washington.

Reaches Record High in Personnel and Students

Ithaca, N. Y.—With approval of the appointment by the Cornell Board of Trustees of five new full-time instructors, 42 part-time instructors, and two other staff members for the University's Engineering, Science and Management War Training courses, including nine U. S. Naval officers for Diesel engineering, the program has reached an all-time high both in teaching personnel and in numbers of students in upstate New York, Prof. Walter L. Conwell, director, announced today.

He revealed that total enrollment to date in the fall program is 3500, and that new courses have been started, and are now in progress, in Lockport, Corning and Endicott.

Instructors, both full and part-time in the 16 upstate cities where the industrial training courses are given, now number 176, Conwell's report stated.

Part-time instructors in civil engineering: Harold G. Hunt, John B. Scalzi, Charles J. Soch, and Anton E. Hittl. In industrial engineering the appointees are Norman W. Job, Jr., Bert J. Pratt, and Hugh U. Graham.

Approved as part-time instructors in safety engineering were Victor K. Anderson, Binghamton; Frank J. Conroy, Niagara Falls; Frank W. Fiske, Auburn; Richard E. Frederick, Endicott; Harold Moore, Elmira; and Leslie G. Van Duesen, Corning.

Appointments of five full-time teachers, 12 part-time instructors and two additional staff members in the ESMWT program at Cornell University, Ithaca, were approved in addition to nine new Naval officers in Diesel engineering.

Full-time appointments were for Howard G. Smith, assistant professor of electrical engineering, transferred to electrical communications; C. R. Scott, Jr., instructor in Diesel engineering; George W. Rice and James D. Grant, instructors in inspection practice; and William H. O'Brien, instructor in experimental engineering.

(By The Associated Press)

Export

Philadelphia—Roy Mason, who handles 20,000 oysters a week, was explaining how to spot one that contains a pearl.

"Look for one with a bump on the shell," he said. "Now here's one with a lot of bumps."

Grabbing a knife, he half-shelled the oyster, and out rolled 73 pearls.

Mason says he never got more than $3 for a pearl, but he's going to have the 73 appraised when he has time.

Insult and Injury

Elkhart, Ind.—Ben Sive, proprietor of a sporting goods store, was dazed by the brass of a young man in soldiers' uniform who bought a utility kit and paid him with a $20 check.

The young man returned later, Sive said, and claimed he had been given change for $10 instead of for $20. Sive convinced him he was mistaken, and the soldier left.

The check turned out to be fraudulent.

Help! Help!

Kansas City—The record-breaking avalanche of Christmas parcels which swamped the railway terminal at Union Station is reaching staggering proportions.

One 17-year-old extra hand worked 24 hours, officials said, before he could find his foreman to ask for time out.

Now, Sergeant

A beautiful redhead, he said, approached him at a gift depot with: "If you'll marry me you can fill this out yourself." She had a blank check in her hand.

"It'd mean a lot of gifts for a lot of guys," he pondered. "But I've got a girl in Brooklyn. Gosh, I don't know what to do."

Surprise

The folks got busy trimming a tree and just as they finished, in walked the lieutenant, almost beating his cablegram home.

The commissioner has proposed an ordinance which would prohibit tuning radio receivers in taverns and other public places to police calls.

Jepsen said word of an "interesting" crime or fire call had resulted in emptying of some taverns of patrons who raced to the scene and hampered police and firemen.

Stratosphere Has Effect on Weight

Person of 150 Pounds Loses Six-Tenths of One Pound Up There

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Austin, Tex., Dec. 23—A 150-pound fighter pilot at 40,000 feet weighs six-tenths of a pound less than when he is on the ground.

The reason is the diminished pull of gravitation that far above the earth's surface. These human calculations are substantiated by a new University of Texas instrument which detects the change in gravitation in one-tenth of an inch movement up or down, that is, away from or toward the center of the earth. It records a gravitational change of one part in a billion.

The detector is giving science the first accurate records of a daily irregularity in gravitation. The irregularity is a slight rise and fall of gravitational pull about twice every 24 hours. Every human being is affected, but the change does not count in reducing overweight, because for each 100 pounds of flesh the variation at ground level is only about three one-hundred-thousandths of a pound.

The Texas apparatus is a gravitimeter, an instrument used by oil prospectors to detect deeply buried rock formations by their slight gravitational pull. This gravitimeter is a commercial instrument, refined by the work of former Texas University Physicists Doctors Romberg and La Coste, until it measures gravitational changes with an accuracy of one-tenth of one per cent. A. E. Lockenvitz, assistant professor of physics, records the gravitational variations.

The daily fluctuations are due to the pull of the moon mainly and the sun to a lesser extent, as they change their positions with respect to the center of the earth. Ocean tides are one result. The Texas records indicate that the daily change in this gravitational pull is somewhat greater than has been calculated.

Scientists believe there is also a tide in the earth's crust due to the same celestial pull. The gravitimeter possibly can be used as the first earth tide guage. For if the earth's surface, on which the instrument sits, on a concrete pier set in bedrock, rises even one-tenth of an inch. The instrument will measure and record the rise automatically.

Actually the records to date suggest a daily earth tide here at Austin of two or three inches. Longer observation and use of more gravitimeters to check this one, and readings at other places, will be required for certainty.

But if the earth tide gauges prove correct, seismologists will then possess a long-sought instrument with which to look for warning of earthquakes.

One theory which could be tested is that for some time preceding a quake the earth tides at the vicinity may rise gradually above normal.

The theoretical reason is that the rocks whose slow, sub-surface slipping builds up the tension which breaks in a quake, may produce a slight preliminary bulge in the coming quake area. The gravitimeter would read any such bulge.

How does gravitation travel? Does it go from mass to mass with the speed of light? Or is it something whose long tentacles are always spread? Science does not know. If gravitation travels, and goes no faster than light's 186,000 miles a second, it may well be that future gravitimeters can detect this movement through checking the gravitational fluctuations from sun and moon.

The instrument is a good, strong spring, with a weight attached to the lower end. The gravitational change elongates or shortens the spring by acting on the weight. Although this motion is too slight ever to be visible, a beam of light and a photo-electric cell detect the change. Electrical amplification transforms the tiny scale movement enough to record in inches up and down on a chart.

The gravitimeter has to be shielded from changes in atmospheric pressure, and kept at a temperature which never varies by as much as one-thousandth of a degree. Only earthquakes are able to interrupt its automatic recordings of gravitation.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 23—The most outstanding event of the holiday season this year in Woodstock will be a concert to be held in Town Hall at 8:30 p. m. on December 27, under the auspices of the Woodstock Committee for Russian war relief. The concert will consist of a recital by Horace Britt, world famous cellist, who will come to Woodstock especially for the evening and Validmar Padwa, pianist. Padwa has become a familiar figure in the music world, and has lately devoted his talent to the radio.

A number of people have arrived in Woodstock for the Christmas holidays. They are: Joan Goetz, Robert Peters, Nellie Robinson, Nancy Cooper and Doris Lapp. Others are expected soon.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman of Twin Gables and to Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. McLennan at the Kingston hospital Saturday morning.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — In mid-January, the Senate's Small Business committee is going to hold here a big powwow with 50 representatives of more than 300,000 small and medium business all over the land "to formulate a program."

If anything has been more talked about and less attended to since the United States went into high wartime production gear, it has been the plight of small business. Some legislation has been brought, but it is infinitesimal compared to the damage that has been and is being done in a great many areas.

As one observer put it, "Everyone seems ready to die for little business but very few are willing to sit down and work out constructive proposals that are in line with reality."

The Senate committee's invitation indicates that this group headed by Senator Murray (D.-Mont.), has a worthy ambition. At one point, the invitation says: "Today, an ill-planned war program is not only cutting off the fat, but is also in some sectors, cutting into the very bone of our civilian economy."

Some economists here think "the bone of civilian economy" (as well as the sinew of our middle classes) is small business and that unless something is done to save it from going down in the deluge of priorities, price controls, rationing, inventory controls and manpower shortages, our entire economic and even social system will undergo a change from which it will never recover.

Let it be said now that some economists, big business men and labor leaders think this would be a good thing. That and the inertia of the protectors of little business (with, perhaps, little business' lack of organization) is what has brought its present plight — a plight serious enough to force a Senate committee to call a three-day session to see what can be done about it.

Recently, I talked to a newsman who had just returned from the southwest and middle west.

"Figuratively," he said, "I saw hundreds of closed doors of small businesses which had signs hung on them, 'Gone to War,' or maybe 'Gone with the War.' I'll bet nothing has ever happened like this in the country since the post-Civil War depressions when so many small merchants folded and left signs on their doors, 'Gone to Texas'."

One interesting slant of the situation came the other day from a government official who asked that his name not be used. "The little businessman," he said, "is not suffering nearly as much as is made out. Many have had the ingenuity or fortune to get in on war contracts. Others have gone into war industry, and are making more money as workers than they ever made running their own businesses."

GROWING UP — (Left). Billy Halsey as a baby in his mother's arms. He wore curls — until his father saw them. (Center) At Pingry School he had a lot of "steam," played good football as a full-back. (Right) As he looked before entering Annapolis, where he was nicknamed "Pudge" for his square face and figure.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Now they're saying that Admiral "Billy" Halsey had a hand in the raid on Tokyo, just as he has had a hand in most of the important naval events of the Pacific war. And they're saying that his great naval victory in the Solomons was bigger than Jutland, in ships sunk and casualties inflicted.

His home town of Elizabeth, which has just celebrated Halsey Day, is not surprised.

"If he hits the Japs as hard as he used to hit us—God help the Japs," says Norman F. Charlock, recalling Halsey's football playing in prep school.

"Look at that bulldog jaw," a proud aunt comments.

"What did you expect from a boy who grew up in the Navy?" asks his white-haired mother, now in her 80's, a resident of Delaware who only recently gave up driving a car.

Not only did Elizabeth's 20,000 school children celebrate Admiral Halsey Day but a main highway probably will be named for him. And his birth place at 134 West Jersey street is already a tourist sight.

It is the launching of a tradition for a new American naval hero.

Has Navy Tradition

Billy Halsey grew up in the navy being the son of Captain W. F. Halsey, Sr., a navy man now buried at Arlington. His mother was a Brewster of the good ship Mayflower Brewsters.

When Billy arrived just sixty years ago in the Brewster mansion here, now occupied by Uncle J. O. Brewster, Captain Halsey was away at sea. It was three years before father saw son. And Billy was wearing blonde curls!

"The first thing his father did was to take him to a barber shop," says his mother. "I'll never forget that day."

A 'He-Boy'

His mother says Billy was a "he-boy." He had a lot of steam, played well at fullback, collected stamps, attended Pingry Academy and a Swarthmore, Pa., prep school. He had some fights, including the now legendary one in which a brawnier lad beat him up with a baseball bat. His mother asked him who did it.

"Never mind," said Billy. "I'll take care of that guy myself."

Old friends say Billy Halsey never gave thought to any other career. It was no surprise when he entered the Naval Academy in 1900. He was nicknamed "Pudge" for his square, thick-set, broad-shouldered figure, an inch or so under six feet. He played football, began to notice girls and was a so-so scholar.

Pals called him "the old salt"; an academy magazine said he looked "like a figurehead of Neptune."

Out of the Academy in 1904, he shortly afterwards married Miss Frances "Fanny" Grandy of Norfolk, Va. In 1911, he was on a destroyer; in the World War he commanded two, the Shaw and Benham, and won the Navy cross for distinguished service for patrol and convoy duties. In 1920, he was naval attahe in Berlin. Back to sea again, he climbed to command of a destroyer squadron. In 1930, he went to Norfolk training station.

At 52, Halsey was assigned to naval aviation and learned to fly. He later took command of the carrier Saratoga, then Pensacola air station, and so on until in 1938, he was training the air squadrons for Carriers Yorktown and Enterprise. Then he turned again to the battle force in 1938.

Nine days before Pearl Harbor, he took an unusually large carrier task force out of Honolulu. He must have smelled trouble, for his orders were:

Couldn't Wait To Score

His officers call him a "tough old billygoat." He's not so pudgy today; there's a touch of gauntness in his square face and frame; his leathery skin crinkles about his blue eyes, and gray tinges his brown hair.

His specialties are "drive" and "lightning decisions that hit the button." Otherwise it's hard to get anyone to say that Halsey is anything but a "nice guy" or "strictly normal." He can't stand "spit and polish." He doesn't like to wear neckties. His officers' mess is a model of informality.

On the bridge, his favorite spot is atop a high stool, wearing his old sheepskin coat or, in thick weather, a black raincoat with letters "ADM" painted on the back. He outlines his strategy with masterful understatement, like this (after the Solomons battle):

Strategy In Reverse

"We do the exact opposite of what they expect us to do; we expose ourselves to enemy fire and shore-based planes. We do not stay behind the battle with our carriers.

"Most important: whatever we do, we do fast." His also is the dictum:

At Guadalcanal, Halsey's forces steamed right into the attack lines of the Jap armada. Jap ships were firing on each other in confusion. In reward for his achievement he was named full Admiral by the President.

Halsey's family has moved around a great deal. Their last residence was in Washington. Now the folks are at Greenville, Del. His wife, who was at Honolulu at the time of the bombing, lives there with their daughter, Margaret (Mrs. Lee Spruance). A son, William 3rd, has just finished at Princeton. His mother lives with her daughter, Deborah (Mrs. Reynolds Wilson), who is just a few years younger than the Admiral.

Cairo Is Ready For Prosperous, Relaxed Winter

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

Cairo, Dec. 23 (AP)—With the war now out of her own front yard Cairo seems to have wiped the chill sweat from her brow—if worried she ever was—and is now relaxing for a prosperous winter season. The battle of the Egyptian desert is ended; the battle for the sunny terrace tables at Shepherd's or the Continental-Savoy was begun in earnest.

In this theatre one must proceed with the decisive opportunism of the master tactician if he is to win lodgement on the wicker chair front. The rivalry is keen among officers here and the reward of a well-planned maneuver on the hotel terraces along Sharia Ibrahim Pasha is an hour or two of relaxation, liquid refreshment and a chance to participate in Cairo's principal pastime—rumor-mongering.

The zero hour in the battle of the terraces strikes daily at 12:30 p. m. when military regulations permit the first alcoholic beverages to be sold. A sluggard campaigner may easily be cut off and surrounded by filled tables and chairs before he realizes his plight. Unless he wants to drink standing up his best tactic is to stroll about, waiting for someone to be called to the telephone or something.

The favorite beverage on the wicker front is gin-lime, lime juice being highly considered as a fortification against tropical ailments. One gin-lime is considered adequate for even an hour of humor-swapping, although a minority of extremists lean to different ratios and some actually get along on lime juice and water, tea or cafe au lait.

For example, a new-found acquaintance of mine, working only on lime juice and water, heard that Spain was being occupied by the Germans and Portugal invaded in an allied counter-stroke.

Gossip, however, is not exclusively war-related. In fact many a gin-lime has been expended without a mention of the war. An acquaintance tells the classic example of a friend who injured his hand while closing an automobile door. He had to have it bandaged. Before bar closing time that night the trivial matter had been distorted into a story of fisticuffs in defense of a woman's honor.

It is academically interesting to speculate on the state of affairs if military regulations were relaxed and gin-limes sanctioned throughout the day and night instead of the present 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 to 10 p. m.

Hotels Are Crowded

Cairo's hotels are crowded; the whole town is doing a rushing business. A friend reporting a fluctuation downward in the local stock exchange readily credited it to the fact that the war news that day was excellent for the allies. The end of the war may well be followed by a depression here.

The terraces offer a kaleidoscope of uniforms of the United Nations, the British naturally predominating. Officers sit about, looking surprisingly like the pictures of them in the smart men's magazines, what with their mustaches and lean, tweedy outdoor look. Here and there one spots the dusty battledress of a man fresh from the desert.

Women are a distinct minority on the terraces but those appearing achieve considerable chic, considering the war's effect on feminine styles. Women in uniform also are rather a common sight.

Some observers, here for months, insist Cairo's outlook has not been changed. Others insist, however, that there have been perceptible signs of relief since the night of November 5 when the Axis retreat was precipitated by the British Eighth Army's break-through on the El Alamein front. The latter seems but natural.

The mingling currents of the Christian and Moslem worlds funnel through Cairo's streets as in ages past. The fezzed and robed driver of an American-made taxi may carry a visiting British India officer to a luncheon engagement with a Fighting French official just back from Equatorial Africa. The prosperous Egyptian merchant taking his thick Turkish-style coffee and morning smoke at a sidewalk table will lay down the tube of his hubble-bubble pipe to give street directions to the visiting American.

Wealth and poverty stream together through the avenues between the yellow-plastered squarish buildings. Filthy children forage swiftly along the sidewalks for cigarette butts, flies buzz with awful persistence and settle on the infected eyes of a baby riding the shoulder of its veiled mother. A limousine drawing up to the curb will disgorge an European prince or an oriental nabob.

Traffic in the principal streets is a constant racket. There is the unrelenting sound of all manner of automobiles and above their honking can be heard the clanging footbells of the fiacres and the clop-clop of the Arabian horses which pull these numberless open carriages.

Horses give a distinctive odor to Cairo's streets—though the newcomer soon gets used to it—and provide jobs for numerous sweepers who move along the streets swinging their long brooms in wide, dusty arcs. The refuse is gathered in limp baskets to be borne away by patient donkeys.

That is part of the Cairo which fails to attain in the hotel terraces and no doubt is the more interesting but until this writer finds how to outflank the omniscient guides who insist that he visit the sphinx and the pyramids he will not know much about it.

The Year of the Goat

AP Features

January 1 marks a new year for Japan too—2,603rd since founding of the empire. Following the custom of dedicating each year to one of twelve signs in the zodiac, and maybe with Oriental foresight, Japs list 1943 as "year of the goat."

On New Year's, the Japs lavishly decorate homes with bamboo, laurel, charcoal (keeps bad spirits away), dried persimmon (for health), dried bitter orange (for long life). They dress their best, feast, celebrate in advance the luck they hope the year will bring. In past years it has also been customary to look happy.

The Imperial household on New Year's traditionally goes to the Imperial sanctuary for the Shinto rites, Shihohai. At dawn worshippers throng to shrine compounds, bow before the rising sun, worship in four directions.

On January 2, Shigoto Hajime, they begin work with revelry on the theory they'll then be happy the year round. Next day is a national holiday—Genshi-sai, when government officials, peers, royalty appear at the Imperial palace to worship ancestors and to hope, in effect, that the current son of heaven has a happy new year.

New Rationing Form Has Been Instituted to Set Quotas Based on Supplies

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Aimed at preventing a recurrence of last week's gasoline crisis in the east, a new form of rationing for east coast gasoline and fuel oil suppliers has been instituted by Petroleum Administrator Ickes.

The new system will backstop the Office of Price Administration's rationing for the consumer by going to the source of supply, and is expected to combat "black market" operations whereby some retailers have used bootleg ration coupons to obtain supplies from the oil companies.

Ickes' program sets up for suppliers in six eastern zones quotas pegged to the amount of petroleum products that can be shipped into each zone with "presently available transportation facilities." Suppliers, in turn, are expected to assign quotas for wholesalers and retailers.

Since no supplier, wholesaler or retailer will have more gasoline to sell once his quota is exhausted, consumers may find their coupons are worthless at times. Either the consumers will go without gasoline or be forced to find a dealer who still has some.

Previously, the supply for the retailer or wholesaler was limited theoretically only by the amount of coupons which they received from consumers and turned into the suppliers.

A temporary limitation on gasoline sales was suddenly ordered in the east last week when it was discovered that the coupons had exceeded current supplies and dug dangerously into the area's petroleum reserves.

Quotas for the six zones were not announced but Ickes' office said the total for the east coast from Dec. 18-21 would be 365,000 barrels of gasoline; 184,000 barrels of kerosene; 340,000 of heating oils and 282,000 of industrial oils.

Ickes' order followed Price Administrator Leon Henderson's announcement that fuel oil rations in 13 midwestern states would be increased 10 per cent during period 3 and that consumers could begin using the period 3 coupons today instead of waiting until the original effective dates early in January. Henderson attributed the move to unusually cold weather in the midwest.

ers also have done excellent work in support of the Eighth Army, especially in bombing and machinegunning enemy motor transport and troops during the retreat. There has been no glamor about this job. It has just been steady slugging.

"The famous Royal Airforce Shark Squadron has been attached to our fighters, and this combination is now one of the crack fighter units of the whole desert.

"Back of this effort of course is service and supply to keep the airplanes flying. British cooperation in this service has been superb. At first we were entirely dependent on them and we still have to rely on them to some extent.

"I haven't the words to describe the whole-heartedness of this cooperation. Never once have the British turned down an appeal from us, and they have gone all out to service us.

"But there is more than that to the cooperation. When our men first arrived in desert they were great fliers but without practical experience in fighting. So the British taught us combat work. The R.A.F. put us through actual combat training. They first broke in one pilot. Then they added others gradually until we had reached a squadron. Now of course our own veterans do our training, but our first combat and operational schooling came from the British.

"Naturally relations between the two forces are extremely cordial: All the big personalities seem to click and the men get along fine."

I asked the general what he considered was our greatest contribution to the Eighth Army victory.

"Destruction of land and sea communications," he said, "the show has turned mainly on communications and supplies."

Van Kleeck Pleads To Driving Charge

Hotel Resident Fined $50 by Judge Cahill

Irving R. Van Kleeck, 26, of the West Shore Hotel, pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a truck while intoxicated when arraigned before City Judge Matthew V. Cahill this morning.

Loses Wife, Gets $9,000

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 23 (AP)—Superior Court Judge Kenneth Wynne yesterday ordered Arthur H. Dolge, 63, Westport embalming fluid manufacturer to pay damages of $9,000 to Reginald W. Armstrong, 56, New York apartment house superintendent. Armstrong charged that Dolge alienated the love and affections of his 38-year-old wife, Alice, during 1940 and 1941 while she was a summer resident in Westport and asked $100,000 in a civil action heard by Judge Wynne. Dolge admitted during the trial that he was friendly with Mrs. Armstrong and that he had given her presents.

'Encouraging Sign'

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—O. W. I. Director Elmer Davis said today the declaration of peace and solidarity newly concluded between Spain and Portugal is "a very encouraging sign" that the Franco government of Spain is truly committed to a course of neutrality. All evidence reaching the Office of War Information indicates, Davis told a press conference, that the past signed during the Spanish foreign minister's recent trip to Portugal is a "sincere statement of Spain's intention to remain neutral."

While the Red armies battled to inflict a crushing yuletide defeat on Adolf Hitler's invasion forces, the fate of the Axis in North Africa grew ever more precarious.

On the Libyan desert front, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army was reported to have advanced within 180 miles of Tripoli, capital of Italian Tripolitania, after a 220-mile advance in 11 days from the old El Aghelia line.

British headquarters in Cairo said Gen. Montgomery's vanguards continued to harass Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing Africa corps, while British sappers speeded the task of clearing away deadly minefields retarding the main advance.

On the Tunisian front, allied patrols skirmished with German forces yesterday 15 miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, which lies 35 miles southwest of Tunis, the capital, and also clashed with Axis troops 10 miles southeast of Mateur.

French Inflict Losses

French troops knifing toward the Gulf of Gabes coast below Tunis, in an attempt to cut off Axis communications between Tunisia and Tripolitania, were reported to have inflicted "serious losses" on the Germans in a fight yesterday.

An allied spokesman said there were no indications that "the enemy is in any great strength in that area, or anywhere in southern Tunisia," apparently having concentrated their forces in the strategic Tunis-Bizerte zone.

Allied bombers, warships and submarines continued to exact a heavy toll on Axis ships ferrying badly-needed reinforcements and supplies across the Mediterranean to North Africa, sinking at least two merchant vessels, damaging others and scoring two torpedo hits on a destroyer.

These blows, while minor actions individually, are playing a vital collective role in frustrating Adolf Hitler's desperate effort to maintain a foothold in North Africa and thus delay an allied offensive against the soft "under side" of Nazi-conquered Europe.

Possibly looking forward to the day of a great allied sweep across the Mediterranean, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander in chief of British forces in the Middle East, was reported to have paid a surprise visit by plane to inspect the eastern Mediterranean island of Cyprus, which lies off the coast of Syria and might serve as a base for an attack across the Dodecanese stepping-stone islands to Greece.

Meanwhile, Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, sought to buck up morale on the German home front by declaring that the decisive struggle was in Russia, not Africa, and that after Soviet resistance was wiped out "we will soon regain on the southern (African) front what we have had to give up."

In the Western Air War, RAF fighter planes attacked railway targets and damaged many locomotives in widespread sorties over France and the low countries last night, the British air ministry announced, while RAF coastal bombers pounded an Axis convoy off Holland and left two supply ships in flames.

In ancient Rome, an album was a board chalked or painted white, on which public notices were inscribed in black.

AN APPEAL

The Salvation Army winds up its kettle campaign Thursday and is making a final appeal for funds. The kettles located in several prominent spots of the city, will be taken up at 8 o'clock.

The funds obtained through the pennies, nickles, and dimes dropped in by passers-by will be used exclusively by the Salvation Army in giving relief to the needy at Christmas time and in providing Christmas baskets and food.

This year the response from the mail appeal has been very slow and the demand for Christmas relief is as great as ever. There are old people, and the widows with large families, and we have several families where the husband, or father, has recently been drafted into the armed service.

We are in need of $200 to carry on our Christmas effort, and I am sure when the people of Kingston understand the problem we face, this difficulty will be overcome by your response by dropping your change in the Salvation Army kettle and sending your check to Adjutant W. J. Hoffman, 186 Green street, Kingston, or to the Salvation Army treasurer, John Saxe, State of New York National Bank, Wall street, Kingston, N. Y.

Do Not Travel Except For an Emergency

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23—"Make your Christmas a patriotic one," said Carroll E. Mealey, Chairman of the War Transportation of the New York State War Council, "Do not travel this Christmas except for an emergency.

"Buses and trains are already booked to capacity and in many places even standing room is no longer available because of the armed forces, architects, engineers and other war workers are going back to their homes or from one point to another on official business. If you are not compelled by emergency to travel, stay where you are for the holidays and help us solve this tremendous task of moving essential passengers."

The movement of troops and their equipment is of formost importance, explained Commissioner Mealey. Then come the welders, draftsmen, chemists, engineers, doctors and other war workers. Buses and trains should be reserved for them and all non-essential travel should be discontinued.

Rubber shortage and now further restrictions on gasoline affect increased passenger traffic at a time when there are not enough trains and buses to handle it. With a war on sixteen fronts at one time, the railroad companies alone are moving 2,000,000 men at one time. There is a close connection between freight and passenger traffic and if one is overburdened it slows up the other.

"Statistics show that one out of every three people using trains or buses travels for social purposes, "Mealey concluded. "I urge everyone in New York State, as a patriotic measure, to stay where you are for the holidays. Do not travel for non-essential reasons."

Rear Admiral McCain Tells That General Motors Will Build Grumman Ships

Newark, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—The Grumann-designed "Avenger" bomber and "Wildcat" fighter planes now in full-scale production at three New Jersey plants of General Motors' Eastern Aircraft Division have stopped the best that Germany, Italy or Japan can offer, Rear Admiral J. R. Mc Cain, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, has disclosed.

These planes, flown by U. S. Navy and Marine airmen, saved Australia from Japanese invasion and hurled back the enemy at Guadalcanal, McCain said at a meeting of General Motors executives and newspapermen at the Essex House Monday night. News of the meeting was delayed by wartime technicalities.

"There are no finer all-around aircraft of their class in service today," McCain declared.

He read a message from Rear Admiral W. F. Patterson of the British Admiralty, which said:

"It has been shown that the Martlet (British name for the Wildcat type) can deal successfully not only with the newest Italian fighters but also with the German (Messerschmidt) ME-109-F. German bombers are heavily armored, but the Martlets have a most satisfactory number to their credit. They have made light work of Italian bombers of all types."

Both planes are carrier-based types now being produced by General Motors at plants in Trenton, Linden and Bloomfield, in New Jersey, Tarrytown, N. Y., and Baltimore.

Woman, Absent for Month, Is Charged With Assault

Huntington Park, Calif., Dec. 23—Mrs. Margaret Wallace, 26, sought more than a month on charges of assaulting another woman with a rock and throwing her over a cliff, was arrested today.

She refused to answer questions, said Capt. Thomas Bryan, of the Los Angeles police, and called for an attorney.

Mrs. Wallace is charged with assault with intent to commit murder on Mrs. Inez Maclam, 22, along the seashore near Encinitas, Calif., November 17. Mrs. Maclam was found at the base of the cliff next morning, but her automobile and her children, Judith Rae, six weeks, Clark Edward, 13 months, and Kay Rose, four years, had disappeared.

The following day the two oldest children were found abandoned in the Union Railway Station at Huntington Park. The day after that, Judith Rae was found in an automobile. All were unharmed.

Mrs. Maclam, who is recovering from her injuries, told police she and Mrs. Wallace were motoring to San Diego and had stopped at the edge of a bluff to admire the view.

College and Professional Stars to Appear in All-Army Lineup

Two New Players Will See Action For Recreations

Game Here on Christmas Night Will Start at 9:15 Sharp, Recs' Manager Declares

It will be a battle of giants at the center-circle on Christmas night at the Municipal Auditorium when the All-Army team meets the Kingston Recreations at 9:15 p. m. in the weekly basketball game.

Kevin Connors, 6 feet 5½ inch center of the Army team will be ready to match Howie Bollerman, 6 feet 1 inch center of the Recs. for control of the tap. Connors was a member of a great Seton Hall College team last season. His youth should more than make up the one and half inch advantage that Bollerman will have in height. On finishing his college career last season, Connors signed a contract with the New York Yankees and was sent to the Norfolk, Va., farm team of the Piedmont League as a first baseman. He enlisted in the Army right after the baseball season and is now stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., where he plays with the 36th Armored Regiment basketball team. His signing a baseball contract with the Yankees started a feud between Larry MacPhail and Ed Barrow. In 1939, when he finished his high school education, the Dodgers signed the big blond first baseman to a contract. When he decided to go to college, Judge Landis made the Dodgers release him from the contract. Last season, Connors decided to enter organized baseball and the Yankees grabbed him before the Dodgers could do anything about it. MacPhail claimed he had a gentleman's agreement with the Yankee organization not to touch the youngster, but the Yankees laughed at MacPhail's statement.

Besides Connors, the All-Army team will line-up with Bernie Opper, Red Tough, Joe Bellis, Cy Winograd, Lyn Lacey and Bill Goodwin. Bellis is a former House of David basketball star and played with the Chicago Bruins of the National Basketball League. He is stationed at Scott Field, Ill. Winograd is a former College of the City of New York captain. He entered the professional basketball picture in 1939 with the Jersey Reds of the American League. Tough is a former captain and All-America selection from St. John's of Brooklyn. Opper is another All-America selection, who captained the 1939 Kentucky University basketball team. Goodwin hails from St. John's of Brooklyn and is stationed at Fort Knox. Lacey is from Richmond University, and last season was a catcher with the Louisville club of the American Association.

The Recreations will have Hagan Anderson ready for duty again after his recent back injury which prevented him from playing against the Detroit Eagles. The locals will be out to make it six straight and remain undefeated. Two new players will be in the line-up of the Recreations to replace Gershon and Goldstein, who will be in Trenton, N. J., on Christmas night playing with the Bengals of the American League, which team they are under contract with since last season. Friday night the Recs played a practice game against St. Francis College in Brooklyn, and Manager Turk Karam has decided to replace Gershon and Goldstein with Freddie Lane, former Columbia University player, and Max Berkowitz from Temple University. Both of these players stand two inches over six feet, and Karam feels they will fit in perfect with his system.

Due to weather conditions and transportation difficulties for the past two Wednesdays the Recreations players have arrived late in Kingston for the games, but definite plans, the management announces, have been arranged to start all future games at 9:15 p. m. sharp to give all the fans the proper rest for the next day's work.

Redskins' Coaches Worry About Over-Confidence

Philadelphia, Dec. 23 (AP)—The dizziest of all-football seasons brought forth another phenomenon today. The Washington Redskins coaching staff is worried about over-confidence.

"We can't lose," was the watchword of the winners of the National Football League playoffs as they arrived here last night to start drilling for their pro bowl class with the league's all-stars on Sunday.

"Nobody gave us a chance to beat the Chicago Bears," the players pointed out, "but we did it. And we can do it again."

Cardinals Break Up the Yankees

By DILLON GRAHAM

(AP) Features Sports Editor

New York—This was the year a speedy, sharp-hitting gang of St. Louis Cardinals did the job of breaking up the Yankees.

The New Yorkers were, as usual, king of the walk in their own league but in the world series, the Cardinals turned loose such a fast, crippling attack that the Yankees, at the finish, beaten four games to one, were all but stumbling around like dazed sandlotters.

This triumph came almost as an anti-climax to the Cardinals' great stretch drive to slice away a 10-game Brooklyn lead and win the National pennant in a stirring duel that lasted right down to the last day. Far behind the Brooklyn Dodgers, who in early August appeared to have the flag all but wrapped up, Billy Southworth's youngsters won 47 out of their last 57 games to overhaul the Flatbush Fusileers and grab the bunting in an almost photo finish.

Trailing by two games as they came into Brooklyn, September 10, the Cards walloped the Dodgers twice to gain a tie and then took the lead next day, and were never headed, although the aroused Brooklyns put up a stubborn last-ditch battled to the end.

Yanks Were Favorites

The Yanks, who made a runaway of their loop race, and clinched their sixth pennant in seven years on September 14, were series' favorites and it looked like another Yankee sweep in the first game as Red Ruffing set a new series' record by holding St. Louis hitless for seven and two-thirds innings. However, there should have been a sign of what was to come in the Cardinals' last inning uprising that drove Old Red from the mound before New York won 7-4.

From there on out, it was all St. Louis, with the Cardinals dazzling the Yankees with their speed to win four straight games. Rookie Johnny Beazley outpitched the Yankee ace, Tiny Bonham, to win the second game on Rookie Stan Musial's late single. Lefty Ernie White shut out the New Yorkers 2-0 in the third game, the Cards put on a late batting splurge to take the next 9-6 and Beazley came back to win his second game in the finale, which was decided by a ninth-inning home run by another rookie, Third Baseman Whitey Kurowski.

Marvelous catches by Terry Moore, great throws by Moore and Country Slaughter, blinding speed by the base runners, and timely hitting, combined to produce jittery performances by the usually calm and confident Yanks, such as Bill Dickey's wild throw over second base and the trapping of Joe Gordon off second in the last game. Gordon, top Yankee batter, couldn't buy a hit until late in the series.

Whitey Kurowski, St. Louis rookie third baseman, holds the bat with which he hit a home run that won the last game of the World Series and clinched the championship for the Cardinals. John Beazley (inset), was another Cardinal Rookie. He was credited with two series' pitching triumphs.

Williams Wins Triple

Ted Williams was the standout batter of the majors, winning the American league hitting triple and pacing the Boston Red Sox into second place, ahead of the surprisingly strong St. Louis Browns. He won the batting crown with a .356 average, knocked 36 homers and batted in 137 runs. However, the unpredictable, tempermental beanpole got into trouble—he was benched for loafing in July and fined $250. Boston had another young star in Rookie Shortstop Johnny Pesky, who led the majors in hits, 205.

Bulky Ernie Lombardi of the Braves won the senior circuit batting championship with a .331 average while Mel Ott, who did a fine job of managing the Giants into third place, led in homers with 30 and Johnny Mize of the Giants knocked in 110 runs. Bonham of the Yankees won 21 games as did Beazley while Mort Cooper of the Cards, who couldn't win either of his series' starts, topped the National pitchers with 22 triumphs.

Home runs by Lou Boudreau, serving his first year as Cleveland manager, and Rudy York of Detroit gave the Americans a 3-1 triumph in the All-Star game and the Americans then shut out a service team managed by Mickey Cochrane 5-0. Rogers Hornsby was named to the Hall of Fame.

Million For War Effort

With benefit games during the season and a large slice of world series proceeds, baseball contributed nearly a million dollars to war relief funds. Because of the war-time dimouts in the East, night games were replaced by twilight contests. An epidemic of bean ball pitches caused the National league to threaten a $200 fine for managers for every occurrence. Military calls and transportation problems forced 15 of the 41 minor leagues to fold up. Baseball attendance was off some eight per cent.

General Manager Larry MacPhail of Brooklyn resigned to enter the army and was replaced by Branch Rickey from the Cardinals. Detroit released Manager Del Baker and hired Steve O'Neill. Buck Harris of Washington resigned and was replaced by Ossie Bluege. Bill Terry quit as farm manager of the Giants.

Dodgers to Train Home, Seek College Facilities

By JUDSON BAILEY

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers are searching for a college field house in the vicinity of New York city with the idea of training at home, it was disclosed today as the exodus of major league clubs from their spring bases in Florida gained momentum.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, who revealed on Monday that Brooklyn had abandoned plans to train at West Palm Beach, said that the metropolitan area was being canvassed for suitable accommodations where the players might do their preliminary conditioning indoors.

"An ideal arrangement," he suggested, "would be two field houses in close proximity so that two clubs could train together. And I think I know of another club that would be interested in the same proposition."

Rickey expressed doubt that a month or six weeks of outdoor conditioning is necessary and said he believed that with proper preliminary gymnasium work, and batting in cages, ten days of outside practice might be sufficient for the opening of the season.

While Rickey was scouting for a training site in this area, the New York Giants announced that they were withdrawing from Miami and the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals stated they were looking around for a satisfactory switch from St. Petersburg, where the Yanks have trained for 19 years.

The Giants expect to locate in North Carolina and Secretary Edward Brannick said the training bases probably would be selected within a week.

The Yanks and Cardinals, who have shared St. Petersburg for many years, are seeking accommodations where they can continue to train together and Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yanks, disclosed that Albany, Ga., is under consideration.

Barrow also made public the fact that Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, had written all major league clubs suggesting the advisability of their moving out of Florida and finding locations closer home. The move resulted from Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman's suggestions that baseball travel be reduced to a minimum and also from the congestion of army camps in Florida.

What action other clubs will take as the result of Landis' letter has not been made known, but Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, said he had selected an alternative site "just in case it is necessary" to leave Tampa, Fla. Four clubs that had planned to train in California, the Chicago Cubs and White Sox, the St. Louis Browns and Pittsburgh Pirates, also have called a meeting to decide upon a possible switch to Hot Springs, Ark.

The Giants announced the cancellation of a ten-game exhibition tour with the Cleveland Indians and also that their Jersey City farm club would not train at Jacksonville, Fla.

Dartmouth Counting on Four Vets To Win 6th Straight Eastern Title

(AP) Features

Hanover, N. H.—The fact that four of the five players who carried Dartmouth to the National Intercollegiate basketball finals last season are ready for another campaign, makes the "Big Green" a strong favorite to annex its sixth straight Eastern Intercollegiate title.

The only major problem confronting Coach Ossie Cowles is to find a guard to replace last year's captain, Stub Pearson. Otherwise, the Green's championship quintet is intact with Bob Myers of Wyoming, O., and high scoring George Munroe of Joliet, Ill., at the forwards, Jim Olsen of Stewart Manor, N. Y., at center, and captain Stan Skaug of Clarkfield, Minn., at guard.

Jim Briggs, also from Wyoming, O., is the leading candidate for the vacant position, largely because of his experience as a substitute guard last winter. Brigg's chief rival is Jack Monahan, the West Haven, Conn., youth who was a guard on last season's freshman five.

Captain Skaug, Munroe, and Olsen have been the nucleus for two Dartmouth championship teams. Last season, Myers had the difficult task of making up for the loss of Gus Broberg. After a hectic 1941-42 campaign, which saw Dartmouth defeat Princeton for the E.I.L. title and gain the finals in the Nationals in the same week, all four can be regarded as veterans in the true sense of the word.

GEORGE MUNROE

None of Cowles' basketball teams of Dartmouth have had to rely wholly upon the ability of one player, but, nevertheless, George Munroe is the outstanding individual on this year's squad. Last season the six-foot blonde forward amassed 175 points to almost topple Broberg's all-time E.I.L. record.

The Big Green also has promising reserves for every position. Besides Briggs and Monahan, Coach Cowles has freshman Jim Coleman of Asbury Park, N. J., working out at guard on the varsity squad. Andy Cartensen, six-foot-four center on last season's freshman five, from Cleveland Heights, O., will be able to take some of the burden off Jim Olsen's shoulders. Jack Carroll, another player up from the freshman squad of last winter, looms as a capable understudy for Munroe. His home is in Fremont, O.

By ED CURTIS
(AP Features)

His teammates of the unbeaten, untied University of Tulsa Golden Hurricanes call him "Sack 'em up Sax." The six-foot, one-inch end has gathered in 35 passes for 509 yards, scoring nine touchdowns this season.

Judd, Cal Purdin and John Green will be the principal targets for passers Glenn Dobbs, N. A. Keithley and Clyde LeForce as the Hurricane unlooses its aerial circus against Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, New Year's day.

Purdin, a wingback, has caught 24 passes for 363 yards; Green, 14 for 300 yards. Backfield Coach Buddy Brothers says Purdin is the most underrated back on the Tulsa squad.

Thought unassuming, Judd can't resist letting the quips fall where they may. Against Oklahoma A. and M., Judd caught a pass near the sideline and was promptly blocked out of bounds in front of the Oklahoma Aggie bench. Looking up he saw Aggie Coach Jim Lookabaugh.

Before an out-of-town trip, Coach Henry Frnka thought his squad looked sluggish in its last workout. Frnka started down the line, speaking to each player. Stopping before Judd, Frnka inquired about a minor leg injury, remarking that it seemd to slow up the end.

TULSA'S BOWL RECORD

SAXON JUDD
. . . big hands, no nerves

Judd not only can catch passes, he can run with the ball after he gets it. He was 23, Thanksgiving Day, and celebrated by catching three touchdown passes against Arkansas.

Many of his catches look impossible from the stands. It is not unusual for him to snag the ball while being covered by two defensive men. He has wrapped his big hands around the pigskin from all positions, including the horizontal. As Keithley sums it up:

Judd is a fine defensive player, a difficult man to block out on a play. He weighs 187 pounds and handles himself nimbly, using finesse rather than power to smear the opposition.

Light Tournament Is Narrowed to Three Competitors

By LARRY SMITH

Cleveland, Dec. 23 (AP)—Matchmaker Larry Atkins' tournament to crown a light heavyweight "duration champ" was narrowed to three competitors today.

Anton Christoforidis, spotting his adversary six pounds at 166, won a 10-round decision over dusky Nate Bolden from Chicago before a crowd of 5,534 fans who paid $12,816.50 to watch the tame tourney inaugural at the arena last night.

Only some fast and furious leather-slinging in the last two rounds gave the fans any excitement. Both boxed cautiously, looking for an opening that never developed and meanwhile delivering head jabs and engaging in close in-fighting, there were no knockdowns or heavy assaults.

Christo, former light heavyweight champion who drew with Bolden at Chicago last August, got the nod from referee Jackie Davis and both judges. The judges gave the Clevelander five rounds while the referee was generous enough to see him winning seven.

The Greek made the most of the in-fighting while Bolden gained his points in the early rounds. The Chicagoan was the aggressor in the best stanzas—the ninth and tenth—but Christo tied up each assault and then scored in the clinches.

For the next round of the tournament, negroes Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland and Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, have been tentatively matched in a January 7 meeting. Charles decisioned Christo early this year and the National Boxing Association rated the Cincinnatian the logical contender for the championship of Gus Lesnevich, now in the coast guard.

The crowd-pleaser on last night's card was the eight-round semi-final between Lulu Costantino, highly-regarded New York featherweight, and Joey Pirrone, Cleveland lightweight.

Pirrone, who has more slugging ability than boxing knowledge, sent Costantino to the canvas for a count of seven in the opening round and again floored the New Yorker for no count in the seventh.

Oddest Happening Was by Alex Agase

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—In a year when all sports turned up strange and startling happenings the oddest of all was the feat of a University of Illinois guard, Alex Agase, scoring two touchdowns to upset once-mighty Minnesota.

Sports writers polled by the Associated Press recalled no less than 152 different freak occurrences of 1942, but 33 of these observers settled on that touchdown fantasy as the rarest of the crop.

Guards are seldom even seen, let alone spotlighted as was Agase. Yet he not only tallied twice for the Illini, he did it the odd way. First he "stole" the ball from a confused Gopher back and romped over for one touchdown, then he fell on a fumbled pass from the Minnesota center to account for touchdown No. 2.

Next to this performance the writers, with football fresh in their minds, recalled best the various backs who caught their own passes at some time or another during the season. Bruce Smith of Great Lakes tossed one against Notre Dame and caught it on a ricochet for a 12-yard loss. Ray Evan of Kansas was another who performed a similar stunt.

Just to refresh your memory of some of the year's other wacky didoes—here are some of the incidents that drew chuckles and votes from the scribes:

The Louis-Conn fight that didn't come off; Conn's breaking his hand in a kitchen fight with his father-in-law; Minnesota's victory over Michigan on a field goal dropped kicked after time should have run out in the first half; the four-inch margin by which Wisconsin missed a touchdown against Iowa; Whirlaway's walkover to pick up $10,000 in the Pimlico Special; and Red Ruffing getting knocked out of the box in the World Series after almost getting a no-hitter.

'Red' Cagle, Famous Football Player, Is Dead

Found Semi-Conscious in Lobby of Apartment Where He Lived With His Wife

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Death, with a background of mystery, came today to one of the greatest football players of all time—Christian Keener (Red) Cagle, whose brilliant ball-carrying for Army twice brought him All-America glory.

The sandy-haired, 37-year-old athlete, unanimous choice for All-American halfback in 1928 and 1929, died in a Queens hospital at 12:40 a. m. (E. W. T.) of pneumonia and a skull fracture.

Cagle, who carried his talents to the professional gridiron and once was part owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional eleven, was found semi-conscious Saturday night in the lobby of a Queens apartment house where he lived with his wife.

Police said they had not yet determined how Cagle received the head injury. Asked if the athlete might have been assaulted, Deputy Inspector Edward Mullins declared:

"We are convinced that Mr. Cagle received his injuries in Queens. How he received them, we do not have enough information to be certain. We cannot assert he was assaulted."

Police said the house superintendent, who with Mrs. Cagle brought the athlete to the hospital, told them that Cagle had muttered "something about being kicked in the head."

A native of Merryville, La., Cagle played for Southwestern before going to the U. S. Military Academy. He made his first gridiron appearance for Army in 1927, but it was not until the next season that he won widespread fame. By 1929, when he captained Army, he probably was one of the most publicized football players in the world.

Cagle, who at the time of his death was employed by an insurance company, resigned from West Point, by official request, in 1930, when his marriage to Marion Munford Haile, of Gretna, La., became known. They had been married for two years. Cadets may not be married while at the military academy.

In 1930, 1931 and part of 1932, Cagle played with the professional New York Giants—at $7,500 a year. In 1933, he and John (Shipwreck) Kelly, the husband of Heiress Brenda Frazier, bought the Brooklyn Dodgers, but the next year Cagle sold his share to Daniel L. Topping.

The Cagles had two children.

John Borican, Great Natural Athlete, Dead

Bridgeton, N. J., Dec. 23 (AP)—John Borican, one of America's great natural athletes, died last night.

The powerful body which carried him to numerous world track records and national championships had wasted away to a mere 110 pounds through an ailment which his family said specialists were unable to diagnose.

"They don't seem to know what's the matter with me, or maybe they don't want to tell me," Borican said recently at his apartment-studio in New York. "You wouldn't know me anymore."

All sports came easy to Borican, a perfecty proportioned, six-foot negro. Only a few months ago, weighing 170 pounds, he had run off with the National A. A. U. 800-meter outdoor championship. He had breezed through the indoor season, adding the 800-meter, the 880-yard and the 1,000-meter world records to his ever increasing list.

He had captured the 1,000-yard national title for the third straight year and had doubled up to take the 600-yard and 1,000 yard K. of C. races one night with seeming lack of effort.

Borican was a star in every sport at Bridgeton High School. He attended Temple University for a year but had to retire because of illness. Later at Virginia State College he starred at football, baseball, basketball and track. He received a master of arts degree at Columbia University and was a candidate for a Ph. D. when he died.

As a youth in Bridgeton Borican was a delicate and diffident child and early turned to the arts and social studies. But as he grew older his remarkable athletic abilities took up more and more of his efforts.

Borican, however, never lost his interest in arts. He was an accomplished oil painter and his portraits hung in several exhibitions. Until several months ago he was assistant director of the Newark Boys Club where he helped in rehabilitating many of the poorer Negro boys of Newark.

Three months ago Borican began to fail. He lost weight and found his workouts tiring. Physicians referred him to specialists and he went to hospitals for observation.

Several weeks ago he said he was going home for Christmas to be with his family over the holidays.

Blue and Gray Squads Announce Captains

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 23 (AP)—The Blue and Gray squads announced captains today to lead the starting elevens in the fifth annual North-South all-star game here Saturday.

The Northern Blues selected Victor Peelish, West Virginia guard, and Bill Vickroy, Ohio State center, as co-captains for the intersectional classic.

Jumpin' Joe Muha, smashing V. M. I. fullback, was named captain of the Southern Grays by one vote over Garrard Ramsey, William & Mary guard, who was elected alternate captain.

Each team boasts of stars in every position. One team will play the first quarters and another the second for each side and the second half will see teams made up of outstanding players from the first half.

The backfields are almost set. For the North, Brundage of Pennsylvania and Barrett of Georgetown will play fullback, Bezemes of Holy Cross and Mutryn of Xavier, tailback; Crigas of Holy Cross and Wolfe of Dartmouth, wingback; Adams of Missouri and Doloway of Indiana, blocking back.

Black of Mississippi State and Johnson of William & Mary will share the fullback slot for the South; Thomas of Tulane and Jones of Union, tailback; Gafford of Auburn and Muha of V. M. I., wingback; McDonald of Tulane and Proctor of Furman, blocking back.

Private Melvin Lynch Extends Holiday Greetings

Private Melvin Lunch, who is now stationed at Fort Custer, Michigan, attached to Company C, 769 Battalion, in a letter to The Freeman, requests that his Christmas greetings to the Dodgerettes and friends in Wilbur and Kingston be published.

The former Dodgerette manager says that the people in Michigan are swell and extend a warm welcome to the soldiers. He says the food and quarters at Fort Custer are tops.

The trip from Fort McClellan, Alabama, to Michigan, was very joyful, he states. Soldiers from all over the country in this camp are all grand fellows, he asserts.

Five 'Jacks'

Atlanta, Dec. 23 (AP) — When Coach W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech asks for "Jack" he has to be specific. No less than five of the 35 Yellowjackets making the jaunt to Dallas for the Cotton Bowl clash with Texas bear that first name. The Tech mentor has two ends named Jack—Capt. Jack Marshall and Jack Helms. And he has two ball-toters named Jack, Hancock and Faulkner. Jack Jordon, a guard, is the fifth player with that given name.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Dec. 23 — Lieutenant Virgil B. DeWitt, M. C. of the 68th Medical Regiment, Camp Forrest, Tennessee, arrived home Monday, December 21 for a visit with his family. His many friends are also very glad to see him.

The church service Sunday morning in the Reformed Church was in charge of the members of the Sunday School. There was singing of Christmas carols, antiphonal reading of Scripture by classes and a dramatization "He Came to Minister." An offering of clothing and food was received for those in need in our community and a special offering from the Sunday School and congregation for the Reformed Church War Emergency Fund for the relief of suffering in all parts of the world. The junior choir and the senior choir led the singing. The entire program was directed by Miss Arietta Snyder, superintendent of the Senior Department, who is taking the place of Ralph Johnston during his illness.

The next regular meeting of the Double Forty Club will be held in the church parlor on the evening of January 14. The club officers include the following: President, Douglas Alverson; Vice President, Margaret Rhinehart; Secretary, Edna Beatty; Treasurer, Charles Jerald; and the committees are: Membership, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Pritchet and Mr. and Mrs. Roe; Extra Activities, Mr. and Mrs. Lanson Rhinehart and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner; Program, Leland Walthery, the Rev. D. W. Soper, Grace Graham and Nellie Alverson. The club will enjoy their Christmas party sometime soon.

Corporal Curtis Sprague has been transferred to the State of Washington. His new address is: Cpl. Curtis J. Sprague, 843rd Sig. Serv. Bn., Puyallup, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Wager and Elmer Wager visited their aunt, Mrs. Sarah Osterhoudt on Tuesday.

The regular annual men's night of the American Legion met in the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Beatty were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Beatty at New Hurley.

Albert Smith of the U. S. Maritime Service and Mrs. Smith, visited his brother, Chester Smith and family in town Sunday. His mother, Mrs. Annie Smith, and his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and little daughter, Rose Annie of Poughkeepsie came over to be with him for the day.

Camilli May Return

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Dolph Camilli is wavering on his decision not to play ball next season for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, received a letter from his star first baseman saying that he had been debating with himself and that he would be glad to return "if I thought sincerely that it was the right thing to do."

Tournament Continues

The weekly duplicate contract bridge tournament held at the Stuyvesant Hotel was won Monday evening by the team of Felix Katz and Fred Allen. Mrs. Ruth Allen and Jack Feeley of Woodstock were second and Nan and Mary Lloyd of Kingston third.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Dec. 23—Miss Mattie Schantz who holds a position at Vassar College is spending a portion of her holidays with Mrs. C. W. Rathgeb.

Richard H. Haynes, a senior at Cornell University has been chosen to participate in the last speeches of the Eastman stage debating contest. This is the 34th contest and is open to the students of the agricultural department.

Miss Doris Coutant, a sophomore at Alfred University will come home Thursday evening for the holidays.

Word has been received from Benjamin Brooks, former industrial arts instructor in the high school that he is now stationed at the Newport Naval Base.

Robert Coutant graduated last week from ground work in New Orleans, the second in his class. He is now at the officer's training school in Chanute Field, Ill.

Miss Marian Williams came home Tuesday from her school at Floral Park, L. I., for the holiday vacation.

The extreme cold weather prevented many from attending church services Sunday morning. In the afternoon about 50 persons were in the congregation for the song service in the Presbyterian Church. The choir was composed of Mrs. M. P. Busch, Miss Darrene Busch, Mrs. Lester Simpson, Miss Marian Simpson, Mrs. Irving Rathgeb, Miss Eleanor Taylor, Miss Emily Lent, Miss Ruth Haynes, Dr. Victor Salvatore, Arthur Poelma, Rev. D. S. Haynes. Members of the Tuxis Society who sponsored the candlelight service and who were in the processional as well as acting as ushers and placed the decorations were the Misses Nancy Rathgeb, Shirley Filkins, Shirley Dirk, Robert Brucklacher, Jacob Schuhle, Jr., Van Orden Purdy, Cornelius Warren, Edwin Dohrman. These young people had a supper at the manse and attended the service in the Methodist Church, returning to the manse for the evening.

PROCLAMATION

The People of the State of New York, by the Grace of God free and independent:
GREETINGS:

Whereas, a Trial Term of Supreme Court and Jail Delivery is to be held in and for the County of Ulster, at the Court House, in the City of Kingston, on Monday the 4th day of January, 1943. We Command you, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 222-a of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in that case made and provided: First.—That you summon the several persons who shall have been drawn in said County of Ulster, pursuant to law, to serve as Grand Jurors and Trial Jurors at the said Court to appear thereat. Second.—That you bring before the said Court all prisoners then being in the Jail of said county, together with all process and proceedings in any way concerning them in your hands as such Sheriff. Third.—That you make Proclamation, in the manner prescribed by Section 222-e of the Code of Criminal Procedure, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said Court by recognizance or otherwise, to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, and other officers who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at such Court, or who shall have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said Court at the opening thereof, on the first day of its sitting.

Witness, Hon. Harry E. Schirick, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, this 8th day of December, in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-two.
N. LEVAN HAVER
District Attorney

In pursuance to the above precept, I hereby make proclamation that a term of Supreme Court of Ulster County and Jail Delivery will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, on the first Monday of Jan. next, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day; and all persons who will prosecute against persons confined in the Jail of said County are required to be then and there present, to proceed as may be just; and all persons bound to appear at the said court, by recognizance or otherwise, are required to appear thereat; and all Justices of the Peace, Coroners or other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said court, or who may have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, are required to return such recognizance, inquisition and examination, to the said court, at the opening thereof, and on the first day of the sitting thereof, and to be then and there present with their rolls and records, indictments and remembrances, to do those things which to their offices pertain.
Dated, City of Kingston, December 8, 1942.

Icy Going Forces Cars Off Streets

Late Christmas Shopping Is Almost at Standstill

The cold wave which has gripped the east for several days was broken Tuesday when temperatures rose from 20 to 30 degrees and by mid-afternoon the mercury hovered near the freezing mark. Early in the afternoon a light rain began to fall, covering streets and roads with a coating of smooth ice.

Travel was so difficult by early evening that the Christmas shopping crowds were cut to a minimum and some of the local stores closed early when customers failed to appear.

In Kingston the sidewalks were covered with a glare of ice which made walking almost impossible and caused motor traffic to dwindle to a mere trickle. Private cars were scarce and some of the public conveyances ceased to operate. Taxi concerns continued to operate for a time under difficulty but later in the evening some of the cabs were removed from the streets and the operators in the interest of safety declined to send out cars.

In the county, highways were made extremely dangerous and sanding operations were conducted all night by the entire force of county trucks. These trucks were compelled to remain on the job since the rain froze as it fell and made necessary re-sanding of the roads and the sand was covered repeatedly with an icy coating.

Sand trucks operated over all of the main arteries and what limited traffic was on the roads continued at reduced speed. No serious accidents were reported and it was reported at the Ulster County Garage this morning that no emergency calls had been received by the Highway Department for aid. Sand trucks were still out this morning completing the job.

At the Payne hill in West Park several large trucks operating on 9-W were stalled despite efforts to keep the hill sanded. In many instances the big tractor-trailer vehicles did not have chains and were helpless until sand had been applied.

One driver of a New York to Kingston bus reported that he had driven up to Rosendale before he encountered hard ice and from that point to Kingston it took an hour and a half to make the trip because of ice on the hills.

The County Highway Department reported the ice condition general throughout the county and in no place did the storm come in the form of snow. Temperatures hovered around the freezing mark all night.

Weary Boston Men Fight More Fires

Firemen Have Answered 200 Calls Since Saturday

Boston, Dec. 23 (AP)—Boston's hard-pressed firemen, who have answered more than 200 alarms since Saturday night, were routed out again today for a three-alarm fire in Roughan's Hall, a five-story brick block in the Charlestown section.

The fire, cause of which was undetermined, was confined chiefly to two vacant stores, but a roller skating rink, a ballroom, bowling alleys and law offices suffered smoke and water damage.

District Chief Patrick J. Collins pulled the extra alarms immediately upon arrival to obtain an adequate force to prevent the fire from spreading through the congested city square district. Coast guards aided the weary firemen.

Some of the fire trucks responding to the first alarm lacked their full crews and those who were aboard were almost completely worn out from responding to the scores of recent calls.

Most of the calls were for frozen sprinkler systems or overheated furnaces, but one was for a lengthy four-alarm fire yesterday in a waterfront coal yard—the fourth major fire in the past six weeks.

Loudon Says Victory Needs Practical Realism

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—It will take "practical realism" to win the war and assure peace, the Netherlands ambassador to the United States told 250 graduating seniors of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute today.

In a speech prepared for commencement ceremonies advanced six months by R. P. I.'s wartime schedule, Alexander Loudon declared:

"We may try, even with some success, to educate the Germans and the Japanese to become decent members of the family of nations, but we must use great care in applying to them our democratic standards of idealism, to which, in the light of their own history and deeds, they are completely allergic."

Ambassador Loudon said that people of the United Nations should learn to know their Axis enemies by studying their history and psychology.

"It is imperative for winning the war, and for winning the peace," he asserted. "If we want to deal with our enemies in the way which is compatible with our Christian conception of human rights and duties and with our democratic spirit, we can do so provided that we take into serious account the mentality of the enemy."

Speaking of Italy, Loudon said, "for once, the enemy has been over-estimated. We now know that for Mussolini and his Fascist system we can have only contempt; we need not have fear."

Shipment of export freight to U. S. ports by American railways has increased more than 40 per cent since Pearl Harbor.

Letters Chase Soldier

Lamar, Mo. (AP)—Lieut. Fred Finley of Lamar has been complaining in his letters recently that the folks back home never write but if his mail ever catches up with him he's going to have a real writing job of his own to do. His bride has written him 81 times but apparently the letters haven't followed him yet through England, Ireland, Scotland and to Africa.

Dolls Are Always Children's Choice

Chicago, Dec. 23 (AP)—Santa Claus will carry a new variety of playthings in his pack this wartime Christmas, but dolls — old when recorded history began—still remain the most popular children's toy, says a Northwestern University phychologist.

And under the Christmas trees in American homes, said the psychologist, Dr. Grayson L. Freeman, Santa will leave more teddy bears—a doll—than any other single kind of toy. Another favorite toy of children is a ball—preferably a red one.

Facts about toys and their history are related in a recently published book by Dr. Freeman and his wife, who said that "viewing the toy world of the past is like looking at history in miniature. Every important event, even to the guillotine of the French revolution, has left its mark in a plaything."

They said that toys also have been instrumental in shaping cultural forces. A preoccupation with tin soldiers and gun play helps mold a race of militarists, they said, whereas an emphasis on construction toys tends to develop inventive tendencies.

Dr. Freeman said that wooden dolls were found in the Egyptian tombs and in the excavations of ancient Greece and Rome. Puppet dolls also were used in the middle ages, largely in connection with ceremonials.

Of all the dolls of modern times, the psychologist said, none has enjoyed the popularity of the teddy bear, which has become a standard item on toy counters all over the world. The teddy bear and his stuffed cousins, Dr. Freeman said, top all others in popularity. He explained the first teddy bear was designed from a cartoonist's version of President Theodore Roosevelt's bear hunt in the rockies—and the doll was called a "Teddy bear."

As a toy, the ball has as great antiquity as the doll, said the Freemans whose research disclosed that pottery, wood and papyrus balls were common, in ancient Egypt. They also said that while mechanical toys were known to the ancients, they appeal more to adults than to children, who prefer dolls, blocks and balls.
